Rescued Babies Bailed for Three Days to Keep Craft Afloat

Will Rogers Remarks:

TAHOE TAVERN, Aug. 19.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Half of England has been in Scotland half the summer awaiting the arrival of the Duchess of York's new baby. The Scotch would get a long break like that. What has caused all the rumpus is that the Prince of Wales has said that if it was a girl baby that he would marry. It just shows what inconvenience some men will put themselves to to prevent a woman from being queen.

The Middle West got rain. Even the Lord couldn't stand to wait on the Republicans forever.

WILL ROGERS.

WINGLESS PLANE TEST SUCCEEDS

Craft Secretly Built on Rotorship Principle Flown in East

NEW YORK, Aug. 19. (AP)—The New York Times says a wingless aircraft based on the principle of the celebrated Plettner rotorship has been built and successfully flown on Long Island Sound off Mamaroneck, with the backing of New York capitalists.

Three inventors have lived in secusion conducting their experiment with the all-metal ship.

Walter P. Chrysler has been reported as a backer of the venture. Another supporter was reported to be Harold Elstner Talbott, Jr.

The aircraft is described as similar in appearance to a seaplane without wings. A single motor in the nose supplies the traction through a three-bladed steel propeller. An auxiliary air-cooled Gypsy motor supplies power to rotate the cylinders which take the place of wings.

Hoover Appoints Drought Board

Secretary Hyde to Direct Work of Committee in Stricken Areas

Henry M. Robinson, Banker of Los Angeles, in Charge of Credit Phase

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19. (AP)—A national drought relief committee under the chairmanship of Secretary Hyde was appointed by President Hoover today and will begin to function immediately in conjunction with State and county agencies in more than 300 counties.

Secretary Hyde will supervise the relief work from his office in the Department of Agriculture. He will have as assistants on the committee, Chairman Legge, Federal Farm Board; Chairman Bestor, Federal Farm Loan Board; Gov. Young, Federal Reserve Board; Chairman Payne, American Red Cross; Chairman Aishton, American Railway Association; Ogden Mills, Undersecretary of the Treasury, and Henry M. Robinson, president of the First National Bank, Los Angeles.

ROBINSON'S WORK

Aishton's task on the national committee will have to do with emergency freight rates, while Robinson will concern himself with coordinating Federal, State and private credit activities.

The Red Cross will handle most of the individual relief work in cases where there is actual suffering. The chairman said he expected the entire $5,000,000 disaster relief fund will be needed. Only about fifty calls for help have been received. Payne said, but he added that as time goes on the situation in some sections will be "desperate." He said he expects calls for help from 250 to 400 of the counties affected.

County agents have been instructed by Secretary Hyde to watch feed shipments closely to prevent unwarranted price increases.

In announcing the committee, President Hoover said late reports had "confirmed the severity of the situation and the inevitability of distress over the winter in the acutely affected counties, which now apparently number something over 300."

"In accordance with the conclusions of my conference with the governors," the President's statement said, "I have appointed Secretary Hyde to undertake co-ordination between Federal and State activities as chairman of the national drought committee.

SET-UP EXPLAINED

"These committeemen from the different national organizations will appoint alternate or additional members from those agencies from time to time to undertake the special problems before the committee. Mr. Robinson has consented to serve on the committee for purposes of co-ordinating Federal with State and private credit activities. The headquarters of the national drought relief committee are being set up in the Department of Agriculture.

"The governors of the various States are moving rapidly in the creation of their organizations. The governors of Illinois and Virginia have reported their committees, comprising men of high leadership in their States.

DISTRESS INEVITABLE

"Continuing reports confirm the severity of the situation and the inevitability of distress over the winter in the acutely affected counties, which now apparently number something over 300.

"The rains of the last few days have stemmed the spread of the drought and greatly improved the situation outside the acutely affected area. In those areas the destruction of crops has proceeded to a point that is beyond any great degree of recovery, although pasturage should improve.

"It must be borne in mind that from a relief point of view the burden of the problem in the acute area will show very much more vividly over the winter than at the present moment.

"I have received from all sections of the drought area high appreciation of the railways for their prompt and constructive action. It is a notable act of courageous co-operation and has been undertaken in the face of seriously reduced incomes due to the depression. It emphasizes the public interest of maintaining the strength and financial stability of our railways that they shall be able to co-operate in times of national difficulty.

"In order that there may be no failure to cover any case of distress pending the time when the States have completed their detailed organization, the Red Cross has given instructions to all their county agencies to take care of the situation."

A Declaration of Independence

ORANGE (Cal.) Aug. 19. (Exclusive)—Under the caption "Taxation Without Representation" the Orange Daily News yesterday published in large black type on its first page an editorial demanding justice for Southern California in the matter of State representation and urging the nomination of Buron Fitts, Southern California's Republican candidate for Governor, at the primaries next Tuesday. The text of the editorial follows:

Proportionate representation is the foundation stone of American government, the fundamental principle of the Constitution of the United States and the basis of our whole political system, national, State and local.

Taxation without such representation is as much tyranny today as it was 157 years ago when our sturdy forefathers heaved into Boston Harbor the symbol of their political vassalage. It is as intolerable to every principle of justice and equality now as then. Its imposition, as a deliberate and continuing policy of admitted and flagrant illegality, upon an American community is one to stir therein anew the spirit of American independence.

For years the representation of Southern California in the State government has been grossly disproportionate to its contribution to the maintenance of that government. Today, with more than half the population, more than half the wealth and paying more than half the cost of government in California, we receive—by arbitrary allotment—less than a third of State benefits. Our representation in State councils is barely that which should accrue to an area of half our population and taxable property. Southern California has had but one Governor in a generation. Our voice in the Legislature is that of a scant third of its membership, in Congress of a fourth of California's representatives, in the United States Senate of none at all. We have one State Supreme Court justice in seven and four out of eleven major State officers. On any sectional issue such representation as we have is of no avail, for we are outvoted two to one.

With no disposition to promote sectional differences, but rather to help remove a grave and growing source of sectional feeling, we urge the voters of Southern California to take advantage of the opportunity presented at the forthcoming primary election to lighten the burden of governmental inequity by nominating a Southern Californian for Governor, a man not only of proven integrity, ability and experience in the administration of State affairs, but one pledged to employ the great influence of the Governor's office to give to every part of the State, north and south, its exact dues in representation and benefits.

Buron Fitts is Southern California's Republican candidate for the governorship. He is opposed by C. C. Young and James Rolph, both northerners and loyal servants of the northern interest. The Republican nomination is tantamount to election. There will be no second chance. This is the time for us to say by our votes if we shall longer submit supinely to injustice. We seek only our exact rights, but these we demand and will have.

This is the opportunity for Southern California's Declaration of Independence.

AIR BASES IN SEA PLANNED

British Propose Floating Service Stations to Permit Trans-Atlantic Dirigible Line

LONDON, Aug. 19. (NANA)—Airdromes scattered across the Atlantic would be used as floating service stations for the contemplated all-year dirigible service between Cardington and Montreal and New York, which is announced by the British Air Ministry.

These airdromes would be in the form of floating mooring masts supported by pontoons sunk deep enough to be below wave action. Should they drift from their stations they could return by steam power. The airships, with a wide range of visibility and always in touch by wireless, should be able to pick up these airdromes easily.

On the proposed speed schedule, the airdromes, which would be maintained at 300-mile intervals between New York and the Azores and Plymouth, would be not more than four hours air travel apart. They would be used for repairs and refueling.

The Air Ministry proposes to establish regular service as soon as sufficient experience has been obtained in operating the R-100 and the R-101. Interest here now centers on the R-101, which is fitting out for service to India. She has been cut in two and lengthened to 780 feet, and she has 170 tons lifting capacity. Her flight will be in two legs, possibly three. A mooring mast costing $400,000 has been built for her at Cairo and another at the Karachi terminal. A third may be built at Malta.

Deming, Cheyenne publisher and former president of the United States Civil Service Commission, had 1024 and W. L. Walls, Cheyenne attorney, running on a platform for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, had 228.

Short-term figures were within a few votes the same as long term.

BOMB CASE BLAST DUE

Billings Hearing Sensation Near

Goff Promises Disclosures that will Startle Whole Country

Declares Doubt of Guilt Entirely Dissipated; Older Heard

BY FLOYD J. HEALEY
"Times" Staff Correspondent

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19. (Exclusive)—A day of relatively little headway in the Warren K. Billings pardon hearing by the justices of the State Supreme Court blossomed into sensational promise tonight when Charles Goff, police captain, declared:

"Developments brought out since the institution of the pardon proceedings lead some of us to believe we shall soon have evidence in these cases which will show that the Preparedness Day bomb outrage was the most diabolical and sinister plot ever planned in this country."

Goff refused to go into details. He said to do so would be to jeopardise the value of the information already accumulated and more within reach of the police department.

DOUBT SWEPT ASIDE

He said, however, that all doubt that may have been entertained regarding the guilty parties has been swept aside by a combination of the testimony given in the current hearing supplemented by the results of an intensive police department investigation.

Goff was head of the bomb squad during the investigation which followed the Preparedness Day parade. He already has testified in the Billings hearing but he declared he will be recalled to the stand to provide the new evidence.

He pronounced himself convinced of the guilt of Mooney and Billings and predicted additional revelations to be made in the case may startle the entire country.

If the situation develops, as Goff believes it will, there is no telling when the present hearing will be completed.

Chief Justice Waste of the Supreme Court, intimated the imminence of new revelations during the day. The first came when he said it might be necessary to take a recess for an entire week, or until after the primary election, and the second was in the form of an informal statement at the end of the day to the effect that Capt. Goff has been conducting an investigation which might lead to the production of evidence of great significance.

OLDER TELLS OF "LOAN"

The daily surprise witness of the hearing added little of material benefit, but Fremont Older, editor of the Hearst-controlled Call-Bulletin, long active in the Mooney-Billings freedom fight, unexpectedly disclosed under cross-examination, that he had "loaned" $300 to Mrs. Mellie Edeau in the hope of getting statements from her and her daughter favorable to the convicted men.

Older said the "loan" was made at the time to aid the Edeaus, whose testimony was damaging to Mooney and Billings, in clearing title to some property in dispute. He denied it was with the intention of corrupting them. Under persistent questioning by Justice Preston, however, Older admitted his actual purpose was one of laying the foundation for a "story" he hoped to get from Mrs. Edeau and her daughter as part of his general plan to aid Mooney and Billings.

The money used for the advance to Mrs. Edeau, he said, came from funds supplied him by the Chicago

Van Lear Black Lost off Boat

Coast Guard, Navy Dirigible and His Own Yacht Hunt Flyer Off New York

Baltimore Multimillionaire Believed to Have Fallen from Perch on Rail

BALTIMORE, Aug. 19. (AP)—Van Lear Black, multimillionaire Baltimore publisher, capitalist and world flyer, disappeared from his yacht off the New Jersey coast last night and, though sea craft and aircraft, including the naval dirigible Los Angeles, continued search late today, he is believed to have perished.

The Los Angeles, scheduled to make a practice flight from Lakehurst, N. J., today, was instructed by the Navy Department to keep a close watch along the coast line. Coast Guard vessels also were ordered to help, at the request of the Baltimore Sun, of which Mr. Black was publisher.

John J. Kelley, captain of the yacht, the Savalo, a twin-screw oil-burning craft, took word of his disappearance today to New York, whence he telephoned to Mr. Black's associates in Baltimore. Aid of Coast Guard and other craft was obtained and search resumed.

THEORY EXPRESSED

The opinion that the publisher, known in many countries for his airplane flights, fell accidentally from a dangerous perch on the rail of the yacht, which he was accustomed to use despite the warnings of the captain, was expressed by Kelley.

On the deck was found a handkerchief, and the captain said apparently he lost his hold when the yacht took a sudden lurch as he reached for the handkerchief.

The disappearance was discovered by Mr. Black's valet, who went to his employer's cabin as customary about 10 o'clock. The yacht was put about, thoroughly searched and searchlights combed the waves in vain. A heavy swell was running, the captain said.

KNOWN AS FLYER

Mr. Black was on his way to Chesapeake Bay after cruising and visiting in the vicinity of New York since July 21. He planned to visit his island home in the Chesapeake. Among his visitors on board at New York were Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Rear-Admiral Richard E. Byrd, both friends of long standing.

Because of the flights, beginning in 1927, which took him around the world, to the Dutch East Indies, and to South Africa, a total of approximately 125,000 miles, Mr. Black was more widely known as a flyer than as a publisher, capitalist and leader in civic affairs, though he had been a chief figure in Baltimore for years. He was known as the richest man in Maryland.

CARVES OWN FORTUNE

Though far from penniless as a youth, he is credited with having carved out his own fortune and career. Born at Cumberland, Md., in 1875, he was brought by his parents to Baltimore when 7 years of age, attended private schools until he was 16, and later entered the Belmont school near Boston.

He started his career as a clerk in the old Fidelity Trust and Deposit Company, and in 1920 was elected president of the company and about the same time made chairman of the board of the Fidelity and Deposit Company, which had taken over the bonding business of the other concern. Until recently he had been director in numerous large banking and industrial concerns here and in New York, but was active of late in but a few.

Mr. Black became an unusual figure in many respects as a publisher

MIXED BABIES SWAPPED

Chicago Families Accept Medical Findings and Peace Reigns in Two Households

CHICAGO, Aug. 19. (Exclusive)—The seemingly interminable Watkins-Bamberger baby controversy late today reached a settlement that promised to be final when the mothers of the infant boys, born June 30 in the Inglewood Hospital, amicably exchanged babies, shook hands and promised each other they would bicker no more. Health Commissioner Kegel officiated as master of ceremonies.

A turn toward settlement of the case, which promised to drag indefinitely through the courts, came at 4 p.m. when Joseph P. Power, attorney for Charles Bamberger and his wife, telephoned Commissioner Kegel that Bamberger was at last persuaded the findings of Dr. Kegel's board of experts were correct and that the infants were in the wrong homes.

ACTION SPEEDED

Aware that William Watkins and his wife were already of this view, Dr. Kegel hastened to the Bamberger home, trusting that prompt action might finally settle the issue, Dr. Kegel's hopes were gratified.

Upon reflection, Bamberger said, he had reached the conclusion that, as the medical experts contended, the babies had been switched before leaving the hospital. He renounced his previous view that the baby Mrs. Bamberger took home looked exactly like him and that the infant in possession of the Watkins's resembled him not at all.

Nothing remained, therefore, but to go to the Watkins apartment, and effect the transfer. The Bambergers, their lawyer and Dr. Kegel telephoned of their coming and Mrs. Watkins received them warmly. Her husband was not at home.

PEACE REIGNS

A little tearful, the two mothers undressed the respective infants, exchanged them to each other's arms, and hugged each tightly after the transfer. Dr. Kegel smiled. Mr. Bamberger stroked his wife's shoulder, and Mrs. Watkins cooed at the son she has believed all along was her own.

The Bambergers remained half an hour at the Watkins apartment, awaiting Watkins's return and finally left when Mrs. Watkins assured them her husband would be satisfied at the transfer.

NEW RULE IN FORCE

Dr. Kegel today predicted the error will never again take place in a city hospital here as the result of a new rule he has ordered established.

The rule, effective today, follows:

(1.) That a new born baby shall be properly identified and marked before nourishment between the mother and the baby is severed.

(2.) That there shall be two witnesses in writing to the fact that the baby has been properly marked.

(3.) That identification marks shall be removed only after the baby has arrived in its home.

LEGION NAMES FRESNAN CHIEF

B. W. Gearhart, Attorney, Now Heads State Order

Policy in National Affairs Stated in Resolutions

Needs of Veteran Hospitals of State Related

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 19. (AP)—B. W. Bearhart, Fresno attorney, became commander of the California department, American Legion, when he was nominated without opposition in the State convention here today. He will succeed Clarence L. Kincaid, Hollywood.

During nominations only one contest developed, C. L. De Benedetti, Concord, and Dave McCullough, San Mateo, being placed in the race for department sergeant-at-arms. Election will be held tomorrow afternoon.

Officers named without contest are:

OTHERS ELECTED

Frank N. Belgrano, Jr., San Francisco, national executive committeeman; C. A. Rexroad, Hollister, department chaplain; Gertrude Tracy, Los Angeles, vice-commander-at-large, representing women members of the Legion.

Delegates-at-large to the national convention in Boston, October 6-9, elected today, are Dr. A. D. Houghton, Los Angeles; Dewey Baker, Sacramento, and Joe Hume, Monrovia. In addition to these, the 55,041 California Legionnaires will be represented at the national conclave by forty-five delegates.

The convention adopted a resolution calling on the national convention to use its influence to prevent mob violence.

Passage of a State law was urged to give preference to American citizens in work on State, county and city projects, and a national law was urged giving citizens preference in all public work.

After considerable discussion a resolution to place the Legion on record as favoring daylight saving was tabled. Opponents of the measure declared it was a controversial subject, not within the province of Legion affairs.

Californians in Congress were urged to act to enforce provisions of the Immigration Restriction Act.

AGE LIMIT HIT

A resolution was adopted condemning arbitrary age restrictions on employees in industry. The practice of hiring only younger men and "firing at 40" was denounced by Gearhart, speaking for the resolution. The system is "inhuman and heartless," he declared, and "strikes at the home and the stability of government."

Additional need of veterans' hospitals in the State was pointed out by the veterans' welfare committee, and a number of resolutions were adopted urging expansion of institutions. Needs cited included 600 more beds at the San Fernando Veterans' Hospital; 500 more beds at the Sawtelle Home, increased facilities at the Livermore Veterans' Hospital, construction of a 300-bed hospital at the Yountville Veterans' Home, construction of a new hospital in Southern California for psychiatric cases, and a hospital for tubercular patients in Southern California. A hospital for women war veterans of the State also was favored.

FOR LARGE NAVY

Congress was urged to pass legislation to bring the United States Navy up to the strength provided by the London naval treaty.

Gov. Young was urged to appoint at least two war veterans on the commission administering State funds for building of barracks at the Yountville Veterans' Home.

The convention will close tomorrow.

Redlands post won the Class B drum and bugle corps title. Santa Cruz placed second. Other teams finished in order as follows: Watsonville, San Jose, Ventura City, Modesto.

The contest for Women's Auxiliary drill teams was won by Alhambra, captained by Mrs. Kay Mitchell. Napa, led by Mrs. Alberta Doughty, was second, and Hanford, led by Zelma Jewell, third.

GRAPE MARKET AGENCIES ACT

Two Huge Organizations to Guard Against Glut

Fruit Industries, Inc., Ready to Handle Surplus

Mabel Walker Willebrandt Retained as Counsel

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19. (AP)—Two huge organizations began work today to stabilize the grape industry and prevent glutting markets.

Steps toward regulation of out-of-State grape shipments were taken here by the joint clearing-house committee of the three fresh-grape co-operatives. This will be the first time a large-scale scientific distribution has been attempted by the grape industry, representatives said.

The $30,000,000 Fruit Industries, Inc., a co-operative of ten large grape by-products companies, announced in Washington, D. C., its organization had been completed. It is to begin operation immediately. The company hopes to utilize virtually all of the 30 per cent overproduction of western grapes, utilizing from 50,000 to 250,000 tons this year.

MARKET PLANS MADE

The joint clearing-house committee worked out complete machinery for a scientific distribution of California's 1930 fresh-grape crop. Its elaborate proposals are expected to meet with the approval of the co-operatives.

Distribution of California fresh grapes will be based on daily information as to the consuming capacity of eastern markets. Each co-operative is to be allotted its proportionate tonnage. The three co-operatives will then reallocate amounts to be shipped to their subordinate shipping associations and agencies. Eventually the apportionment of tonnage will reach the individual grower.

The out-of-State distribution of the fresh grape crop is regarded by the industry as one of the most vital steps ever taken for relieving market conditions.

Frederick J. Koster, chairman of the grape control board, presided at today's meeting.

FUNDS ADVANCED

The grape control board tonight sent its first application for an advance to Washington. Boekel said $3,820,000 was asked.

An initial advance of $400,000 was made by the Farm Board to the Fruit Industries, Inc., Washington advices said.

The co-operative was chartered in California a year ago, but has been inactive pending the completion of merger details.

His ten members will manufacture concentrates, nonalcoholic wines, jellies, vinegars, soft drinks and syrups.

Mabel Walker Willebrandt, former assistant Attorney-General in charge of prohibition, was retained as counsel. The co-operative will not manufacture industrial alcohol.

RACE HINGES ON VALIDITY OF BALLOTS

Court Delays Decision on Perforations in Keystone State Primary of May

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 19. (AP)—Whether approximately 60,000 Luzerne county paper ballots that were stamped with perforated numbers at the primary last May shall be thrown out was argued for nearly three hours before the State Supreme Court today.

At the conclusion of the argument, Acting Chief Justice Frazer of Pittsburgh, announced there would be no decision forthcoming today.

Francis Shunk Brown, who was defeated by Gifford Pinchot for the Republican nomination for Governor, contends the perforations on the ballots constitute mutilation and render them illegal.

As Mr. Pinchot carried the State by 20,000 and Luzerne county by 26,000, the invalidation of the vote would give Brown the Republican nomination by 6000 votes.

The mother, now Mrs. Charles Noonan, supported her son until her first husband, Held's father, died. She found it impossible to return to Germany for him and with the coming of the World War lost all track of him.

Gov. Roosevelt Takes Control in Ewald Case

NEW YORK, Aug. 19. (Exclusive) Gov. Roosevelt took the Ewald case out of the hands of local officials today after studying the minutes of the New York county grand jury which failed to find an indictment and then reconsidered its action.

The Governor in Albany ordered Atty.-Gen. Ward to supersede the Tammany District Attorney, Thomas C. Crain, in the investigation into the charges that George F. Ewald paid more than $10,000 to Tammany politicians for his appointment as a city magistrate three years ago.

Tom Mix's Fist Scares Accuser $13,000 Worth

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 19. (AP)—A suit demanding $13,000 damages was filed against Tom Mix, motion-picture actor, in District Court today by John Berress, Minneapolis automobile sales manager, charging "malicious and wilful assault."

The plaintiff charged that while Mix appeared here with a circus last July the actor shook his fist in his face and called him profane names, putting him in great fear of his life. Berress claimed this reduced his efficiency as a salesman and asks $7000 because of that and $6000 for injuries he says he suffered to his mind and body.

Older Testifies of "Loan" to Witness

Federation of Labor. He testified yesterday he had received $1500 from that organization.

Pressed further, Older said the Edeau "loan" had never been repaid.

ADMISSION OBTAINED

He insisted, however, his action in this instance, as in other instances, notably that of "suggestioning" discussions with Estelle Smith, Draper Hand, a police officer, and "the Hatchers," were motivated primarily by his desire to "get two innocent men out of jail." The Edeau "loan," he testified, had been at Mrs. Edeau's solicitation and was not initiated by himself.

Justice Preston hammered on the Edeau situation at great length, producing the photostatic copy of a letter written over Older's signature on Call-Bulletin stationery to Mrs. Edeau to help clarify his recollection. Eventually, the justice obtained an admission from the witness that if the Edeaus had not been witnesses in the case he probably would not have lent the money.

LETTER PRODUCED

He said he was unable to recall other events mentioned in the letter and denied he had been in touch with Mrs. Mooney regarding the possibility of influencing Mrs. Edeau.

Justice Preston thereupon produced the photostat of another letter, written six days after Older's, over the signature of Rena Mooney, in which Mrs. Edeau was solicited for help on the basis that she and her daughter were "the only hope" left.

Older also was questioned as to why he had not made any effort to undermine the original testimony of John MacDonald, the recanting waiter, while MacDonald was in this vicinity from 1917 to 1919, knowing that MacDonald's testimony had been a major factor in the conviction of Mooney and Billings. Older said he did not consider MacDonald at that time of as much importance as Estelle Smith and Draper Hand, and, in addition, was so busy discussing the case with Miss Smith and Hand he did not get around to see MacDonald.

SURPRISE WITNESS

The day's surprise witness developed in the person of Ralph B. Jones, Sacramento automobile salesman, who operated, at the time of the Preparedness Day parade in 1916, an auto accessory shop in conjunction with the garage of Ralph Kent on Steuart street between Mission and Market, half a block from the bombing scene.

Jones testified he had moved across the street from his garage prior to the explosion and had stood within three feet of the spot where the Mooney-Billings prosecution contended the suitcase containing the parade bomb had been set down. If the suitcase had been there, Jones was positive he would have seen it. He did not see it. In the course of the questioning, however, Edwin V. McKenzie, attorney for Billings, displayed photographs of the scene in order to make the situation perfectly clear and, by doing so, refreshed the memory of the witness to the point of unexpected disclosures. The photographs, Jones testified, convinced him he had stood, not within three feet of the spot where the suitcase is supposed to have been placed, but several feet away from it, and between the two points, parade spectators were milling around and it was quite possible he would not have seen the suitcase if it had been there.

Jones did add some evidence to the effect some of the trial testimony of John Crowley, now dead, was perjured by saying Crowley could not have looked at his watch to determine the time he said he saw Billings at the suit case location because Crowley's watch was in his (Jones's) cash register. However, he testified Crowley had access to the register and also could see the clock on the Ferry Building tower. Previous trial testimony by W. L. Claiborne, Oakland attorney, that Crowley was under an auto in the garage and could not have seen Billings when he said he did, failed of substantiation from Jones. The latter testified Crowley was "in and out" of the place all day.

HURLEY APPEARS

At that point a slight argument between counsel developed the additional fact that an effort to serve Claiborne with a subpoena to bring him back into court for examination regarding his past record, including veracity, had failed because he could not be located. Justice Preston asked Jones if he knew Claiborne had been convicted of perjury. Jones said he was not aware of it.

State Senator Hurley appeared at the invitation of the court and denied the truth of the assertion by Billings at Folsom that he hired Billings to carry a suitcase loaded with dynamite to Sacramento in 1913 for property attacks on a power company engaged in industrial troubles. Hurley said he was in Denver at the time. He declared his desire to face Billings in court. McKenzie immediately offered to take him to Folsom, but Hurley demurred, saying the trip would be useless unless the members of the court were present.

Bernard Dunn, who testified yesterday regarding the presence of the Mooneys on the roof of the Eilers Building from not later than 1:45 p.m. to 2:10 p.m. on the day of the explosion, the explosion occurring at 2:06 p.m., was cross-examined at length, but stuck to his story that the Mooneys were there.

Edgar T. Gleeson, managing editor of the Call-Bulletin, denied efforts on his part to influence witnesses in the case.

SEAMANSHIP PRAISED

"In fact, all hands were placed in boats and launched without the slightest mishap and this with the Tahiti rolling in long swells. This indicated splendid seamanship prevailed.

"Radio officers of the Tahiti, with only auxiliary apparatus working because engine-room dynamos were below water, added new laurels to their already splendid record.

"The Tahiti was foundering rapidly when her captain and crew left her. At 3:40 p.m. and again at 4:43 p.m. her stern dipped beneath the water and she went down lifting her bow aloft. One-third of the ship stood perpendicular above the water as she dove.

"The position of the Tahiti when she foundered was 24 deg. 44 min. south 168 deg. 15 min. west.

VESSELS' CAPTAINS PREVENTED DISASTER

WELLINGTON (N. Z.) Aug. 19. (AP)—First stories from passengers of the ill-fated Pacific passenger liner Tahiti reaching here today from Papopago indicated that masterly seamanship by the captains of both the Tahiti and the rescue ship Ventura prevented an appalling disaster.

Twice before the Ventura arrived, when there seemed no hope of rescue at hand, the Tahiti's captain gave orders to the passengers to take to the lifeboats.

Fear ruled the Tahiti for three days but throughout their harrowing experience the passengers were orderly and obedient to the dictates of wiser minds. When the great good fortune of rescue came to them the women passengers were transferred, then the men and finally the crew.

When all hands were aboard the Ventura an attempt was made to save the vast quantities of mail in her holds.

With some of the bags already taken off, ship's boats were returning for more when the Tahiti lurched and took another roll.

The waves swept over her bows, which failed to rise again from beneath the water. Then the doomed liner straightened on an even keel. Her stern rose and she disappeared in a boiling white whirlpool.

VENTURA DOCKS WITH RESCUED AT PAGOPAGO

BLAKEBURN (B. C.) Aug. 19. (AP) Three more bodies of the forty-five victims of Wednesday's explosion in the Blakeburn mine were located today.

Sixteen dead have now been found as the story of the tragedy is wrung from the shattered workings. Twenty-nine men are yet unaccounted for. Only five bodies have been brought to the surface.

BAR CONCLAVE FACES DRY WAR

Demand for Withdrawal of Poll Launches Fight

Wide Use of Third Degree in Nation Charged

CHICAGO, Aug. 19. (AP)—Prohibition threatened tonight to bring about a heated fight before the American Bar Association when that body formally opens its fifty-third annual convention tomorrow.

Spirited disagreement became imminent late today when the association's executive committee refused to withdraw a mail poll on the dry question. A group of members had demanded the poll be abandoned.

The executive committee decided last spring to conduct the vote and cards were mailed the first of July. Each member was sent two cards, one asking: "Shall there be a referendum on prohibition?" and the other: "Shall the Eighteenth Amendment be repealed?" When the voting ends in November, envelopes containing answers to the first question will be opened. If the majority favor a referendum, the second cards will be counted, otherwise they will be burned.

POLICE CRITICISED

"Lawless enforcement of law" drew the attention of early delegates to the city to attend sectional meetings today.

A committee on the subject, delivering a report to the section of criminal law and criminology, denounced the third degree, which it charged is practiced extensively throughout the country, and criticised Chicago and other police for recent crime "round-ups," which the report said, have no warrant in law.

Charging officers break into and search dwellings without a warrant and contrary to law, and suspected persons are stripped, beaten, blinded and threatened and otherwise tortured to force confessions, the report continues: "The boldness with which the sheriffs, police and State's attorneys practice this lawlessness is astonishing and goes on despite protests and rebukes from the courts."

The report deplored the lack of statistics on how extensive is the practice of the third degree and said at least nine out of ten such cases are interred from the public view because they result in guilty pleas and never reach trial.

LAWLESS PEOPLE

Some of the reasons for the situation with which the report deals are explained as follows:

"We are a lawless people. Our lawlessness is not an acute, but a chronic disease.

"While we are a lawless people we prohibit by laws acts not elsewhere forbidden. For example our laws and ordinances against gambling, narcotics, lewd conduct, selling or possessing alcoholic beverages, put burdens on the police which those of England do not have to carry; and this state of things is likely to continue indefinitely."

Public opinion, the committee found, is largely responsible for the lawless enforcement of law. "Neither Babbitt, nor Main street, nor the newspaper seems to give a thought to the lawlessness of the act when the results are gratifying," the report said.

"We venture to recommend," concluded the committee, "that the American Bar Association declare that examination of persons under arrest except in the presence of the prisoner's attorney, or the public defender, is contrary to sound criminal procedure and an obstacle rather than an aid to the maintenance of law and order."

Present Immigration Laws Declared Adequate

Congressman Cites Figures on Mexican Cuts

Harris Bill Characterized as Needless Affront

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19. (Exclusive)—Enforcement of present laws, not the passage of new ones, is the only question the United States has to consider from the standpoints of logic and economics, in the matter of immigration, including that from Mexico.

Representative Free of San Jose, who has been active in the fight in the House to obtain recognition of that viewpoint to the end there shall be no restriction of immigration from our neighboring republic on the south, so declared in a radio address here tonight on a Columbia network hook-up.

LEAVES SICKBED

Representative Free deserted a hospital bed in San Jose at 3 p.m. today in order to deliver his address as scheduled. He has been suffering from an infection of his leg but refused to disappoint his radio audience as long as he was in condition to leave his bed.

He reviewed the history of American immigration laws from the 1917 act during the Wilson administration, which he characterized "the first real restrictive measure," down to the present time, not only in its application to Mexico but to all other countries.

Delving then into the Harris bill in the Senate, which placed all countries under quota in accordance with the National Origins Act of 1924, he pointed to the language of the Johnson bill, an amendment to the Harris bill, as a direct affront to Mexico and not consistent with facts.

FIGURES ON MEXICANS

"The majority report on the Johnson bill," he said, "states that we have no immigration problem with Canada, nor with the Central and South American countries, as well as the West Indies. We must, therefore, conclude that the only immigration problem in the Western Hemisphere, if there is one, is with Mexico."

The figures, he said, citing them, prove the contrary. For instance, Mexican immigration in 1925, was 50,002; in 1926, 58,013; in 1927, 77,-162; in 1928, 38,456; in 1929, 39,-501.

In addition to this decrease, evident on the face of fiscal year figures, he pointed out that Mexican immigration has been cut down about 90 per cent in the last year.

FURTHER CUTS MADE

"During May," he said, "only one Mexican laborer was admitted and during June not one Mexican laborer was admitted. Students, merchants and former residents of the United States and other preferred classes under commercial treaties are the only Mexicans entering the United States at the present time. Even the Secretary of State asked that no other laws be passed which might disturb our commercial relations with Mexico," Congressman Free reminded.

Looking back to his own address to the Seventieth Congress, he recalled that he urged the Department of State and Labor to enforce the present law, "and contended that if this was done we could handle this subject without additional laws and without making bad feeling with a friendly country with which we carry on a great amount of commerce."

LAW READ

He presented verbatim that section of the immigration law now on the statute books, defining each and every class of person who shall not be admitted and the causes therefor; the law he contends should not be meddled with at the cost of friendship and commerce.

"On February 18, 1929," he said, "consuls of the State Department had a meeting in Mexico City and laid out plans for strict enforcement of this law.

"Congress appropriated for border control an increase of $1,000,000 per year; as a result immigration from Mexico had been reduced 86½ per cent on June 1, 1930."

Quoting from official government records he demonstrated a monthly average decrease of 3851 in the fiscal year of 1929-30 from that of 1927-28.

LITERACY REQUIRED

"A Mexican to get into the United States," he explained, "must be able to read and write, must show that he will not become a public charge and that he is not coming into the United States under any contract to labor, that no one is paying his passage, that he is not physically or mentally defective, and besides, must pay $30 in fees.

"Mexicans are leaving the country. From July, 1929, to March, 1930, there left the United States 4998 Mexicans. About 10,000 have been deported for the fiscal year ending July 1, 1930.

"Therefore, we have no problem with Canada, Central and South America and the West Indies, and have plenty of law to keep out undesirable Mexicans.

"The whole question is enforcement of present law and not passage of more laws."

Church Board Backs Legion Against Pastor

IRON RIDGE (Wis.) Aug. 19 (AP) A formal ultimatum either to admit members of the American Legion to communion or resign his pastorate will be served on Rev. John Henning, evangelical Lutheran pastor here, by his board of directors, they announced today.

Dr. Henning, it was charged, objected to giving communion to members of the Legion, because of what he termed the religious exercises of the organization.

"I am ready to grant communion to Legion members if they refuse to participate in the prayers and other false religious exercises of the Legion," the pastor said.

Labor's Foes to Exploit Idleness

LONDON, Aug. 19. (AP)—Well-informed political circles assert that Tory politicians are preparing a heavy campaign against Ramsay MacDonald's Socialist government, basing their chief talking point on the failure of the Labories to solve unemployment.

With 2,000,000 workless clamoring for relief the Conservative leaders are understood to be planning to strike while unrest is high. The present unemployment figures break all previous British records and word has been passed around Conservative strongholds to try to force a general election before the tide turns.

Long Beach Flyer Wins Two Laps in Arizona

Miss Barron Penalized for Straying from Route

DOUGLAS (Ariz.) Aug. 19. (AP)—Mrs. Gladys O'Donell, Long Beach, won both the fourth and fifth laps of the women's national air derby today to increase her elapsed-time lead to more than sixteen minutes over Marjorie Doig, Danbury, Ct., who was in second place.

The six women, who took off Sunday at Long Beach on the nine-day jaunt to Chicago, made the morning flight from Phoenix to Tucson and the afternoon trip from Tucson here without serious mishap.

Yesterday Ruth Barron, Hollywood, missed Phoenix in flying from Calexico, and was forced down because of fuel shortage 110 miles northwest of the Arizona capital in a cornfield. She rejoined the group shortly before the continuance of the race at Phoenix this morning, but received a serious time penalty.

Mrs. Mildred Morgan, Beverly Hills, crowded Jean La Rene, Kansas City, out of third place by finishing ahead of her in both of today's flights. Otherwise the flyers' standings are unchanged, Ruth Stewart, St. Louis, remaining in fifth position and Miss Barron in sixth.

The standings in total elapsed time, as compiled unofficially tonight, were: Mrs. O'Donnell, 3h. 54m. 29s.; Miss Doig, 4h. 13m. 8s.; Mrs. Morgan, 5h. 26m. 14s.; Miss La Rene, 5h. 35m. 23s.; Miss Stewart, 6h. 25m. 25s., and Miss Barron, 21h. 39m. 52s.

Miss Doig was the victim of the only accident today. As she brought her plane down in Tucson, the noon control, a tire blew out, crumpling a wheel of her plane. Repairs were made quickly and her ship was on the line for the afternoon start.

Checks for $400 Drawn to State Senator

Latter Says They Represent Law Case Fees

CHICAGO, Aug. 19. (AP)—Another safety deposit box, the fourth, property of the slain Jack Zuta, Chicago vice lord, was discovered today by authorities seeking to trace the motive for killing Alfred J. Lingle, Tribune reporter. The latest find, authorities said, contained records of more recent date than did the other three, contents of which have been revealed as a series of canceled checks, drawn by Zuta in favor of Chicago officials and political leaders.

Today two checks, drawn in favor of State Senator Harry W. Starr, each for $200, signed by Zuta, were disclosed to the press without comment by the investigators.

Both checks bore October, 1928, dates and Senator Starr explained that he had taken the checks as fees in civil cases in which he represented Zuta. Senator Starr is a candidate for re-election from the Thirteenth (South Chicago) District.

Canceled checks for about $1300 bearing the indorsement of H. Pinkelstein also were found. Pinkelstein was sought for questioning in connection with Zuta's death after a witness testified his picture bore a likeness to one of Zuta's executioners.

Weird and Dramatic Rites Awe Huge Crowd

Chants and Dances of Old Features of Event

ALBUQUERQUE (N. M.) Aug. 19. (Exclusive)—The Southwest's greatest spectacle, "The First American," opened its annual four-day run here today with a parade featuring the 1300 Indian performers in the show, State, city and show officials, cowboys and Spanish-Americans.

The first performance of the pageant of life in the Southwest from the Indian's idea of creation down to the final victory of the white man over the Southwest started with the coming of darkness this evening. The first night's performance took southwestern life from the Indian genesis to the Spanish conquest.

STANDS CROWDED

The great stands at the "First American" grounds were filled before nightfall. A reproduction of an Indian pueblo reared up its many set-back stories against the skyline of the Sandia Mountains. Dimly at the sides of the great set could be seen the campfires of the Indians with a silhouetted figure of a blanketed woman occasionally passing in front of the light, serving her brave with the evening meal. Suddenly the clamor of the crowd was shut off.

High on the topmost story of the Pueblo a nude Indian figure was silhouetted, his arms raised. Then in clear, long carrying tones Hasko Norwood, Navajo baritone, chanted the sunrise call of his tribe.

"The First American" was on.

SPECTATORS AWED

Then for tense breath-taking hours before the spectators unfolded the panorama of history as the Indian knows it. Dances, chants, pageantry and tableaux wheeled before the silent stands. Hundreds of Indians from a dozen tribes portrayed their own greatest art, the dance. Legends, stories, prayers and thanksgiving were set before the beholders in a manner and with a color and vividness that no art of the white man can give.

The most outstanding of the "acts," if they can be called that, were the firemaking with the fire-making chant in which fire was made in the primitive fashion; invocation to the sun god by Taptuka, Hopi tenor; the Cochiti maidens making corn into meal on the metate while they chanted, and the call for the rain dance by the Hopi snake priest.

WHITES HERALDED

The runners then arrived with the report of the coming of men as white as snow. They were heard by the council, then dispatched to the neighboring tribes who were called in to consider this strange phenomenon. Stalking forth in all the majesty of a great race now fallen but for a night returned to power Chief Yowlatchi prophesies.

The prophecy is translated by Clinton Anderson, long-time Indian friend. There follows a bewildering cinema in actuality of color, light and motion as the tribes dance in the light of the fires and the hidden spotlights. The cradle song is sung by Princess Louscha Enya, Indian star among the woman performers.

The Spanish are reported. The braves chant, then break into their wild war dance. The excitement rises to fever pitch with the sophisticated crowd of onlookers forgetting themselves and all else and entering into the spirit and fascination of the thing. The Spaniards suddenly appear marching. The battle is on.

WEIRD DEATH CHANT

Slowly the hundreds of near-nude, painted warriors are fought back to the ladders leading to their fortress. Chief Yowlatchi directs the redmen to make peace.

In stark tragic dignity the death chant rises into the now moon-lit air. There is a silence while an almost imperceptible moan floats over the rigid ranks of the watchers. Then in a blaze of glory and color the hundreds of performers suddenly flood into the foreground while the Spanish ensemble sings the song of the conqueror.

Nearly every tribe and pueblo in the Southwest is represented in the scenes and the dances. Locally famed old-timers and cowboys take part in all of the scenes following the first night.

RURAL DROUGHT STRANDS NAVIES

Midwest Rain That Didn't Fall in July Would Float World's Ships, It Seems

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19. (AP) The navies of the world could be floated many times over in the water which has failed to fall upon the United States through the drought.

J. B. Kincer, chief agricultural meteorologist of the Weather Bureau, today computed the deficiency in normal rainfall for the States east of the Rocky Mountains during the month of July and found it would aggregate 230,000,000,000 tons.

SPRINGFIELD (Ill.) Aug. 19. (AP) Reconstruction of the tomb of Abraham Lincoln here has necessitated moving the bodies of Mrs. Lincoln and the Lincoln children.

The bodies of Mrs. Lincoln and her sons have been placed in a mausoleum at the Oak Ridge Cemetery until the remodeling of the tomb is completed. State officials expect to finish the work by the latter part of November.

It will not be necessary to disturb Lincoln's body.

BANDS SEND BOYS OF '98 ON PARADE

Veterans on March Again; Wankowski of Venice up for National Commander

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 19. (AP)—The "Boys of '98," who carried the Stars and Stripes against Spain in Cuba, marched again today in a colorful parade that marked a high spot in the program of the thirty-second annual encampment of the United Spanish War Veterans. Veterans from every State paraded to the beat of drums and the blare of bugles as only military men can parade.

The parade was the feature of "Preparedness Day," the second day of the encampment which is to continue until Thursday.

Officers were nominated and will be elected tomorrow. Judge Edward S. Matthias, formerly of the Ohio State Supreme Court, and Robert Wankowski of Venice, Cal., were nominated for National Commander.

SPY STIGMA LIFTED FROM CALIFORNIAN

Hollister Man's Identity Stolen in War by Teuton; France to Make Amends

PARIS, Aug. 19. (AP)—A military tribunal will be convened tomorrow to remove from Charles Leopold Hartmann, hotel man of Hollister, Cal., the stigma that he was a German agent during the war.

Hartmann, an Alsatian, returning to France recently from California, was amazed to find his friends chilly in their reception. He sought out the Mayor of his little town, Nordheim, in the Bas-Rhein, and was informed that during the war he had been convicted as a traitor and spy.

Hartmann protested his innocence, saying he had never left California in the fifty-eight years he had resided there. An official investigation was begun. The authorities discovered another man, a German spy arrested in London at the beginning of the war, had obtained his freedom by adopting Mr. Hartmann's identity.

The verdict stigmatizing Hartmann will be set aside tomorrow with the apologies of the French tribunal.

Hawley Claims Driving Record

NEW YORK, Aug. 19. (AP)—Cecil Hawley, son of Representative Hawley of Oregon, arrived in New York tonight at 9:25 o'clock claiming a new record of 69h. 20m. for the 3000-mile automobile drive from Los Angeles to New York.

Hawley bettered the time of 84h. 20m. established by "Cannonball" Baker, whose New York-Los Angeles record of 69h. 29m. was also taken from him when Hawley reached the west coast last Saturday in an elapsed time of 67h. 38m.

HIGH WAGES HELD CURE FOR SLUMP

Industrial Leader Cites Huge Expansion Plans to President Hoover

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19. (AP)—President Hoover was told today by Eldridge R. Johnson, Moorstown, N. J., industrialist, that high wages are the medium to "snap us out" of the present business depression.

Johnson, former president of the Victor Company, said there is evidence business generally is on the upgrade. He said an indication of this was seen in plans of the R.-C.-A.-Victor Company to enlarge its force of 5000 men to a total of 17,500 before September 15; that the Campbell Soup Company expects to have more employees by that date than ever before, and that the Pennsylvania Railroad has contracted for electric locomotive equipment running into millions of dollars.

He gave as his opinion that these are only isolated instances of a general movement toward business recovery.

Johnson said it is "far easier to resume on a high wage basis than it is a low wage basis because on a high wage basis everything begins where it left off right away, whereas on a low-wage basis it will take years to build up again to the old standard."

6 out of 10 men and women are afflicted with kidney breakdown, many without knowledge for there are no warning symptoms. Yet if not checked, kidney ailment may develop into serious ills.

Extensive research by medical authority has brought to light this fact: that kidneys excrete 75% of waste matter from the system, much in too concentrated form. Excessive strain is thus placed on delicate kidney cells, and eventually they break down. Poisons which should be eliminated, are harbored and turned back into the system. It is here that more serious diseases originate.

In Puritas drinking water, doctors find the most effective combatant to this increasingly prevalent ailment. Puritas acts to dilute concentrated poisons, absorb and carry them off. Minerals found in ordinary water, which add further to congestion, are eliminated in Puritas. Thus worn kidneys have a chance to repair. Normal kidneys are constantly protected.

So, on eminent medical advice, thousands are drinking 6 glasses of Puritas daily. Through scientific distillation, all minerals and impurities are removed. Thus Puritas is the purest drink for young or old.

With your first drink of Puritas you will note its different taste, and each drink becomes more enjoyable. Thus Puritas gives you both health and taste, a happy combination you'll agree.

GANDHI MAKES PEACE PROFFER

Jailed Indian Revolt Head Scales Down Demands

Dominion Status Support by Labor Party Asked

Amnesty Also Demanded for Political Prisoners

LONDON, Aug. 19. (AP)—Political Britain speculated tonight as to the probable outcome of a peace offer reported to have been made to the government by Mahatma Gandhi, imprisoned leader of the Nationalist civil disobedience movement in India.

Gandhi is said to have offered to call off his campaign if the Labor government and the Viceroy of India, Lord Irwin, will pledge to work for dominion status at the forthcoming round-table conference, and grant amnesty to political prisoners.

LETTER TO VICEROY

The Nationalist chieftain wrote a letter to the viceroy following conferences last week with four fellow prisoners—Pandit Motilal Nehru, Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, Mrs. Sarojini Naidu and Vallabhai Patel—and two emissaries of peace, Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru and M. Jayakar. That letter was due to be delivered to Lord Irwin today, so the purported contents evidently came from a leak on the part of some participant.

Observers feel some important government view will be revealed within thirty-six hours—possibly publication of the Gandhi letter, with assent or refusal to pledging efforts toward dominion status at the round-table sessions.

CHANGE IN ATTITUDE

Since Lord Irwin, speaking for the Labor government, has stated repeatedly that such status is the ultimate goal of India it is felt Gandhi is seeking to speed the work toward that end, as he has known all along of the viceroy's attitude.

The Gandhi view, if reports are correct regarding the contents of his letter, represents a considerable change in attitude. Hitherto he has held out for complete independence as the price of ending the non-cooperation movement. Now, it is said, he realizes that MacDonald government cannot grant dominion status because of opposition strength, but can furnish a potent weapon in fighting for it.

AFGHAN TRIBESMEN CO'ED BY AIR FORCE

PESHAWAR (India) Aug. 19. (AP) Operations by the Royal Air Force in the Kurram area were suspended today when the Massouds, Afghan tribesmen, made definite overtures for a cessation of hostilities.

While this was taking place the Ahmadzai and Ghilzai were massing forces on Peiwarkotal, with the prospect of a serious engagement in that quarter.

RUMMY GAME TO LAST UNTIL DROUGHT'S BROKEN

FAIRMONT (Minn.) Aug. 19. (AP)—Whatever connection there may be between rummy and rain is not immediately apparent, but nevertheless the Fairmont Recreation Club has started a rummy game which is to continue as long as the drought.

The country around Fairmont has not had a good rain since July 3. Pastures are burned out and corn production has been cut 25 per cent.

A dozen members of the club, farmers and merchants, were talking it over last night, wondering what they could do about it. Somebody recalled the college boys who didn't shave until their football team won. The upshot of it was the decision to keep right on playing rummy in shifts, day and night, until there is a good soaking rain.

Of course, it may be just a dodge to get away from home.

WOMEN DIFFER ON VOTE VALUE

Emily Blair Disappointed at Her Sex in Politics

Other Leaders Assert Tone of Government Gains

Observance on Anniversary of Ballot Planned

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19. (AP)—Emily Newell Blair, who campaigned for suffrage in Missouri back in 1914, is "frankly quite discouraged about women in politics."

She made this known today in her contribution to a compendium of opinions gathered by the League of Women Voters.

All these views, gathered from notables of both sexes, are to be published for the tenth anniversary on the 26th inst. of the signing by former Secretary of State Colby of the proclamation that actually culminated the movement.

"I am afraid," Mrs. Blair said, "the suffragists have made the same mistake as the temperance group. Both of them thought with their victory they had only to defend their position; and so, just as the Women's Christian Temperance Union stopped its educational work for temperance and devoted itself to claiming the Eighteenth Amendment worked, so the suffragists stopped their educational work of convincing people that women had a right to equality and devoted themselves to other interests."

"FORWARD STEP"

Mary E. Woolley, president of Mount Holyoke College, in responding to the league's query, said:

"The granting of the suffrage to women has not brought about the millenium, but it has meant a decided step toward better government . . . There are indifferent citizens among women as among men, but the addition of women certainly has meant a large increase in the number of citizens who are both conscientious and intelligent."

Said Newton D. Baker, former War Secretary: "The years of experience under the Nineteenth Amendment are not enough to enable me to express any positive judgments as to the use which women in general have made of their suffrage privilege."

He added, however, educational processes women have set up to train themselves seem to him "admirable in spirit and accomplishment," and that "a great question of political right is settled."

OFFICIALS WATCHED

Mrs. Raymond Brown, editor of the Woman's Journal, gave as her opinion "both men and women are questioning government processes and are watching the actions of elected officials as they never used to do."

Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt said women have made "a contribution to better government," and that "wherever they have taken part in local politics, there is no question but what the general standards have gone up."

Dr. W. A. Neilson, president of Smith College, put into words what many who were consulted seemed to feel. He said, "It is a commonplace that no great political change produces all the evil its opponents predicted or all the good its supporters hoped for."

In his observation, he added, fears of the opponents of women's suffrage "have been realized hardly at all," while the high hopes of its supporters "are being gradually but steadily fulfilled."

NEGRO SHOT TO DEATH BY LYNCH MOB

North Carolinan, Accused of Attacking Two Small Girls, Strung Up to Tree

TARBORO (N. C.) Aug. 19. (AP)—Oliver Moore, 29-year-old Negro tenant farmer, accused of attacking his landlord's two small daughters, was dragged from the Edgecombe County Jail by a mob early today, strung to a tree and shot to death.

The body was found by Sheriff Bardin of Edgecombe county several hours after Moore was removed from the jail, and an inquest was started under the tall pine tree where the Negro was killed.

Deputy Sheriff Watson of Edgecombe county said the mob leaders gained admittance by pretending they had brought a prisoner. Once inside, they forced the deputy to surrender Moore and dragged him outside to an automobile.

Closed Banks Sink Another

GARY (Ind.) Aug. 19. (AP)—Another Gary bank was closed today, the fourth within a week.

The Gary Labor Bank, organized in 1925, announced it will remain closed to protect its resources. A small run upon the institution late yesterday, blamed upon uneasiness due to the closing of the Mid-City State Bank and its branch, the Fifth-avenue Bank, led the directors to take this action, they explained.

VOTERS' CLUB FILES PAPERS WITH STATE

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 19. (AP)—The Voters' Club of Los Angeles, Ltd., filed articles of incorporation with the Secretary of State here today. The club is to interest itself as a nonpartisan organization in political, legislative and civic campaigns, indorse candidates and otherwise concern itself with matters of such nature before the people. Directors named are Victor L. Benton, G. Nightingale and H. J. Nerdick of Los Angeles.

Average Month's Wages of Pilots Set at $550

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19. (AP)—Average monthly wages being earned by airplane pilots of the highest capability range around $550 per month.

The aeronautics branch of the Commerce Department ascertained the flight pay as a result of a survey of pay rolls of air mail and passenger-carrying enterprises for the first six months of 1930 and the last half of 1929.

The compilations indicated the average pilot in these services received the straight salary averaging $189 per month and, in addition, 5 cents per mile for day flying and 10 cents per mile for night flying. The top wages of $850 were received by a group of mail pilots regularly flying at night.

WE WANT you to call, not with the idea of buying, but just for the purpose of examining and admiring this sensational new design in wedding rings. This is your invitation—meant most sincerely for every young woman who is planning an Autumn wedding.

We assure you there will be no obligation on your part whatever, and no attempt made to persuade you to purchase. We merely want girls who have an appreciation of the fashionable and artistic to see this dainty ring, hold it in their hands, examine it and admire it . . . If you are a bit timid, at least see it in our window display.

The new ring supplies what has always been missing—a dainty circlet in which the segment containing the diamonds is limited to the top of the ring, where the stones are in view. It avoids the wasteful placing of diamonds on the sides and under the finger. The smart little French loops make it possible for the wearer to know at all times that the diamonds are in their proper position. This feature was lacking in the symmetrical wedding rings, as a consequence of which more diamonds had to be used to compensate for the slipping of the ring which brought into view the plain section.

The ring, as pictured, comes in both gold and platinum, employing seven fine diamonds. An interesting point is the fact that it can be perfectly matched in an engagement ring, the manufacturer having employed the same artistic motif in a variety of jeweled designs.

Again we sincerely invite you to call at our Seventh Street store and examine it.

Monthly payment terms at no extra cost.

PAUL LUKAS WINS STAR ROLE

Leni Stengel to Play Feminine Lead in "Beau Ideal;" Santley Writes, Directs and Acts for Pathe; Emmett Flynn Signs With Fox

BY GRACE KINGSLEY

When a player wins a star role through hard work and fine achievement in lesser parts, nobody is going to have any criticism to make.

PAUL LUKAS

Such a player is Paul Lukas, who, as a reward for his work as a leading character actor in more than sixteen pictures during the past two and a half years, has been assigned by Paramount to the title role in "Ladies' Man," Rupert Hughes's novel of New York's most dangerous and fascinating man.

In announcing this production and the casting of Lukas, Jesse L. Lasky states that the actor has become one of the talking picture favorites of the day through his portrayals in such films as "Anybody's Woman," "Young Eagles" and others.

While no definite announcement is made, it is whispered that it is likely that Lukas may be given stellar honors right along.

The player came to Hollywood from Hungary less than three years ago to appear in "Three Sinners" and "Loves of an Actress" with Pola Negri. He remained under contract to Paramount. In his native country he was a stage star, often termed "the John Barrymore of Hungary."

Louis Gasnier and David Burton are to direct "Ladies' Man." Bartlett Cormack, author of "The Racket," is adapting the story to the screen.

R.-K.-O. CHOOSES LEAD FOR "BEAU IDEAL"

The suspense is over at last, and R.-K.-O. announces that the organization has at last picked out a leading lady for "Beau Ideal," which Herbert Brenon is to direct.

Leni Stengel is the fortunate lady. Such excellent work did she do in "Half Shot at Sunrise," that Brenon decided she was the only actress he could think of who could do justice to the part of "the angel of death," which is the way the leading feminine character is described in the story.

Miss Stengel was formerly of the stage in New York, where she appeared in a number of productions.

SANTLEY WILL BE PATHE NOTABLE

Something in the nature of a Pooh-Bah is what Joseph Santley will be in connection with Pathe and his next picture for that organization.

JOSEPH SANTLEY

Not only will he direct Helen Twelvetrees in "Cross Your Fingers," but he confesses to the title of author of the story; and as if this were not enough he will likewise play a role in it.

When Santley signed with Pathe, his contract stipulated that he was to act, direct and write, so it looks as though the concern were getting its money's worth.

Emmett Flynn With Fox

How history does repeat itself. Again the truism is suggested by the fact that Emmett Flynn is signing a contract with Fox once more.

Not only this, but Flynn, who gave the world one of the best pictures ever made when he directed the silent version of Mark Twain's "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court," is once more set at a task in connection with this very story.

For Flynn is signed, not as a director this time, but on a long-term contract as scenario writer; and his very first task is to write the film adaptation and dialogue of the "Yankee." Personally, I'd like to see him direct it. But in any case we may be sure of a fine adaptation.

Adamae Vaughn to Wed

News reached us yesterday of another Hollywood romance about to reach the stage of matrimony.

ADAMAE VAUGHN

Adamae Vaughn, sister of Alberta Vaughn, tells us that she is to marry Val D'Auvray, a French writer, whom she has known for several months, and who is now residing in this country.

Miss Vaughn expects to go to Europe to live. The wedding date is not yet definitely set, but is expected to take place some time in October.

Fox to Borrow Denny

It appears that when Reginald Denny completes his current role for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, he will be loaned to Fox for a star role in one of that organization's forthcoming productions. Mystery surrounds the transaction, however, and no details could be learned last night.

Lucien Littlefield Gets Break

Lucien Littlefield is one actor who is getting a great "break" nowadays. No sooner had he signed for a role in "Tom Sawyer," with Paramount, than he was sought by the Christies for a part in "Charlie's Aunt," which is to be commenced at about the time that "Tom Sawyer" is finished.

LeBaron Departs

William LeBaron, R.-K.-O. head official, is leaving tonight for New York, where he is to shop for plays to be made into talking pictures by his organization. He expects to be gone three weeks at least.

Milt Howe, Too

Milt Howe, who puts pieces in the papers for Paramount, is to be married soon to Mrs. Lorene Blakeslee, widow, after an engagement of two years.

The pair will be married at the home of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Howe, on the 30th inst. They will honeymoon at a San Bernardino mountain resort.

Victor Potel in It

Victor Potel, famous a number of years ago as Slippery Slim in Broncho Billy's Essanay westerns, has been cast in a comedy role in "The Virtuous Sin," Paramount's filmization of Lajos Zilahy's play, "The General."

After having stepped from two-reelers into comedy relief parts in feature productions, Potel has divided his time in recent years among the activities of acting and writing, and directing two-reel comedies.

STONE WINS PART

After two score tests for the role of Sol Levy in R.-K.-O. Radio Pictures "Cimarron," George Stone has won the part.

"Hell's Angels" Player to Take Bows on Stage

Tonight a festive welcome will be extended to James Hall, "Hell's Angels" player, who starts making personal appearances at Grauman's Chinese Theater in connection with the showing of the Howard Hughes aerial spectacle.

Various civic and veterans' organizations are planning to send special delegations to tonight's performance, it is said. In the drama of the air Hall plays the part of a flyer with Ben Lyon as his brother. Jean Harlow in the leading feminine role provides the romantic interest.

Recognition as an outstanding player in the film world came to Hall as the result of his portrayal as the self-sacrificing brother in the production, it is said.

MRS. CALHOUN IMPROVES

Mrs. Florence Calhoun, mother of Alice Calhoun, motion-picture actress, is recovering at her home, 1110 Benedict Canyon Drive, from injuries suffered in a fall last Tuesday. About to start with her daughter for a dinner at the Pleiades Club, Mrs. Calhoun slipped on the polished floor of her home, fracturing her arm and receiving other injuries for which she was treated at the Emergency Hospital.

CIMINI OFFERS BOWL PROGRAM

Operatic Maestro Conducts Varied Numbers

Summer Concerto Novelty of Presentation

Korngold Suite and "Rienzi" Overture Approved

BY EDWIN SCHALLERT

Pietro Cimini last night assumed the baton for a single concert at the Hollywood Bowl. His program preluded the coming of Enrique Arbos, who will finish out the season as conductor. An audience of good size attended this intervening event, and warmly applauded and bravoed the Italian operatic maestro at the conclusion.

It is a test, of course, to offer a musical director but one concert in which to try his mettle. It is seldom, indeed, that any conductor truly "arrives" until a second or third at the Bowl.

However, the Cimini presentation was colorful and varied enough to be interesting on its own account, and in the case of the Korngold Suite from Incidental Music to Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing" and the final overture to "Rienzi," it was ably and well played.

The Cimini program was distinguished by the offering of Concerto dell' Estate (Summer Concerto) by Ildebrando Pizzetti as a novelty. The title connoted something appropriate to the Bowl's own summer atmosphere, and the work itself is pleasing as perhaps a summery composition should be.

Though of recent origin, it exhibits no revolutionary tendencies that would overwhelm, and seems a trifle long drawn out. The first movement is the richest in inspiration and the finale is lively in a degree. The instrumental effects are often attractive, but there are few sustained episodes of brilliance. Still, as a novelty, it was worth the hearing.

The Korngold Suite is an unusually delightful affair from the Overture to the final Hornpipe. The March of the Watch is clever and grotesque (it could have been a bit more grotesque in the interpretation) and "The Garden Scene" possesses an illuminating beauty. Throughout this work the piano part was exceptionally well played by Clarity Mellolinne, and the general interpretation by orchestra under Cimini's direction was very effective.

The Symphonic Suite, "The Sea," by Debussy and "In Springtime," overture by Goldmark, were also presented, the Goldmark number being an engaging feature of the program. There were times in the Debussy number when the full response of the orchestra did not seem secured. The work itself has abundant atmosphere, and the mood of the sea is limned enticingly in the impressionistic writing of the composer.

Cimini brought an earnestness and enthusiasm to his renditions throughout the program, that exerted their most telling effect, especially in the later selections.

Joe E. Brown Plans Lengthy Vacation Trip

Joe E. Brown will leave Hollywood in a few days for a nation-wide tour which will take him eventually to Europe for a three months' vacation, the first he has taken in ten years.

En route east Brown will make a series of personal appearances in connection with the showing of his First National picture, "Tow Speed," which is showing currently at Warner Brothers' Hollywood Theater. He will then attend the world's series, being a baseball fan and former professional player.

Brown will sail for Europe on October 1, to be gone for three months. The actor is under contract to First National and will start work on a new picture immediately on his return.

'Cup of Sugar' in Rehearsal

Rehearsals of the marital farce, "A Cup of Sugar," from the pen of Lynn Starling, are progressing in a satisfactory manner, according to William P. Trumbull, who is producing the piece which is to open at a local playhouse during the next fortnight.

Starling has already had three plays produced in Los Angeles, namely, "In His Arms," "Weak Sisters," and "Meet the Wife."

The cast of the new effort includes Dorothy Mackaye, Barton Hepburn, Douglas Gilmore, Boyd Irwin, Diana Smirnova and others. Trumbull expects to close negotiations for a theater to house the forthcoming production and announce the exact opening date within the next few days. George Sherwood is directing.

Musical Revue Planned Here

"Temptations of 1930" will provide opportunity to Broadway celebrities now in Hollywood to take part in their own musical revue. It will have its opening in September at the Mayan Theater, according to an announcement. Preparations for the show already have been launched by Franklin Productions.

"Temptations of 1930" is planned to be so elaborate in character as to rival George White's "Scandals" and Earl Carroll's "Vanities," it is reported. The production is to have as a background a beauty chorus of 100.

ARTICLES RECEIVED

Chief Bacon Rind, Osage Indian, who will appear in Radio Pictures' "Cimarron," has shipped a carload of Indian-made articles to Wesley Ruggles, the director. They were donated by the Osage tribe and will be used as properties in the picture.

"Champion" Hits Stride on Stage

Claud Allister, Grant Mitchell and Doris Lloyd Enact the principal roles of the comedy, which is attracting favorable attention at the Hollywood Playhouse.

STAGE SHOWS ANNOUNCED

Produced at the Hollywood Paramount studios with the entire personnel, talent and equipment of this organization drafted for their assembling, stage shows will start Thursday, the 28th inst., at the Paramount Theater.

To continue as a regular feature at the theater, the performances will follow no set type, according to Harry Gourlain, director of Paramount stage show productions for the Pacific Coast, but will run the gamut of the entertainment field, incorporating a complete change with each week's performance.

Newly signed as a director on the Paramount lot, Busby Berkley has been chosen from among the studio directors to direct the first presentation.

An additional feature for the Paramount Theater will be the inauguration of an orchestra, augmented for the rendition of both syncopated music and overtures of the popular classics, under the direction of Jules Buffano.

PASADENANS ENACT WEIRD MELODRAMA

"Dracula," Built Upon Old-Time Superstition, Given Fine Performance

BY KATHERINE T. VON BLON

"Dracula," spectral melodrama of the middle ages, brought down to date by Bram Stoker in his novel and dramatized by Hamilton Deane and John Bladerston, is being given with weirdly melancnouc snading and direction at Pasadena Community Playhouse. Indeed the Pasadenans wring the ultimate shiver from every situation. The sets by Ruth Burdick, done in the broad Russian manner, contribute much to the mood and increase the forward movement of the play.

Dramas built upon age-old superstition invariably possess a strange fascination for the public, and "Dracula" is no exception. One supernatural variation of the idea is that the soul of a living man during sleep leaves his body and sucks the blood of other human creatures.

The fact that the sinister Count Dracula in all his satanic horror is introduced in the midst of a charming English milieu, where he is accepted as the scion of aristocracy which he claims to be, makes for significant drama by its accentuated contrasts. The mysterious illness of the daughter of the physician's household, whose very life seems to be ebbing, and the presence of a famous German scientific man who has delved into the lore of the past are vital factors in the development of the mordant theme.

The erudite German professor, Dr. Van Helsing, investigating every angle and individual of the case, discovers that the last Count Dracula died 500 years ago. Through his knowledge of medieval craft he is able to uncover the fact that this is the same diabolical Count Voivode Dracula, who for five centuries has been existing upon the blood of his helpless victims. The airplane has made it possible to reach London, to invade the placid environs of Dr. Seward's English home, with its almost phlegmatic stoicism toward every form of superstition. The scientist with difficulty convinces his Anglo-Saxon confreres, but aptly remarks, "Ah, Seward, let me remind you that the superstitions of today are the scientific facts of tomorrow."

The cast is well chosen and acts with fine precision. Honors are rather evenly divided between Charles Levison as the maniac Renfield, Victor Jory as the dread Count Dracula and Ralph Freud as Van Helsing. To the part of the maniac Levison brings tremendous tension and that haunting pathos which ever clings to the mentally unsound. Victor Jory as the uncanny "bat man," Count Dracula, achieved some melodramatic and hair-raising moments, and manages to make the character plausible, a real accomplishment. His appearance is commanding and voice of masterful assurance, but not quite sufficiently sepulchral in tone. Ralph Freud is delightfully human as the professor. Mary Alice Wickizer gives a capable reading of the part of the delicately nurtured girl. Others in the cast are Mora Martin, Robert Young, Norval Mitchell, Fred Moore and Kay Fish.

'Dawn Patrol' Performed by All-Male Cast

For the first time in a total of thirty-six pictures in which he has been starred, Richard Barthelmess appears in "The Wawn Patrol," now at the Orpheum Theater, without the support of a leading lady.

In this First National air drama the theme is concerned with the strong bonds of friendship, born of their cheerful courage and valor in facing constant danger, which united the men and youths of the Royal Flying Corps during the World War. This explains the absence of feminine players, it is said.

The two leading men playing the principal supporting roles in "The Dawn Patrol" are Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and Neil Hamilton. Others are Gardner James, William Janney, Frank McHugh and James Finlayson. Howard Hawks directed.

Film Actress to Appear on Stage Tonight

Sally Starr, who has the leading role opposite Eddie Quillan, and the thirteen talented children featured in "Night Work," will appear on the stage of the R.-K.-O. Theater tonight.

Headlining the new show opening tomorrow will be Mr. Wu and his Chinese Show Boat, featuring Miss Jue Sue Tai and twenty other orientals in a modern song-and-dance revue.

"The Czar of Broadway," Universal's drama of the underworld, is to be the new screen attraction. John Wray, who portrayed Himmelstoss in "All Quiet," Betty Compson and John Harron have the leading roles. The supporting cast includes Claude Allister, King Bagot, Edmund Breese and Wilbur Mack.

Flying Record of Interest to Newsreel House

The recent lowering of the coast-to-coast flying record by Capt. Hawks is especially interesting to the management of the Newsreel Theater, which opens Saturday noon in the former President Theater on Broadway.

In addition to being a fine subject for newsreel showing the flight assures the follower of the news in sound and pictures that he will be able to view the important happenings in the East within a few days of their occurrence, through air transportation of the films, it is said. The records of local events are to be handled with the same relative speed, according to plans announced.

Complete changes of program will take place twice each week, with the addition of special news items to each program as they arrive.

COSTUMES PLANNED

Max Ree, art director at Radio Pictures' studio, has completed set and costume plans for his fiftieth picture with that organization.

ARTISTS TO SCREEN TALE BY WRIGHT

"Eyes of World," Adapted from Novel, Starts Local Engagement Today

"Eyes of the World," the talking picturisation of Harold Bell Wright's novel, has its local premiere at the United Artists' Theater today. The cast of the film will appear at tonight's performance, the management announces.

Among those who will be presented to the audience are Una Merkel, John Holland, Nance O'Neil, Fern Andra, Hugh Huntley, Frederic Burt, Brandon Hurst, Myra Hubert and Eulalie Jensen.

"Eyes of the World" is the first of the Wright stories to be made into a talking film. Henry King directed the production which is presented by Inspiration Pictures and Sol Lesser.

A Mack Sennett comedy, "Average Husbands," is also on the new program. It is enacted by Natalie Moorhead, Pat O'Malley, Andy Clyde and Albert Conti. Other short subjects will be included.

"ALL QUIET" BOOKED AT CRITERION

Film Based on Remarque Story will Continue Run Started at Circle

"All Quiet on the Western Front" will be the next attraction at the Criterion Theater, starting Friday, the 29th inst. "Our Blushing Brides," current attraction, remains for nine days more.

"All Quiet," it is said, could have run at the Carthay Circle Theater for six months more, such was its popularity. In view of this untapped reservoir of patronage, it was decided, with Greater Talkie Season approaching, to place the film at the Criterion.

The publishers of the Remarque book, on which the picture is based, report that sales are steadily increasing. Rumor has it that Norma Shearer in "Let us Be Gay," will follow "All Quiet on the Western Front" at the Criterion.

Pantages will Screen Clara Bow Vehicle

When "Love Among the Millionaires" opens a week's engagement on the screen at Pantages Hollywood tomorrow Clara Bow will be seen in her first musical romance. A complete change of program brings Fanchon and Marco's "Busy Bee Idea" as the stage presentation.

The new bill leans heavily to comedy with Skeets Gallagher, Stuart Erwin, Mitzi Green, Stanley Smith, Barbara Bennett and others assisting in producing laughs in the picture, which was directed by Frank Tuttle.

A girls' band is a novel feature of the new stage revue.

"Romance" will Open Tomorrow

"Women Everywhere" closes its screen engagement at the Boulevard Theater tonight. J. Harold Murray and Fifi Dorsay have the featured roles.

Tomorrow's change of program brings "Romance," starring Greta Garbo, to the screen for one week. Clarence Brown directed the film for M.-G.-M. Lewis Stone heads the supporting cast.

CARDINAL GIVES PURITAN PRAISE

Knights of Columbus Told of Good Points

Schooling in Faith Urged at Boston Session

Catholic Prelate Warns of Wealth's Influence

BOSTON, Aug. 19. (AP)—Catholics who sacrifice the religion of their children "to the pure worldliness of so-called fashionable schools" today were reminded by Cardinal O'Connell, archbishop of Boston, that the "Puritans insisted upon their children being instructed in their own faith."

Cardinal O'Connell made his address at the conclusion of a mass at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross, which opened the forty-eighth annual convention of the Knights of Columbus.

PRAISES PURITANS

Assuming that the convention is being held here this year because of the local observance of the tercentenary of the Massachusetts Bay Colony, Cardinal O'Connell discussed the early history of the colonies. He then said:

"History proves that goodness and virtue and righteousness cannot be forced on a people by statutes or by machine guns. But while we shudder at the fierce austerity of Puritan life, we would do well not to forget that luxury and wealth may lead to the corruption even of the best and destroy the very foundation of this nation, founded by sturdy men in poverty and privation.

WARNS OF WEALTH

"The mistake the Puritans made was to confound the gift and its use with the abuse of the gift. Our nation has become the richest, perhaps, in the world. It would be a crime in our abundance to forget that the luxury to which wealth often leads is the first step to decadence and degeneracy, personal and national.

"The Puritan, it is true, had a hard and harsh sense of duty and of the force of the law. It would seem from indications all around us that this sense is growing weaker instead of stronger. The Puritan venerated his religion, such as it was. It would appear from what we see about us that this virtue is not growing in their descendants.

SCHOOLED IN FAITH

"The Puritans insisted upon their children betiy instructed in their own faith. We might well call this to the attention of some of our own Catholics of the wealthier class who sacrifice the religion of their children to the pure worldliness of the so-called fashionable schools.

"The Puritan, whatever his failures, was a man who stood straight up for his principles. It was that uprightness and sturdiness that gave strength to him and his community."

QUESTIONED BY CURLEY

Mayor Curley of Boston, who followed the cardinal, asked the Knights three questions:

"Did you ever stop to consider how it is possible for a man to be a good citizen and a good Catholic if he travels in adversity?

"Is it not time the intellect of America is applied to some character of solution of the age-old problem of banishing poverty from the richest nation in this world?

"I wonder if this land is incapable of settling the problem of unemployment, the breeding spot of poverty, disease, crime and ignorance?"

And Mayor Curley closed with the hope the convention will give some thought to the subject.

This afternoon, following a business meeting, the delegates, numbering several thousand, devoted to an historical pilgrimage to Bunker Hill and to Lexington and Concord, where the American revolution started.

CATHOLIC WOMEN ADOPT POLICIES ON ELECTIONS

BALTIMORE, Aug. 19. (AP)—Members of the National Catholic Women's Union were urged today in resolutions adopted at the annual convention here to assist in electing candidates for the national House of Representatives and State legislatures this fall with "sound ethical, moral and Christian principles."

"Repeating the words of a distinguished English Catholic," said the resolution, "we would impress upon our Catholic women that 'from now on it will become more imperative for Catholics to defend morals rather than dogma.'"

The women were advised, however, to be guided by "conscientious and prudent intelligence."

Resolutions against birth control, inordinate love of luxuries and jury service for women also were adopted at the convention, held in connection with that of the Catholic Central Verein of America.

PRISON RUM SPREE TOLL INCREASES

Second Convict Dies at San Quentin as Result of Alcohol Poisoning

SAN QUENTIN, Aug. 19. (Exclusive)—George B. Cassel, Los Angeles robber and editor of the Walled City News, a publication by and for prisoners, died today, making the second death resulting from a "wood alcohol cocktail" party last Sunday in the offices of the News and the Bulletin, another prison publication. Cassel's death followed that of Charles Brown, 30 years of age, associate editor of the Bulletin, San Francisco robber, and "host" at the party. A Coroner's jury returned a verdict in each case of "death from drinking a fluid containing wood alcohol."

Joseph Mackin and John Lawler, two other victims of the "party," remain in a critical condition. Mackin was sentenced from Los Angeles and Lawler from San Francisco.

TARZAN AND THE LOST EMPIRE

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

For three weeks Tarzan remained in the home of Maximus Praeclarus. Festivitas, Praeclarus' mother, conceived a liking for the bronzed barbarian and set about to teach him Latin. Always quick at languages, Tarzan soon had a working knowledge of the classic tongue and talked to Festivitas by the hour.

Meanwhile the slave, Mpingu, had been talking to intimate friends about the secret guest in his master's house. The talk spread and the result was that one day in the market place Mpingu felt a heavy hand laid upon his shoulder, and, turning, he found himself looking into the face of a centurion of the palace guard.

"Come with me," said the centurion. Mpingu drew back afraid. "What do you want of me?" he asked. "I have done nothing." "Come," ordered the soldier, "I was not sent to confer with you but to get you." And he jerked Mpingu roughly toward him and pushed him back among the legionaries who stood in file behind him.

A crowd had gathered, as crowds always do when a man is arrested, but the centurion ignored them, and the people fell aside as the soldiers marched away with the black slave. Mpingu thought he would be taken to the dungeons of the Colosseum, but presently he realized he was being headed toward the palace, and terror filled him.

Grains React on Report of New Rainfall

CHICAGO, Aug. 19. (AP)—New rainfall tended to alleviate corn crop distress did much today to pull all grain values down. Private estimates that North American wheat export business today totals 2,000,000 bushels, when prices temporarily went to within 1c of the season's lowest points, and oats reached a fresh bottom level. Under heavy stop-loss selling, the corn market dropped to 11½c a bushel below recent top figures.

Bullish suggestions on corn were nervous, 9@11½c net lower, compared with yesterday's finish, closed irregular at 1c net decline to 1c advance, with oats 1@1½c down, but provisions showing 2@12c advance.

Corn headed downgrade as soon as business began, further rainfall in drought territory leading numerous holders to lose confidence. Nevertheless, the market afterward at times displayed surprising power to rally, though not in a lasting form. The rallies were associated with pessimistic advices from crop experts, who said that for 150 miles between Marshalltown and Denison, Iowa, harvest would be well up average half a crop of corn, and even heavy rains now would not greatly change the situation. Other reports which stimulated considerable buying of corn told of extremely damaging conditions of the crop in Central and Northern Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Nebraska, Missouri and southern sections of Minnesota and South Dakota, including a statement that 1900 stalks examined in Illinois and Indiana averaged only about one ear to every two stalks.

Wheat values were unsettled not only by the hard slumps in the corn market but also by indications of unusual weakness of movement of Canadian wheat away from first hands. Oats were depressed by the downturns of the corn market.

Provisions reflected the circumstance that hog values were the highest today since March, and that cash interests and investors were buying.

UNITED ARTISTS DEAL NEAR

Schenck May Add Howard Hughes as Substantial Partner-Producer; Theaters Doing Better

BY EARLE E. CROWE

Joseph M. Schenck, president and chairman of the United Artists Corporation, may soon have the youthful Howard Hughes, independent producer, as one of his active partners in the motion-picture business.

Mr. Schenck confirmed yesterday the report that discussions looking to a substantial investment by Hughes in United Artists are under way. Nothing definite has been decided, he said, and it is possible the conversations may terminate in purely a releasing arrangement for the Hughes pictures.

While it is understood the Caddo Company, owned by Mr. Hughes, is already a stockholder in Art Cinema Corporation, the holding company for United Artists, the current negotiations are believed to contemplate a larger investment and active participation in the affairs of the United Artists group.

CONTRACTS INVOLVED

Mr. Schenck intimated the satisfactory conclusion of these negotiations will depend in part on the possibility of revising the contracts under which United Artists release fifteen pictures annually through Paramount, Warner Brothers and Fox Film. A higher quota would have to be arranged in order to handle the Hughes pictures.

"Hell's Angels," produced by the Caddo Company, was released under the United Artists contract, which only covered the one picture. The Hughes company is faced now with the necessity of providing for future releases in the key cities and in the best houses.

As the owner of the Multicolor Films, Inc., a company controlling a color process, Mr. Hughes is also interested in finding work for his new laboratory now under construction in Hollywood. The United Artists affiliation might be expected to result in a profitable market for the Multicolor process.

As a partner and producer in the United Artists group, Mr. Hughes would be associated with Douglas Fairbanks, Mary Pickford, Charlie Chaplin, Norma Talmadge, Gloria Swanson, Samuel Goldwyn and D. W. Griffith. Other United Artist stars are Dolores Del Rio, Al Jolson, Joan Bennett, Ronald Colman, Evelyn Laye and others.

RECEIPTS PICK UP

While Mr. Schenck was reticent in discussing details of the Hughes negotiations, he did comment cheerfully on the improvement recorded lately in United Artists box-office receipts. In the twenty houses in the United Artists circuit, receipts have increased from 40 to 50 per cent in the last two weeks, he said.

"Raffles," produced by Sam Goldwyn as the first picture on the new United Artists schedule, is turning out a big box winner, Mr. Schenck said, and he expects equal results from "Lottery Bride," "Abraham Lincoln" and "Whoopee." In its first week at the United Artists' Rivoli in New York, the receipts from "Raffles" were approximately $56,000, which is considered more than satisfactory for this time of the year.

BORDEN CO.

BORDEN COMPANY

Although originally organized to manufacture condensed milk, Borden has developed into a large holding company whose some 120 subsidiaries are engaged in the manufacture and distribution of an extensive line of dairy products, the most important of which include ice cream, fresh, condensed and malted milk, butter, eggs and cheese. Distribution of the company's products is chiefly conducted in the metropolitan areas around New York City, Chicago and Detroit. The properties of the company are operated by four subsidiary divisions, grouped for handling the milk, ice cream, manufactured foods, and produce activities of the organization.

Sales and net income have steadily grown since 1924 with especially large increases shown in 1928 and 1929. Rapid acquisition of subsidiary units in the past five years has necessitated additional financing of large proportions, in connection with which stockholders have received valuable rights in addition to regular cash dividends at increasing rates. Although interim earnings statements are not issued, it is believed that current progress is relatively good in spite of the business depression.

Earnings of Republic Company Decrease for Third Quarter

Republic Supply Company of California for the third quarter of the current fiscal year ended July 31, last, showed net earnings of $78,203.06, after all charges, including depreciation and Federal taxes, equal to 39 cents a share on 200,000 shares of capital stock outstanding, according to a statement issued yesterday by J. A. Crawford, president.

In the similar period of last year the company reported net earnings of $246,037, equal to $1.24 a share on the same share basis.

For the nine months ended July 31, last, net earnings after all charges and Federal taxes, totaled $403,659, equal to $2.02 a share on 200,000 shares, as against $733,711, or $3.67 a share on the same number of shares in the 1929 period.

Four quarterly dividends at the rate of $3 per share per annum were declared for the current fiscal year last fall. The company continues to maintain a stronge current position, it was stated.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 19. (AP)—An early advance of 25 to 28 points in cotton here today on covering and buying for a reaction promoted by relatively steady Liverpool cables met a renewal of more or less general selling. This was encouraged by reports of rains or showers in the Mississippi Valley and the failure of the early rally to attract a more aggressive demand. New December contracts which had advanced to 11.33 on the early buying, broke to 10.89 or 4 points net lower and into new low ground for the movement, but offerings tapered off at this figure and the midafternoon market showed rallies of 15 or 16 points from the lowest. At 2 o'clock December was selling around 11.07 with the general market showing net advances of some 8 to 10 points on the more active positions.

ECONOMIC COUNCIL URGED

Formation of National Body Suggested to Control Forces Determining Distribution

This is the last of a series of special articles discussing and analyzing the business depression and present economic conditions, with speculation regarding what the future may hold in store.

BY JOHN F. SINCLAIR

[Copyright, 1930, by the North American Newspaper Alliance]

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—The United States government undertook nearly a score of years ago to create a great national system of farm-mortgage legislation and practice. The system is now going through hard times and facing another period which may be worse.

How can an intelligent credit survey be made? it will be asked. The American Bankers' Association and the United States Chamber of Commerce have had study committees at work on the subject, and now Congress is coming back to it through committee investigations, some of which go very broadly, if not so deeply, into these questions. Various private agencies are also at work.

LAGS BEHIND

But the United States is still far short of the methodical and systematic organization of the best minds which European countries have sought through the creation of economic councils and parliaments. For one fleeting moment there was some hope the country might see a fair example of this in the President's business survey conference.

Some statesmen in business and some business men in statesmenship must work together, and do it soon, to produce an articulate agency capable of sustained application to problems inherently complicated and difficult to solve.

A third chamber is needed in Congress, co-ordinate with the others, selected like them by the States, but by the States grouped in some classification of economic activity analagous to the Federal Reserve or farm loan districts, a chamber equivalent to a national council on economic policy.

FUNCTION EXPLAINED

It would be representative of groups of interests, professions, callings and human activities generally in a perfectly definite and openly-acknowledged fashion, rather than in the way all interests are served and represented today. Each of the two existing chambers can go on together, with the State legislatures working out their own and the national destinies in terms of territorial and numerical representation.

If the United States had such a national council of economic policy what a relief it would be to be able to put up to it all the complicated questions which arise in the field of foreign trade, the maladjustment of consumption to production, and the too swift expansion of that highly ingenious (and like so many other ingenious contraptions, rather dangerous) system which we call "installment payments" and which the British describe as the "hire-purchase system." And then, too, in the lap of such a council could be deposited the problem relating to the protection of industries from foreign competition.

Fairbanks Unit Earnings Down

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Fairbanks Company and subsidiaries for the quarter ended June 30, last, today reported net income of $9684 after charges and Federal taxes, equal to 96 cents a share on 10,000 shares of first preferred 8 per cent stock, on which no dividends have been paid since May 1, 1921, as compared with $89,705, or $8.97 a share, on the first preferred stock in the similar period of last year.

For the first six months of the year net profits were $50,284, or $5.02 per share of first preferred stock as against $167,374, or $16.73 per share on the first preferred stock in the like period of 1929.

PAN-AMERICAN-LAGO OIL MERGER VOTED

WILMINGTON, Aug. 19. — Stockholders of Pan-American Petroleum & Transport Company approved today the proposal to purchase Lago Oil & Transport Corporation on the basis of one-half share of Pan-American Class B common for every share of Lago. Pan-American, which is controlled by Standard Oil Company of Indiana owns approximately 97 per cent of the 3,994,307 Lago shares outstanding. Stockholders of Lago Oil & Transport Corporation subsequently approved the merger.

BULLS ATTEMPT GENERAL RALLY

Profit-Taking Halts Upturn on New York Board

List Reacts Slightly After Early Brisk Advance

Stock Index Closes for Net Gain of 1 3-5 Points

NEW YORK, Aug. 19. (AP)—Encouraged by the resistance to bear selling displayed by the market in recent sessions, professional operators who were bullish by inclination and temperament launched a new bull campaign in today's stock market, but found traders generally unwilling to follow the advance for more than a quick turn.

Although the market rose vigorously most of the day, recording extreme gains of 2 to 9 points in most of the more prominent issues, there was a rush to take profits at the higher levels, and much of the advance was lost before the close, although several shares were up 3 to 6 net. The price index of ninety leading shares gained only 1 3-5 points, but that was sufficient to cancel the meager net losses of the past two sessions and place the index a fraction above the level reached in Friday's brisk rally. Total sales aggregated 1,861,790 shares.

STEEL OUTPUT OFF

An unsettling development late was an estimate of steel mill operations appearing on the financial news tickers indicating another slight decline in production, which was a disappointment, in view of predictions that operations would at least hold steady. Furthermore, fresh unsettlement of the commodity markets did not help the bull cause. Sentiment in Wall street was a little more cheerful in spots, for the stock market has given definite evidence of being sold to a standstill during the past two sessions, and some improvement in business after Labor Day is regarded as assured.

Call money held at 2½ per cent all day, but was available in the outside market at 2.

United States Steel, American Can, American Telephone, Radio Corporation, International Harvester and Johns-Manville rose 2 points or more, only to lose much of their gains, closing from fractions to a point higher. Radio was up only ½ at the close. Vanadium rose about 4 points but later lost more

Significant Movements In Bond Values

Always in the past, active markets for virtually all grades of bonds have been presaged by a gradual increase in the price of the highest grade bonds. This has already taken place, and an increase in the price of other sound issues seems certain to follow. We are therefore recommending to investors a carefully selected list of 6 strong issues—mostly utilities—now yielding from 5½% to 7¼%, but which, we believe, will not much longer be available at their present prices.

NEW YORK BOND PRICES

NEW YORK, Aug. 19. (AP)—Domestic bonds were extensively accumulated today, with best gains by railroad and industrial issues. Although there was a slightly firmer tendency in outside call issues there was no slackening in the inquiry from institutional sources, and the gains carried the market to a new high for the year in the averages.

Some issues which reached new peaks in the previous session backslid as holders took their profits.

Atchison general 4s grassed its former high price, Missouri, Kansas and Texas 4s, Northern Railway of California and Rio Grande and Western 4s registered new highs while gains averaging a point, Union Pacific first 4s were conspicuous in the upward movement. Chesapeake & Ohio crossed 5¼ points to another new top for 1930.

The bullish trend of equity issues carried stock privilege bonds upward. Atchison 4½s advanced a point, and other rail utility and amusement obligations appreciated.

The market in utility issues was thin and bonds of telephone, gas and electric companies moved narrowly.

While the movement of the industrial list was highly irregular, highest grade issues continue to narrow the gap separating them from market leaders, in rails and utilities. Some 30 industrial bonds recorded new 1930 highs, as did a number of electric 5s sold at its best figures of the year.

Foreign issues were somewhat more active, and narrowly irregular. Royal Dutch 4½s made another new high. United States governments were steady in light trading.

The quotations represent sales of bonds (in thousands of dollars) and the high, low and closing prices in each issue, for the respective transactions the close is quoted when the same as the low, and both low and close when same as high.

than half its rise. Columbian Carbon rose 8 points, only to lose all but about a point of its gain.

MELLON REPORT DENIED

Some confusion was occasioned after the close of the market by a denial issued in Washington by Secretary Mellon of published dispatches from Pittsburgh quoting him as saying that curtailed production of goods would without question result in correcting present conditions within a short time. Mr. Mellon said he had made no comment on business conditions. The dispatch from Pittsburgh had been widely quoted in Wall street, and hailed as a bullish factor by speculators for the rise.

Chile rose 3, then reacted to close only 2 3-4 higher. Allied Chemical gained 9, and was up at 6 at the finish. American Tobacco B, after gaining 4, lost all but a fraction. North American, New York Central and New Haven closed about 2 points higher. Eastman Kodak closed 5 higher at the top. Fox Film rose 3 points on its earnings statement, wiping out yesterday's net loss, but it later slipped back 1 3-8 from the top.

Cotton surged to new lows, then rallied to close 70 cents to $1.10 a bale higher, canceling about a third of yesterday's loss.

In the foreign exchanges, sterling cables lagged 1-16 to $4.87 1-16, and the Canadian dollar lost its premium for the first time since July 8.

NEW YORK CURB STOCKS

NEW YORK, Aug. 19. (P.)—Operations for the advance were resumed in popular trading issues on the curb market today, with something like the vigor displayed in the big board. The afternoon met with opposition, and failed to maintain a notable following-up. Only the day's transfers aggregating only 430,400 shares.

The oil shares were not traded very actively, but generally ruled on private advices from the mid-continent fields of apprehension of a cut in crude prices were unduly pessimistic. Crude oil output was reduced further last week to the lowest level in 10 years. Gulf rallied 2 and Ogden 2 points. Cities Service mounted ¼ to 27¾, closing at 27¾.

Note the Advantages of our

7% REAL ESTATE LOANS

LONG TERMS: These loans may run from five to fifteen years.

EASY PAYMENTS: Monthly instalments ranging from $8.99 to $65.09 per $1000, depending upon length of time the loan runs, include principal and interest, and pay the loan in full.

NO RENEWALS: You are saved the trouble and expense of periodically renewing your loan and it cannot be called as long as you observe the terms of the loan.

65% TO 75% LOANS: You may borrow 65% to 75% of the fair market value of residential and income property meeting our qualifications in, or near to, cities served by our offices.

7% INTEREST: Your note bears exactly 7% simple interest per annum, which is computed on the balance remaining after each payment is made.
A moderate office fee, based upon the size of the loan and a single payment of which covers the loan for the full term, is charged if the loan is consummated.

COMPARE OUR LOANS: Comparison of our 7% loan plan with other monthly payment loans will demonstrate its outstanding economies and other advantages, and show the reasons for our record breaking loan volume, which far exceeds that of any other building and loan association in the West.

WHEN TO REFINANCE: If you can save money and put your real estate financing on a sounder and more convenient basis by refinancing, it will be to your interest to do so. Since the first of the year over 3000 property owners have gained important advantages by placing their real estate financing on our 7% basis. Probably you can, too. In any event, this merits your immediate investigation.
We invite your call, or if this is inconvenient, send for our booklet.

"TIMES" THEATER GUIDE

MOTION PICTURES

Bard's Eighth between Broadway and Hill—"While Cocktails Are Served" and "I don't come down yonder in the tropics." Gyrgy Rheich.

Boulevard, Washington at Vermont—"Women Everywhere." A musical romance of the French underworld, with Harold Murray and Jill Dorsay. Average.

Carthay Circle, Carthay Center—"Holiday." A film play of quality and delight with Ann Harding at her best in defense of youth.

Chinese Hollywood — "Hell's Angels." It took Howard Hughes four years and $4,000,000 to produce the colossus of the air; and it was worth it.

Criterion, 642 South Grand — "Our Blushing Brides." A scintillating featherweight farce, with Joan Crawford at her best throb or two from Joan Crawford.

Egyptian, Hollywood Boulevard—"The Man From Wyoming."

Filmarte, 1228 North Vine—"The Glorious Adventure." A revival of the first picture ever presented by Lady Diana Manners and Victor McLaglen.

Forum, Pico at Norton—"Hearts in Exile." Dolores Costello sheds and suffers and that's about all.

Loew's State, Broadway at Seventh—"Courage." Clear-cut, precise slice of heroic emotionalism well made and expertly treated by Helen Hayes and Bennett.

Million Dollar, Broadway at Third—"The Storm." Rich, red-blooded melodrama, spiced by intrigue and a strong cast. Lupe Velez and William Boyd.

Paramount, Hollywood at Vine—"Romance." The Gilda Gray of days gone by come up to expectations. Nor does the picture.

Paramount, Hill at Sixth—"For the Defense." The ins and outs of the criminal code are deftly manipulated by William Powell.

Ritz, Wilshire at La Brea—"Dangerous Nan McGrew." Helen Kane boops to an accompaniment of comedy.

R.K.O., Hill at Eighth—"Night Work." Eddie Quillan and twenty-seven infants play tricks.

R.K.O. Orpheum, Broadway at Ninth—"The Dawn Patrol." An air victory, as well as a film one. Richard Barthelmess is excellent.

Tower, Broadway at Eighth—"Bright Lights." Dorothy Mackaill and a little war, which always leads to excitement of some sort.

United Artists, Broadway, near 9th—"Eyes of the World." Opens today.

Uptown, Western at Tenth—"The Man from Wyoming." The war is still on and Gary Cooper practically wins it and what does it matter?

Warners' Beverly, Hill at Seventh—"Moby Dick." Sentiment is missing from this tale of the sea, though adventure is in John Barrymore.

Warners' Hollywood, Hollywood Blvd. at Wilcox—"Top Speed." What do you know is a comedy smash in which Jack Oakie wrecks the works. Only average.

STAGE

Belasco, Hill at 11th—"It's a Wise Child." A splendid cast presents this modern treatment of an old theme. Recommended to those who take comedy with a strain of salt and lots of pepper.

El Capitan, Hollyw'd Blvd. nr. Highland —"Ten for Three." A triangular view of a modern menage, entertaining. William Moore, Gladys George and Ernest Glendinning.

Hollywood Playhouse, Vine near Hollywood Blvd.—"The Champion." A British-American comedy of much entertainment. The excellent cast stars Grant Mitchell.

BYRD CAMP HELD BIT OF HOME LAND

Secretary Davis Argues Bernt Balchen American Enough to be Citizen

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19. (AP)—Secretary Davis wants Bernt Balchen to be granted United States citizenship.

Difficulties are faced by the well-known pilot for Rear-Admiral Byrd because of his absence from the country for a year preceding his petition to become a citizen, he having been at the South Pole.

The Secretary of Labor communicated today to Raymond Crist, Commissioner of Naturalization, his view that because Balchen's service with the explorer was "exclusively on vessels of American registry, in company with Americans and in part, at least, upon territory which, it is understood, has been claimed for the United States this absence from Continental United States may quite properly be construed by the court hearing his petition for citizenship as residence within the United States, within the meaning of the naturalization law."

WEALTHY BROKER KILLED

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19. (AP)—Gustave A. R. Heuer, 55 years of age, wealthy insurance broker and former insurance exchange official, was struck and killed, the victim of a hit-run motorist last night.

Broken-Nosed Parent Requests Her Daughter to Appear at Temple; Facial Liftings in Spotlight

Aimee Semple McPherson, evangelist, was asked to return to Angelus Temple last night and make a personal appearance in the pulpit to set at rest reports that she is suffering from a nervous breakdown and stricken with near-blindness. The urgent demand was made late yesterday by Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, mother of Lorraine Kennedy, following a conference with Dr. H. O. Bames, physician, who assured the worried mother that her daughter, while suffering, that her condition is not critical and that her eyesight is not affected.

"MA" KENNEDY TELLS OF BLOW

Nose Broken by Daughter in Fight, Says Mother

History of Angelus Temple Conflict Exposed

Row Over Woman Declared to Have Been Climax

"And the most appalling aspect about the whole terrible thing, as I look back at it now, is that there stood four of them, all God-fearing members of a great religious organization, watching me bathing my wounds—and not one of them to say 'Let us pray!'"

Thus did Mrs. Minnie (Ma) Kennedy explain yesterday what she termed "the unkindest cut of all" about the parting episode with her daughter, Aimee Semple McPherson, pastor of Angelus Temple, on the night of July 29, when during a climactic argument involving the woman who had come between the pair, the evangelist floored her mother and broke her nose.

Reclining in bed at the Brentwood Sanitorium, her nose still banked in fragile protective framework, her entire face still tender from a plastic-surgical operation that had preceded the battle, Mrs. Kennedy narrated the harrowing details of the encounter.

HATCHET BURIED

She preceded the narrative with an account of her servitude in the interests of Angelus Temple, how nine months ago, after a breach that had endured several years, her daughter had sent her a supplication to "come back home and clean house;" and how she had responded with nothing but love in her heart and a burning urge to grasp the tottering helm of the organization and put its affairs in order.

"But the time came some weeks ago," she said, "when I felt that I must again step out; for evil influences were again at work which I was powerless to combat. So I began to lay my plans, in confidence that the tangled affairs of the temple once more were on an even keel.

"At about that time, however, Aimee approached me with the proposal that we submit to a rejuvenation process.

SHE FINALLY AGREES

"I discouraged the idea as far as I myself was concerned; for you see, I am 60 years of age—and that sort of thing is behind me now—but she persisted, and finally I agreed. So together we went downtown to Dr. Barnes's office and Aimee made all the financial arrangements. But when we left there, Aimee suggested that I go first—let the experiment be tried on me, as it were—and that Dr. Williams follow.

"Well, anyway, I came in here and went through that ordeal on the table; then arose, although weak and still far from well, to visit Aimee and announce my resignation; for I had promised to go to Olympia, Wash., to dedicate a new church, with branches throughout the world.

"Mr. and Mrs. Jaynes and their baby called on me at my little flat, as I was preparing to go to Aimee's, so they went along with me. We all chatted awhile in the patio; then my daughter hinted that she wished to see me alone a moment, so Mr. and Mrs. Jaynes left."

At this point, Mrs. Kennedy sealed her lips and struggled to regain her composure.

"But how did you receive the broken nose," she was asked.

"It was because of something she said to me," she replied through trembling lips.

"What was that?"

There was a pause. Then she went on.

"She said: 'Is it true that you have

CITY SEEKS OIL ROYALTIES

Council Instructs Werner to Draft Law Taking 1 Per Cent Seigniorage of Production

Directions to draft an ordinance charging a license fee or royalty of 1 per cent of oil upon all oil wells in the city were given City Attorney Werner yesterday by the City Council. At its Monday afternoon meeting the Finance Committee gave similar instructions to Efficiency Director Knox.

The Council also passed eight ordinances granting permission to C. E. Black, Bernice Kress, Victor Girard, F. A. Wey, Del Rey Company with three applications, and George V. Williamson to drill for oil east of the Speedway. Due to the negative vote of Councilman Williams, five ordinances covering drilling west of the Speedway and near the water's edge were delayed one week. These ordinances are for A. M. Smith, Girard, Wey, Fraser Million Dollar Pier Company and G. C. Wilson.

The Council also received from the City Planning Commission recommendations to grant four more drilling permits, covering fifteen lots.

During the discussion Councilman Lewis said some of the wells are being drilled so close to the beach that there is a possibility of their being undermined by the action of the waves, with consequent pollution of the beach.

Councilman Webster said he has inspected the wells drilled in the water near Santa Barbara and failed to find any evidence of pollution.

Stork Beaten in Race With Speeding Auto

Two motorcycle officers, with sirens screaming, cleared the way for an ambulance in a seventy-mile-an-hour race with the stork from the home of Mrs. Stephen Brandt, 1237 Barnal Drive, to the Angeles Hospital yesterday. Mrs. Brandt arrived ahead of the stork and a Caesarean operation was found necessary. The operation resulted in the arrival of twin boys, each weighing six and one-half pounds. The operation was performed by Dr. R. B. Jenkins. The father, Stephen Brandt, is a local broker.

GRANDSON OF EARL HERE ON PICK AND SHOVEL JOB

Sun-blistered, but happy, the grandson of a British nobleman is earning his living here with a pick and shovel as a common laborer in an oil refinery. He is George E. Ponsonby, grandson of the seventh Earl of Bessborough and came to Southern California with his family eight months ago from the West Indies.

"Yes, I'm Ponsonby, and I'm not working for a bet either," he said yesterday. "And there's nothing romantic about it. I was manager of the British Union Oil Company at Barbados for eight years before I came to the United States.

"I badly wanted a spell away from the tropics and came to San Diego with my family, but soon found that the economic situation was nearly as bad as I found it on a recent visit to London. I got tired of waiting around for a job and told one of my very good American friends that I would take any kind of a job.

"He offered me a job with a pick and shovel and I took it and here I am. Now I make about $22 a week instead of the $20 daily I made in the West Indies."

Ponsonby is an employee of the Gilmore Oil Company at its refinery, where he cleans sump holes, shovels gravel or performs any of the tasks assigned to him. He is a technically trained oil expert, a member of the British Institution of Petroleum Technologists, and an English public school graduate. He saw service during the World War,

FEDERAL SITE PRICE SET

County Supervisors Willing to Transfer Newly Acquired Property at its Cost

Los Angeles county will co-operate with the government in every way in the building of a new Federal building here, contemplated for the Civic Center, but will not donate any of the property recently condemned for the extension of Spring street as a site for the new structure. It will, however, sell Uncle Sam the land at the same price paid by the county in the recent condemnation proceedings to acquire it.

This was the consensus of members of the Board of Supervisors late yesterday following a conference with William Arthur Newman, superintending engineer of the United States Treasury Department, who spent the day yesterday in Los Angeles conferring with members of the City Council and the Board of Supervisors to ascertain their attitude toward the project contemplated by the government.

During the course of the day the City Council adopted a resolution presented by Councilman Davis agreeing to vacate 537 lineal feet of New High street, between Temple and Sunset Boulevard, to expedite the plan of keeping the new Federal Building within the bounds of Los Angeles' Civic Center.

Late in the day, when Newman appeared before the Supervisors that body was not ready to take any official action in the matter. If the new building is built in the Civic Center on the site proposed the government will require a strip of the land recently acquired by the county in the condemnation actions brought in order to make the Spring street improvement. As some of these condemnation actions are still in court on appeal the Supervisors were in no position to take any official action.

This information was given the government's representative, who sought to take something in writing back to Washington.

Newman declared during the

FITTS WILDLY CHEERED AS HE ASSAILS MACHINE

Great Ovation Given Candidate; Waste of State's Funds Clearly Shown

Greeted with a burst of spontaneous enthusiasm, which his supporters accepted as an augury of victory in next Tuesday's primary election, Dist.-Atty. Fitts last night before an audience of more than 1200 Republican men and women gathered in the Chamber of Commerce banquet room brought to a climax his Southern California campaign for the Republican nomination for Governor.

Assailing the Young administration for its extravagance and accusing Gov. Young and his advisers of attempting to mislead California voters on the subject of State taxation, Fitts was vigorously cheered when he asserted that the election of Young or Rolph will prove a victory for the Northern California political machine that is seeking to defeat the Southern California candidate.

WILD ENTHUSIASM

For several minutes, men and women from all parts of Southern California who thronged the big banquet hall stood and cheered Fitts as he was presented by Joseph Scott, chairman of the occasion. Scott introduced him as "one from the ranks of the common people, one who has worked from the bottom up, and one who is to prove that this is still the land of political opportunity—let me present to you the next Governor of California."

Fitts was obviously affected as the great crowd stood and paid tribute to him. He was frank to say that he was deeply affected, and that "regardless of the outcome next Tuesday, all of the sacrifice that I have made will not have been made in vain. One thing they cannot take from me is the wonderful inspiration that has come to me from the type of people throughout the State—from Oregon to Mexico—such as I see here. I thank you from the bottom of my heart."

MASTERFUL SPEECH

Mr. Fitts then got down to the business of the evening and told the people why he is seeking the governorship, in a masterful speech, which is given in full in an adjoining column of this issue of The Times.

Clearly, he analyzed the tax situation in the State, showing how the Young administration has increased the cost of government in California and demonstrated that it was so because the political machine that is in control makes it so, and that it would continue to be so regardless of whether Young or Rolph were elected Governor. He showed also the falsity of the excuse offered by the Young apologists that "the people do not pay the taxes."

The urgent need for leadership at Sacramento if the water conservation problem of the State is to be solved was also stressed by Fitts. He told of commissions appointed that did nothing.

"What we need is action!" he said.

Before the arrival of Fitts there were a number of prominent men and women from various parts of the State introduced as enlisted in the cause of putting a Southern Californian in the gubernatorial chair. Also the matter of reapportionment was dwelt on briefly by a number of speakers, who repeated the plea that all of Southern California join in the cause of securing just reapportionment, State and national.

Rev. Clyde M. Crist, pastor of the Vermont Square Methodist Episcopal Church, gave the invocation.

PLEA FOR RIGHTS

Chairman Scott made an eloquent appeal to the people of Southern California to awaken not only to their rights but their duties in taking a fair share of responsibilities in administering the State government. It was not a sectional appeal, he said, but one in which he hoped the north would join, "just as we have in these many years helped them to sustain the party ticket, notwithstanding the continuous appearance in the important places upon the ticket of candidates from the northern end of the State."

"Buron Fitts has shown when he was Lieutenant-Governor and presided over the Senate," said Scott, "that he knows neither north nor south, but in this crucial era of reapportionment, when stern justice demands that we get a fair break in legislative and Congressional distribution, we believe the time is opportune for a recognition of Southern California's great service to the Republican party through these many years."

Among a long list of men and women presented during the evening

MOUNTING TAX BURDEN CITED

Fitts Assails Young Over Cost of Government

People Declared Mulcted as Machine Waxes Fat

Candidate Rips Aside Veil of Figure Juggling

Following is the text of the speech by Dist.-Atty. Fitts delivered at monster campaign rally at the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce:

The contest for the Republican party's nomination for Governor is drawing to a close, and as usually occurs under like circumstances, the public is receiving a flood of arguments, appeals, accusations, promises and protestations from the various candidates and their friends. In my own case, my family and myself have been subjected to some of the most vicious attacks ever launched against any aspirant to public office. The nature of these charges has been so scurrilous that no decent self-respecting newspaper would lower itself to the extent of printing them. Therefore, certain of those opposing me have had recourse to a gutter political pamphlet of which I shall speak more fully at a later date.

Tonight I will confine my remarks as I have heretofore to an impersonal discussion of what I believe to be the fundamental issues of this campaign. It is necessary, in such a discussion, to make plain why I am seeking the governorship, giving my reasons for feeling that the incumbent is not entitled to re-election just as I shall give reasons for my own candidacy.

State government in California for a period of approximately twenty years, with a single interruption of four years, has been largely controlled by a well-organized political machine. It is the machine that I am fighting. For the first time in many years the leaders who dominate this political organization are divided, some of them backing the incumbent, C. C. Young, for re-election, and others doing what they can to place Mayor Rolph of San Francisco in the Governor's chair. The machine itself wins either way if Young or Rolph is elected.

Under machine government in this State, regardless of any argument or explanation that can be made, the cost of State government has steadily increased over corresponding expansions in population, in aggregate wealth, in assessed valuation.

FINANCE ARGUMENT

Spokesmen for the Young administration resent criticism of the shortcomings of the administration, and in their endeavor to disprove the seriousness of the charges of inefficiency and extravagance of the present regime at Sacramento, have resorted to an extremely threadbare and wholly misleading explanation of State finances.

In fact, a digest of the addresses and political literature issued in behalf of the incumbent Governor would leave the impression with any uninformed person that State government in California draws its income from some mysterious and bountiful source not in any way connected with the people.

The statement has been repeatedly made that the people pay no direct taxes to the State and, hence, at least by deliberate inference, that the people should not be concerned as to the amount of money spent for State purposes.

EVILS OF ATTITUDE

This sort of argument is dangerously misleading, first because it has a definite tendency to turn public attention away from the cost of State government and, second, because experience shows it has actually permitted if not greatly encouraged a steady piling up of costs

Fitts Gets Criminal Complaint Against Pamphlet Publisher in Drive on "Gutter Journalism"

Requesting the City Prosecutor to issue a complaint charging Fred Girnau, publisher of a political pamphlet, with criminal libel, Dist.-Atty. Fitts yesterday announced that he will insist on aggressive prosecution of the pamphleteer for assertedly circulating "ugly and vicious slanders, rumors and whispers which no self-respecting individual or newspaper would care sponsor."

His action, Fitts announced, was taken not only as a measure of self-protection against false reports circulated against him, but as a step calculated to end in Los Angeles all opportunity for "outbreaks of gutter journalism that occur sporadically during political campaigns."

At the City Prosecutor's office, where the complaint was issued following the District Attorney's request, an investigation was begun of the charges made by Fitts, and it was recalled that Girnau was accused of libeling former Councilman Hall in the recent municipal election and that prosecution of the case was never called, due, it is said, to the disappearance of the publisher after election.

In his statement, Fitts said:

"I have today requested the City Prosecutor to file a criminal complaint against one Fred Girnau, publisher of a street-circulated political pamphlet known as the Coast Reporter. This complaint is being asked because of certain vicious and false statements published by Girnau, and attacking me on a wholly imaginary episode, said to have occurred in 1920. The man making the statement published by Girnau is a discredited former

EASTERN sport writers are shaken with amazement that "Rube" Williams, the Texas cowpuncher, should have made the big four of polo at "the advanced age of 39 years."

Thirty-nine is a mere child for a cowboy. I recently visited a big cattle ranch where only one vaquero was under 50.

Cowboys, you see, are not employed solely for their prowess in rescuing blond school-teachers from villains; or for shooting bad men from the hip. They are employed for their knowledge of live stock—horned cattle and horses; and it takes some years to learn even the beginning thereof.

CAUSE FOR MOURNING

Judging from the number of people who borrowed money of him, the Chicago gangster Zuta must have functioned a good deal in the manner of the town pump. The grief that followed his demise was sincere. The tombstone erected over his grave should be appropriately carven in the shape and manner of a meal ticket.

JACKALS

Between the two, the gangster who takes his revolver in hand and does the killing is preferable to the skunk who peeks from behind the billboards until it is over; then borrows the loot.

CON AMORE

I recently attended a dinner at which the guests were the men who, more than others, "made" Los Angeles. It was plain to see why they got along—and made Los Angeles get along.

When they spoke about selling it was in the manner of one about to give a Christmas present. To bring some one from the East to live in Los Angeles they regarded in the light of a rescue from an intolerable but avoidable affliction.

DAILY NUISANCE

Modern women grow gray, declares the descendant of eleven generations of coiffeurs, because they do not brush their hair.

The cure is about as bad as the disease. The real trials of modern life are brushing teeth and hair. I account for the prevalence of late hours by the fact that we know we can't go to bed until we housecleaan our teeth, and keep putting off the ordeal hour by hour.

SAVING CIVILIZATION

Progress is announced in the war against crime. With this country full of murderous gangsters and crime rampant, a rural justice of the peace fined two respectable young boys $100 each for going into the surf on a lonely stretch of beach without clothes.

TRAIN STEALERS

A bunch of hobos and thugs who stole a train near San Luis Obispo were "floated" out of town by the court. In other words, the peril was passed on to the next town. All of which emphasizes the fact that California ought to have an efficient State police. Small-population counties at the edges of great city centers of population are confronted by problems with which they are financially—and in every other way—unable to deal.

POLICE BOARD INVITED

An invitation from F. H. Solomon for attendance at the annual outing of the orphans of Los Angeles at his Topango Canyon ranch tomorrow when a program of games and sports, with plenty to eat, will be held, was acknowledged by the Police Commission yesterday.

sational incidents. The idle and curious also were beginning to gather, but their visits were short as nothing spectacular was to be expected.

PRAYERS OFFERED

All day continuous prayers were being conducted by the faithful in all departments of the religious institution. When one group had prayed long and earnestly for Mrs. McPherson's "recovery" another—both men and women—would flex their knees at improvised altars.

All of the bulletins are issued over the signature of Mrs. Jordan and are understood to be received by telephone communication from the McPherson cottage. None of the notifications has been signed by the attending physicians.

"Brother" J. W. Arthur, long an official in temple affairs, announced that Roberta, Mrs. McPherson's daughter, who is attending to Four-Square Lighthouse business in Ireland, has been notified of her mother's condition. He said the girl is ready to book passage on a steamer for New York at a moment's notice, and if she makes the journey to her mother's bedside will charter an airplane from New York to Los Angeles.

SON ALSO INFORMED

Arthur also announced that Rolf, son of the evangelist, who is on a religious mission in the Middle West has been told that his mother is in a precarious condition, and may return presently to Angelus Temple.

F. C. Winters, assistant business manager of Angelus Temple, has assumed charge of the temporal affairs of the organization during the absence of Mrs. McPherson and her mother.

The luxuriously furnished home of the evangelist, which adjoins the temple proper, is deserted, only a housekeeper placidly goes about her duties while the temple and its leaders again are engulfed in the glare of publicity.

It is announced that meetings will be conducted in the temple without interruption—meetings which will have something of the fervor of supplication which marked the gatherings in the days five years ago when some believed the evangelist drowned.

NIGHT MEETING HELD

Last night's meeting, held in the Bible school of the temple and led by Dr. Armin Holzer, featured a united prayer of 1200 persons, all praying aloud with upraised hands in a fevered crescendo for more than twenty minutes. The supplicants blamed themselves for Mrs. McPherson's condition asserting they had not sufficiently supported her, and they urged divine intercession for her recovery.

The end of the praying was a signal for a burst of shouting of "amens" and "hallelujahs," which vibrated thunderously through the large concrete hall.

After that meeting scores adjourned to what is known as the 500 Room at the temple, where a prayer service was organized to last until dawn this morning. Others grouped about the bulletin board, murmuring prayers and sobbing over the doleful reports pasted thereon.

Mrs. Jordan announced that additional telephone service has been installed in the church office to care for inquiries about Mrs. McPherson, which she said are pouring in at 100 an hour.

STATEMENT POSTED

Early yesterday there was posted on the bulletin board the following statement of the board of trustees:

"The official board wishes to confirm its previous statement that Mrs. McPherson is suffering from a serious breakdown and to say the physician reports a very slight improvement this morning. We are having continual prayers and fasting in Angelus Temple for the recovery of our pastor."

Members of the board, asked with reference to a quarrel between Mrs. McPherson and Mrs. Kennedy, said they know nothing of that situation.

"Sister McPherson has suffered a serious nervous breakdown," Emma Shaffer, the private secretary, said, "because of the strain of overwork.

"She has been working hard on a new book and this, together with her work in the temple, brought a severe nervous tension under which she gave way last Saturday. Her optic nerves are paralyzed and she has temporarily lost her sight."

Dr. Barnes, plastic surgeon with offices at 512 Pacific National Bank Building, Ninth and Hill streets, admitted through his secretary yesterday that Mrs. McPherson has lately been his patient, but that now she is under the care of Dr. Williams, the nerve specialist.

The plastic surgeon announced through his secretary, that he is done with the McPherson case, and since Dr. Williams has been retained, any statements on her condition will have to come from the latter.

Dr. Barnes was asked, through his secretary, if the reported nervous illness and blindness of Mrs. McPherson could have resulted from a face-lifting operation, and the secretary returned from his private office to report that he had nothing whatever to say in connection with the McPherson case—now that she is under the care of the nerve specialist.

BIKES PROPOSED FOR POLICEMEN

Dealers' Association Puts Proposition Up To Commission

A communication from the Southern California Bicycle Dealers' Association, urging that all patrolmen in Los Angeles be equipped with bicycles to cover their beats, was read and filed at the meeting of the Police Commission yesterday.

The association pointed out that on bicycles, at a nominal cost, officers could cover greater area, in silence, could make more rounds of their beats and could do much more efficient work than on foot.

MRS. KENNEDY TELLS OF BLOW

said those things!' And I said, 'About you?' 'No, not about me,' she replied, 'but about the person who has come between us.' And I told her it was true—that I had said them . . .

"Who is this person you refer to," Mrs. Kennedy was asked.

"Oh, never mind—don't speak of it."

"Man—or woman?" she was pressed.

"Woman!" she blurted, and then placed a palm over her lips as if to thrust back the word . . . "And then it happened!"

"You mean—then she struck you?"

WARDED OFF BLOWS

"But a broken nose," was her reply, "isn't half as bad as a broken heart . . . I had a broken heart once . . . three and a half years ago . . . and it has never mended . . . There I was on the floor, trying to struggle to my feet and warding off . . . like this . . . warding off with my free hand . . . And then I got to my feet and went to the kitchen, and Emma Shaffer came down and rushed out and brought back Miss Jordan and Brother Arthur . . . and they all watched me, the four of them, as I stooped over the sink and held my wrists under cold water . . . I begged them to let me go . . . I kept remembering my appointment in Olympia and expected to leave that very night . . . but I couldn't get away for the longest while . . . And then Shaffer said to me: 'You know, Ma, you laid down on the floor!' I kept bathing my wrists . . . and begging them to let me go . . . and finally I turned to Aimee and told her she would have to make her choice between me and this other person . . . and my daughter said to me: 'I'll make you eat your words.'"

NONE THOUGHT TO PRAY

"Did she only strike you once?" the interviewer asked Mrs. Kennedy.

"Let that be, let that be," she shot back, waving away the question with a gesture.

"And I thought then," she went on after a moment, "what a catastrophe, what an appalling situation—there they were . . . four of them, all God-fearing members of a great church—and not one to make peace by saying 'Let us pray!' . . . Yes, I have told Brother Arthur about my thoughts in that connection since then . . . and he agreed I was right . . . someone should have done so.

TOTTERED HOME

"I managed to totter home several hours later, and Mr. and Mrs. Jaynes were still on the sidewalk, and I greeted them and patted the baby's head and told them to be sure and keep in touch with Aimee . . . and they never knew what had happened . . . At 3 a.m. my little secretary brought me here and Dr. Barnes treated my nose and remained with me through the rest of the night until train time . . . for in spite of my condition, I was bound to go to Olympia."

At Olympia, Mrs. Kennedy found a vast sheaf of telegrams from all parts of the country awaiting her, from members of the church who knew of her dedicatory mission.

"But I looked for only one," she said, "one that would contain the cheery message, 'Mother, dear, let us have peace.'"

"And it wasn't there?"

"It wasn't there . . . But I came upon one presently from a little friend in Chicago. On our way out here last June one of my canaries had slipped from his cage—Sunny Boy, his name was—and this telegram told me 'Sunny Boy has flown back.' That helped somehow back into the fold, after all those months."

After dedicating the new church in Olympia Mrs. Kennedy returned home alone, although she stated the congregation had begged her to remain over and deliver a sermon later that week. She feared a collapse, she said.

She left the train at Santa Barbara last Wednesday and was met by her secretary. The two drove to Los Angeles and went straight to the Brentwood Sanatorium.

"And whom should we meet in the driveway," she exclaimed, "but Emma Shaffer! She was carrying an armful of bundles in—and I knew at once that Aimee in the meantime had entered the sanatorium for her operation. Miss Shaffer denied she was there; but I knew differently. There is no disgrace in such operations; no cause for such strict secrecy. Don't women visit beauty parlors every day? . . . I knew an embarrassing situation would result if I continued in; so I headed downtown to the doctor's office and told him, suggested I remain away until the coast was clear. He advised that I return Friday.

"So I went bac kto my little flat until then . . . and here I am . . . And then today they come to me and say that my daughter is threatened with blindness . . . My God, what a blow . . . I felt if something dreadful has happened I must go to her at once, though I can scarcely stand. . . . So the superintendent assured me that when Aimee left here last Wednesday night she was all right. That was comforting. And then the doctor, too, told me there is nothing the matter with her.

"Then, why, oh why, did those people around her have to give out such statements and frighten her flock to death. . . . It's driven me nearly frantic . . . But I've telephoned down there and told Miss Jordan to shut Shaffer's mouth and issue an official statement and if my daughter is all right let her get up and go to the temple and show her people she is all right. . . .

"Oh, I think this whole awful thing has happened because my daughter was excited and under undue influence . . . When she was in trouble before, and all had deserted her, she yelled for mother . . . and I think . . . I hope she'll do so again!"

course of the conference that the best show of co-operation on the part of the county would be for the Supervisors to make some sort of intimation that the land will be donated to the government as a site for the new structure.

This, the County Supervisors said, will be impossible for the reason that some of the condemnation actions are still in court on appeal. Anyway, they felt that such a donation would almost be like a cash one, as the property was so recently acquired with the taxpayers' money.

"We can assure you, Mr. Newman, of every co-operation with the government in this matter and we will turn over the property, after the court proceedings, at the same price the county paid for it," declared Sidney T. Graves, chairman of the board. He added: "It is not the desire of the county to make any money out of it."

The land sought is a strip along the new Spring-street extension of around 537 feet. In some places it has a depth of approximately 100 feet. It is costing the county approximately $500,000.

KEATON UNDER ALIENISTS' KEN

Indifference of Defendant Trial Feature

State Declares Attitude Insanity Pose

Eleven Prospective Jurors Occupy Box

Indifference of Frank D. Keaton, slayer of Motley Flint, on trial as to his sanity before Superior Judge Shauer, to all court proceedings upon which his life depends, yesterday became an important part of the prosecution case against the former stock market speculator who shot Flint to death in a local courtroom.

Acting upon the suggestion of Dep. Dist.-Atty. Burgess, who, with William O. Russell, is prosecuting the case, Drs. Thomas J. Orbison and Victor Parkin, State alienists, both of whom began their study of Keaton within an hour after the fatal shooting, spent all of yesterday in the courtroom observing the defendant and will remain present until they take the witness stand.

From the beginning of the trial last Monday morning, Keaton, flanked by Defense Counsel Paul B. D'Orr and Tom Reynolds, has been seated motionless at the counsel table and not once even looked in the direction of the jury box where juror after juror has been examined, excused or passed for cause.

Feigned indifference, according to Burgess, accounts for Keaton's lack of interest in the trial, while D'Orr as stoutly maintains that the man is insane and, therefore, unaware of the seriousness of the charges against him.

"It is obvious to all that Keaton is sitting there at the counsel table appearing to be unconscious of what is going on in the courtroom for the sole purpose of convincing the jury that he is insane," said Burgess. "A close observer, however, cannot miss the nervous fluttering of his hands and the fact that when the murder of Motley Flint is spoken of during the jury questioning he flushes up and has some apparent trouble in maintaining his pose.

"Today I have requested the State alienists to remain in the courtroom throughout the entire trial and I believe they will be able to make some comment on the feigned indifference of Keaton when they are called upon to testify."

Today will probably bring out a couple of defense alienists to join the watch.

No positive statement from Drs. Orbison or Parkin was forthcoming last night relative to their opinion of Keaton's court actions but both of them did declare that persons feigning insanity often attempt to appear indifferent to what is going on around them.

With the exception of the presence of the two State alienists in the courtroom, and the comment it caused, little progress toward the completion of the jury which must decide if Keaton is sane or insane was made yesterday.

At the close of the second day of the trial eleven prospective jurors were in the jury box. Only three changed from the night before. George Husser, 923 Michelitorena street; Pierce P. Kinsman, 827 Cedar street, Santa Monica, and Charles A. Shellman of Palmdale being the three. A woman juror excused just before court adjourned left jury seat No. 7 vacant and the eleven were ordered locked up for the night.

All during the hot and dull court day of jury examination Burgess continued to question prospective jurors as to their opinions of the case and if they were members of Rev. Robert P. Shuler's church or heard him on the radio.

D'Orr, examining for the defense again and again, asked the prospective jurors if they had any feeling against a plea of insanity and other similar questions. Two peremptory challenges were used by the defense and one by the prosecution. Once the prosecution accepted the jury, but at once the battle began all over again when D'Orr exercised his second challenge. Each side has a total of twenty challenges.

Keaton, who entered a plea of not guilty by reason of insanity, has admitted all of the facts of the killing and is standing alone on the matter of his sanity. If he should be found sane by the jury he will face life imprisonment or death.

At the time of the shooting, just five weeks ago, Keaton walked into the courtroom of Superior Judge Collier in the City Hall and shot down Motley Flint just as the financier left the witness stand after having given testimony in a civil case.

At Central Police Station where he was questioned police officers declared they took a booklet written by Shuler from his pocket. The booklet dealt with various phases of the Julian mess and named Flint as one of those implicated in the crash. Keaton later denied that he had the booklet in his pocket.

Women Have Any Part in Hit-Run Accidents

Women automobile drivers received an accolade at yesterday's session of the thirty-fifth annual convention of the National Association of Mutual Insurance Companies, held in conjunction with the fourteenth annual gathering of the Association of Mutual Fire Insurance Companies at the Biltmore.

Joseph F. McCann, assistant secretary and treasurer of the Farmers' Insurance Exchange, figuratively pinioned the distaff side on the female of the species when he declared that women drivers are better risks than men drivers.

Statistics show that 94.2 per cent of all drivers are women, and that they are responsible for only 6 per cent of all automobile accidents, Mr. McCann said. Records of 589,960 persons involved in accidents, of whom 29,500 were women, furnished the foundation for the favorable showing.

Further, McCann pointed out, statistics prove that in the event of an accident the victim has reason to be thankful if the accident was caused by a woman driver. He cited figures to prove that the woman motorist seldom figures in a hit-and-run crash, declaring that it has been found that in the majority of

ELYSIAN HILLS TO CURB CRIME

Police Radio Station in Park to Broadcast News to Patrols Approved

Plans for a radio station on an eminence in Elysian Park, with receiving-sets for police patrol cars and substations were approved by the Police Commission yesterday and advertising for bids was recommended. The estimated cost of the system, which the City Council has promised to provide, will be around $15,000.

The Federal Radio Commission has set aside a wave channel for police and fire departments of 2500 kilocycles, or 125 meters. It is proposed to use the system to contact all branches of the police and fire departments at all hours. The proposed sets have been submitted to radio experts for their opinions.

cases a woman motorist will stop her car after a crash.

The percentage of women involved in drunken driving charges also was favorable to the woman driver, McCann said.

Group meetings claimed the time of the 12'0 delegates to the convention yesterday. Automotive compensation groups, farm groups and hail groups met in the morning to hear discussions of various phases of their problems. In the afternoon the delegates went on a sightseeing trip as guests of the Chamber of Commerce. A theater party was the chief event on the evening program.

Gov. Young will address the delegates this morning.

"The charges in Girnau's paper are the culmination of a consistent campaign of mud slinging and slander directed against me and members of my family by reason of my candidacy for the Governorship of this State. As a citizen, and not as a candidate for public office, I propose to proceed as vigorously as possible to protect not only my name and reputation, but to put a stop, if possible, to this type of gutter journalism which occurs here sporadically during political campaigns, and one made possible only by the willingness of political candidates to finance slanderous and vicious falsehoods in a political controversy.

"The Coast Reporter has appeared on the streets of Los Angeles from time to time in this campaign and in former campaigns, always for the purpose of circulating the ugly and vicious slanders, rumors and whispers which no self-respecting individual or newspaper would dare sponsor. It is devoted in this instance almost wholly in sponsoring the candidacy of one of my opponents and to the defense of Alexander Pantages.

"Some three months ago Girnau personally called on me and demanded $1250 a week for the rest of the campaign as the price of his support of my candidacy for the Governorship, with the clear implication at that time that if he did not receive this sum I could expect his opposition. I ordered him from my office and instructed those in charge of my campaign to have nothing whatever to do with him.

"As long as this man and his ilk are permitted to operate no lf-respecting citizen is safe from the villainy of such attack.

"I have spent a lifetime in building up a good name in Los Angeles and I am going to fight to protect it."

Silence Blamed on Fear of Garret Scandal

Weeping frequently and apparently on the verge of hysteria, Mrs. Walburga Oesterreich yesterday afternoon in the crowded, but silent courtroom of Superior Judge Hardy told her story of the murder of her husband for whose death she is on trial.

In many instances Mrs. Oesterreich told the same incidents recited by Otto Sanhuber, garret ghost lover, when, some months ago before the grand jury he confessed to the shooting, a confession that he later repudiated when he went to trial.

In substance, Mrs. Oesterreich said that on the day of the murder —August 22, 1922—she and her husband had visited with various friends, returning to their home at approximately 11 p.m.

ON GOOD TERMS

She declared she had been on the best of terms with her husband throughout the day and that when they entered the house he had caught her playfully, causing her to slip o na rug between the dining and living-room.

"Just then I heard Otto shout 'stop, stop!'" testified Mrs. Oesterreich, her voice rising and her face contorting. "Fred (her husband,) turned around, trying to locate the sound. There was a shot. I saw Otto on the first landing of the stairs leading to the second floor. My husband ran toward him and they began to struggle. Then there were more shots."

Mrs. Oesterreich said she then fell back against a piano in the dining-room and did not see her husband fall, but a moment later Sanhuber took her by the hand and led her upstairs, where he pushed her in a closet in her bedroom and locked the door.

A little later, she said, he came back with a gun in his hand and said: "You have got to say it's burglars."

"I said: 'All right, but where's Fred?'" continued the witness. "Otto said: 'He's gone, he's gone, and you've got to stay in this closet.'"

FEARED EXPOSURE

"I didn't know what to do with myself," declared Mrs. Oesterreich. "I know I wanted to get out and I hammered on the door with my feet and the next thing I recall I was on the bed and some men were talking to me."

Throughout this testimony Mrs. Oesterreich wept unrestrainedly. At times Defense Attorney Geisler, who was conducting her examination, was forced to stop for several minutes until she regained her composure.

"Why didn't you tell the truth about it at that time?" asked Geisler.

"I didn't believe he (Sanhuber) meant to do it and I didn't want to expose my life to the world—having him in the house," was the answer. She repeated this assertion several times later when questioned as to why she did various things that concealed her attic lover's asserted participation in the shooting.

Mrs. Oesterreich said she did not see Sanhuber from the night of the shooting until another day and night had passed, when the attic man came forth from his garret.

"'Are you going to stick to your story about the burglary?' he asked me," testified the witness. "I told him I would because I knew he didn't mean to do it."

After the inquest, Mrs. Oesterreich declared, Sanhuber came to her and said: "Listen, Dolly, I've got a gun; will you get rid of it for me?"

The accused woman testified she gave the gun to J. E. Farber, an acquaintance, and when Sanhuber later produced still another gun, she gave the second weapon to Roy Klumb, another acquaintance. Both Farber and Klumb have testified for the prosecution.

SHE LOVED HUSBAND

On cross-examination by Dep. Dist.-Atty. Costello Mrs. Oesterreich repeatedly declared she loved her husband despite the fact that for ten years Sanhuber had been almost a constant inhabitant of her attic without the knowledge of her husband. Questions by both the defense and prosecution, elicited the testimony that at the age of 13 years she went to work in a factory in Milwaukee and that at the age of 17 she married Oesterreich, then a shoe salesman. He had $500 and she had $100 in savings, she declared, and they started a shoe store, a business enterprise that eventually developed into a large clothing manufacturing business. During the early years, however, the witness declared, she worked in the store and factory and did her house work in addition.

Mrs. Oesterreich was still on the witness stand under cross-examination when court adjourned. Before she took the stand yesterday, several other defense witnesses testified they had known the Oesterreichs for years and that they appeared to have been always on friendly terms. Throughout the day yesterday crowds fought to gain entrance to Judge Hardy's courtroom, Deputy Sheriffs Soran, Dannison and Mounton being called to handle the crowd.

which could have been avoided or reduced.

All of the plausible arguments concocted by the cleverest political minds cannot destroy the fact that no department of government raises a penny of taxes, direct or indirect, which the taxpayer does not pay.

Nothing can be further from the truth than an assertion that the people do not pay State taxes, and yet, because the taxpayer does not receive a formal tax bill from the State, or finds his property levied upon by State government, those in authority at Sacramento have been able to escape the consequences of popular complaint that would have followed more specific public knowledge of the real conditions.

TAXATION EXPLAINED

The true explanation is simple. State taxes are collected in three general ways, a tax on the gross receipts of public utilities, a tax on corporations and banks, and a tax on inheritances.

Every person who rides on a street car, uses a telephone, lights a gas stove, buys a railroad ticket, or utilizes the manifold purposes of electricity helps turn the machinery that send a steady stream of hundreds of millions of dollars of the people's money into the State Treasury.

Of course, many additional millions are raised by the 3-cent gasoline tax for highway purposes, and more millions flow into the special funds of boards, departments and commissions of the State created for special governmental functions.

PEOPLE PAY AND PAY

For the purposes of political argument it may be legitimate to say that the people pay no direct taxes to the State, but the indirection is not sufficiently remote from the people's pocketbook to justify the slightest inference that the people do not pay and pay and pay for each and every State agency—and often pay an exorbitant price for what the people receive in return.

While complaining that I have not accurately analyzed State finances in my discussion of the administration's record, my opponents admit that the figures I have submitted are essentially correct. In that connection I want to say that the system of accounting employed in the office of the Board of Control is a system best known to those who employ it; for it lends itself to an extremely elastic interpretation of the State's financial condition.

FIGURES COMPLICATED

Facts and figures relating to the cost of State government, exclusive of the statistics and surveys made by the State Controller, are a veritable maze of estimates, deductions, transfers and mere bookkeeping terminology. We hear from one administration source that the Young administration has amassed an actual surplus approaching $30,000,000, that this represents an increase of approximately $7,300,000 over the surplus left in the Treasury by Gov. Young's predecessor.

There is this very important difference, however, between the surplus of 1926 and the so-called surplus of 1930; the first was actual cash on hand over and above expenses. The second is a compilation of estimates, unexpended balances and transferred funds.

We are told by administration spokesmen that instead of increasing, the cost of State government under the Young administration has decreased. Other administration apologists admit there is an increase, but say it is small and fully justified.

HOODWINKING CHARGED

These are arguments which are familiar to anyone acquainted with the methods of the political machine in control at Sacramento. The politicians realize from long experience that the people as a whole have no opportunity to get first-hand information on these matters. They have found misrepresentation a profitable political method in the past and they will continue to use that method until the people refuse longer to be hoodwinked.

The frequent use of the words "economy" and "efficiency" means little or nothing at all if unsupported by results. It is true, of course, that the demands of efficiency may require the expenditure of large sums of money, but too frequently this term is used merely to cover up an extravagance which only the wiles of a politician can interpret as "economy."

FRUGALITY URGED

Any department of government, whether Federal, State, county or municipal, is not efficient if it is not economical. In our present development I should say that government can best serve the needs of the people by a policy, not only of economy, but of frugality—keeping in mind at all times that any service or commodity is rendered less valuable if the price paid for it is too high.

In justice to the Young administration, it should be said that those elected to office by the machine now in power are handicapped even before taking office; for the machine is built upon and exists upon patronage, on jobs, on political favors to powerful interests, and such considerations are of vital importance to machine candidates and office holders.

There would be no change in this typical condition if the incumbent Governor, whose home is in Berkeley, should be displaced by the candidate who resides across the bay in San Francisco. The machine is safe with either and the leadership of the machine, with but few exceptions, will be satisfied with either.

CITES OWN RECORD

My candidacy is not based on claims impossible of accomplishment, or on promises made merely for the purpose of getting votes. I have demonstrated that an important public office spending millions of dollars of public money can be made more efficient at less cost. That demonstration, if I am elected, I propose to repeat as Governor.

HOW POOR FISH GOT HIS TITLE

Moving Tale of Flapping Pet Told by Wife Wins Divorce Decree

Cruelty to goldfish was asserted yesterday by Mrs. Mollie B. Clark, a graduate nurse, in obtaining a divorce from Frank L. Clark. Superior Judge Scott granted the decree.

"My elderly, religious mother was listening to a broadcasting preacher over our radio," said Mrs. Clark. "My husband became enraged, struck my mother, tore out the radio and threw it out of the window and then smashed the goldfish bowl on the floor, stranding my pet goldfish.

"When I screamed he ran out in his B.V.D.'s, carrying his trousers over one arm. That's the last I saw of him."

There is no horde of job-hungry politicians supporting me, and if I am elected I shall be free to retain in office those competent to fill the positions they hold and to remove those retained solely for political reasons.

You pay and you should be interested in stopping the orgy of spending in Sacramento. You should be interested in knowing that California has jumped from seventh to second place in the tax burden per capita among the States of the Union. Only the State of Nevada has a higher tax burden per capita. You should be interested in knowing that the expenditures of the present administration are $135,000,000 more than was spent in the preceding four years.

ACTION REQUIRED

The business of our State requires aggressiveness and determined action. The present condition of our water problem is probably one of the most glaring illustrations of inaction upon the part of our bureaucratic State government. The State of California has become expert in the business of studying the water-conservation problem.

We have been studying it since 1878 and the end is not yet, the construction of dams is still to begin. Leadership will solve California's water conservation problem. Four years ago a commission —not the first by any means—was named to study water conservation. It returned to Sacramento in 1929 with the outline of a comprehensive plan. Its members knew where the dam sites are, the flow of water, the needs of this and that, and figured the estimated costs. Why was nothing done? We are told that some of the members of the committee couldn't agree, that there were sectional differences. Whoever expected perfect unanimity of opinion on so vast a project? Leadership properly exercised might have composed those differences and brought the various sections of the State together for a common effort for their general good, but the commission habit asserted itself and the investigations of water continues—at your expense. What we need is action.

There was a letter of cheer from Florence Collins Porter; one from Mrs. Charles Decker at Sacramento, head of the woman's division for the Fitts campaign, and one from Mrs. Fitts, who is in the North.

Neal Ames, World War veteran, and E. Manchester Boddy, newspaper publisher, also spoke.

A resolution was adopted expressing appreciation to the San Francisco Republican County Central Committee for its indorsement of Fitts for Governor, one of the most remarkable tributes to come to any candidate in this State.

Attention was called yesterday by John C. Austin, the architect, to a news item stating that Mrs. John C. Austin was to attend a banquet given for Buron Fitts. In view of the fact that Mr. and Mrs. Austin are supporting Mr. Young, the former thought the public might become confused as to the identity of the Mrs. John C. Austin mentioned in the news item.

Hunt Begun for Two Boys at Sea

Fears for the safety of two boys who went adventuring at sea in a fourteen-foot outboard motor boat yesterday were expressed at the harbor last night and Coast Guard patrol boat No. 260 is riding the waves off Seal Beach searching for them.

The boys, John Smith, 15 years of age, of Alamitos Bay, and Ballard Wilcox, 17, of Los Angeles, left Alamitos Bay at 6 a.m. yesterday in the small boat bound for a fishing barge three miles off Seal Beach. At nightfall no trace of them was to be had, and anxious parents appealed to the Coast Guard.

Today's Bible Text

Fight the good fight of faith, lay hold on eternal life, whereunto thou art also called, and hast professed a good profession before many witnesses.—1 Tim. vi, 12.

PACIFISM

Three times now vandals have stolen the sword from a statue in a park in Syracuse, N. Y. This would seem to be carrying the London pact to great lengths.

THE STUCK MARKET

Some one has been unkind enough to rub it in and call Wall street the stuck market. If we can just get the lambs to see this, there will not be so much mutton in the market next time.

ANOTHER HIT

Babe Ruth makes another home run, yawns a headline. If Babe does not acquire a set of four-wheel brakes, his offerings will cease to be news. As it is, they have the regularity of the sun and he would create greater comment by failing to swat the ball.

FAMINE

A California city of size has a famine! However, it is not of food, nor yet of water; but of putters. The pee-wee golfers have gobbled up all the putters and there are none for the orthodox players. This presents a grave problem and would seem to call for the Red Cross.

BUMPS

A Catalina guide in the boats around the island to points of interest informs the gaping passengers that male seals on the beach at a certain place may be distinguished from the females by the bumps on their heads. The rolling-pin must be a household hint in the best-regulated families of seals.

A HOLD-UP

Amos seems to think that a holding company is a holding-up institution. Andy is a friend of all promoters and confidence men and trusts all mankind. He is able to neutralize most all of Amos's common sense and a large part of his bank account. However, if half of the world were not suckers, how would the other half live?

KING OF SYRIA

An extensive movement is under way in Syria for the restoration of the ancient monarchy. Syria is under the official eye of France and any ruler would have to have the indorsement of that country. The monarchist party does not seem to have any candidate in mind and the idea is to leave it to the popular vote. Any hustling American who would like to be king of Syria might be able to do some business if he carried a modern publicity department into the heart of that country. It is rather hot and dusty there, but the land has a long and interesting history.

JACK ZUTA TALKS

Jack Zuta, murdered Chicago gangster, is eloquent as a corpse. When he was questioned by police a few weeks before his death, he gave them no aid, but his safety-deposit box has yielded to investigating authorities some of the most interesting information that has come to light in the nation's second city in years. Among those who appear to have had financial transactions with Zuta are the Chief of Police of a suburban city, a newspaper man, a municipal court judge, a former municipal court judge, a former State Senator, an attorney and a police sergeant, the latter assigned to the investigating committee.

This is quite a list and everybody on it is busy explaining or trying to explain, the explanations being somewhat difficult in some of the cases. The psychological effect of cold documentary evidence of this character is greater than that of reams of verbal testimony, and its influence on future Chicago elections is likely to be considerable.

It has long been known that racketeering and other forms of law violation, on a big scale, could not exist without police and political connivance. As a logical proposition, this is easily demonstrated; in fact, it is almost self-evident. But the concrete proof, especially where it turns up from some unexpected scource, is always surprising and extra-convincing.

According to police theory, Zuta was slain to keep him from talking. This seems to be one of the precautions of gangland that has backfired.

ROLPH AND UNIONISM

Reports from San Francisco indicate that Mayor Rolph, one of the two strings to the McCabe-Johnson machine bow in the Governorship race, is planning, if elected, to make Big Tim Reardon State Director of Public Works. Big Tim, head of the San Francisco Steamfitters' Union, has been president of the San Francisco Board of Public Works for sixteen years. He is a Democrat and head of Rolph's annexed Democratic organization. The report is quite credible, inasmuch as Rolph carries membership cards in twenty-two unions in his pocket and attends union meetings frequently.

Unionism in the San Francisco city machine gives an example of what the State may expect in case of Rolph's success. The San Francisco Civil Service Commission is headed by one of Reardon's lieutenants, William P. McCabe, who for years was president of the Molders' Union. Jim Gallegher, president of the Building Trades' Union, is a city painter under Reardon. William Bonser, business agent for the City Hall Employees' Union, is assistant superintendent of the Board of Public Works under Reardon. The city employees are 100 per cent unionized, as might be expected in such a regime, and every motorman and conductor on the Municipal Railway wears a union button in his cap.

This railway, which runs consistently at a public loss, is overmanned because it is part of its functions to provide jobs for politicians to hand out. The competing Market-Street Railway Company is privately owned, provides better service and pays expenses.

It is largely through the influence of the Rolph machine that San Francisco remains in the grip of the union-labor racketeers and has fallen far behind in the race for industry and population. During all of Rolph's incumbency union labor has controlled not only the Mayor, but the Board of Supervisors, and the open shop has been fought by every method, fair or unfair.

The turbulence and violence which have hamstrung San Francisco industry during the nearly twenty years of Rolph's administration have been supported by Rolph at least by silence and inaction. In no city where police are vigilant and impartial, where they perform properly their duty of protecting life and property, are labor rioting, violence and sabotage permitted to take place. Pickets and entertainment committees and other unlawful devices cannot be employed without police connivance.

Union-card Jimmy, as Mayor Rolph ought to be called, cannot escape moral responsibility for the conditions which notoriously have plagued his city.

The supporters of Rolph in open-shop Los Angeles, and other open-shop communities of Southern California, have said nothing about this phase of his candidacy, because they know it would be fatal to disclose in any place where working men are free the plans Rolph undoubtedly has for unionizing the State government.

Big Tim Reardon, placed in charge of State construction and the disbursement of the millions of gasoline-tax money, would play the politico-union game to the limit and make the State a paradise for so-called "labor leaders." This end of the State knows full well what that would mean and wants none of it.

This end of the State demands a Governor who will be fair to all alike—to union men and to nonunion men; and who, also, will be fair to all sections of the State.

MUTUAL INSURANCE CONCLAVE

Not dramatic, not spectacular, not sensational in its methods or achievements, the convention of the mutual insurance companies, nevertheless, represents one of the brightest agencies our civilization has produced for stabilizing the brotherhood of man. Los Angeles is honored in acting as host to the 1200 or more delegates who have come to our city to advance the cause of mutual insurance at their thirty-fifth annual convention.

We as children of this modern era are pardonably proud of listing the many concerns and societies devised in the name of charity—from the Red Cross to the Community Chest—for relieving the distress and suffering of the poor and needy, left in less enlightened ages to the tender mercy of chance and the elements. But of all the noble and deserving and capable labors of love carried on for the honor of our common humanity, none has gone so far in defeating misfortune and reducing life's hardships as the grand marshaling of a nation's strength represented by our mutual insurance companies.

W. E. Straub, president of the Farmers' Mutual Insurance Company of Nebraska, told the convention that economic losses due to premature death and preventable illness in the United States amount annually to $6,000,000,000. How many men and women realize the additional loss this would entail were it not for the provision made by the insurance companies, built from the individual offerings of millions of small subscribers into a bulwark and rampart against the consequences of unforeseen sickness and sudden death? How many appreciate the potency of this major factor in the economic welfare of the United States?

Mutual insurance is the faith of man in his fellow-man embodied in gold and silver. It goes further than charity. It has achieved in group assistance what Communism can never achieve. If one wanted to measure the moral, the progressive, the strong and helpful attributes of a nation, no better criterion could be chosen than the wealth invested in mutual insurance. There are many pillars supporting the temple of our American civilization, churches, schools, libraries, fraternal societies, law and order organizations—but if the great central pillar of mutual insurance were removed the whole structure would totter.

The LEE SIDE o' LA
BY Lee Shippey

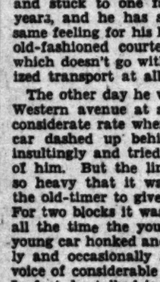
People quite generally are coming to the realization that this is a wonderful time to buy, build or invest, if you have anything to do it with. And evidently a lot of folks have.

Poor Business

There's an old-timer in Hollywood who drives a battered flivver and wears clothes which wrinkle comfortably to all his physical peculiarities, but he can go down to the bank and write a check in six figures which the teller will honor with a smile. He lived there when men rode horseback, and stuck to one favorite horse for years, and he has something of the same feeling for his little car. He has old-fashioned courtesy, too—a thing which doesn't go with modern motorized transport at all.

The other day he was driving down Western avenue at a reasonable and considerate rate when a sporty young car dashed up behind him, honked insultingly and tried to cut in ahead of him. But the line of traffic was so heavy that it was impossible for the old-timer to give it room to pass. For two blocks it was impossible. But all the time the young fellow in the young car honked and grumbled loudly and occasionally swore in a clear voice of considerable carrying quality. In fact, he talked in just the way he wouldn't have wanted some other fellow to talk while his mother or his wife was in earshot. And when at last the flivver could give him room, and he started to dart past, he shouted: "Say, you old duffer, whose funeral do you think you're leading?"

The old duffer suddenly stepped on the gas, shot ahead and crowded the young fellow to the curb. "Was yuh a-speakin' tuh me?" he asked, mildly.



"Hell, yes! What do you mean, holding people up this way! I'm in a hurry, even if you haven't any place to go. I'm too busy—"

"To be a gentleman," interposed the old-timer. "Now, who may you be?"

With a flourish, the young man drew an engraved card case and handed the old man an engraved card. The old man glanced at it and smiled.

"Thank you, suh," he drawled. "But you needn't have been in such a hurry, after all—for I'm the man you were hurryin' to meet. Now I'm going home, an' the deal's off."

He handed the young man a card—and the young man swore again.

"Yes," said the old man, "your partner and I had it all arranged to close a deal this mornin' which would have meant several thousand dollars commission for your firm. But I hadn't ever met you an' now I have I think I'll deal through other brokers. There may be some in this town that can be mannerly out on the road as well as in their offices."

Gentlemen Drivers!

What is it about automobiles which takes all the gentility out of so many people? We have seen men who are polished gentlemen in their homes or in their offices snarl like police dogs when some one driving ahead of them held up traffic or forgot some one of the 4000 things nearly every motorist forgets once or twice every day? What is it that makes women who would grace a drawing-room snap out insulting things at strangers who often aren't guilty of anything except an earnest but puzzled desire to keep out of their way? What is it, in short, which makes the sort of men who ordinarily pass for gentlemen erupt vile language, when they're out driving, toward people who usually are more to be pitied than censured, and makes ladies with all the culture money can buy talk like fishwives?

Among horsemen, there used to be special races for "gentlemen drivers." But, by golly, you'd have to search the city to get enough gentlemen drivers of automobiles to run a twosome.

Joshua Little Says

The queen (according to Galveston beauty judges) of the universe is coming to Hollywood—where she'll learn how little a casting director can make a queen feel.

Hollywood is the great leveler. It has made more queens than you can shake a tip at happy to get jobs as waitresses.

One reason why Los Angeles grows so rapidly is that every time there's a beauty contest anywhere else from one to half a dozen of the contestants come here as soon as they can get the car fare together.

If you're in an airplane when it wrecks you shouldn't get excited. You should merely murmur: "Oh, 'chute!"

After all, there's a lot more fun in being an Attic philosopher than an attic lover.

MORE DISARMAMENT

England's spokesman in the League of Nations, Lord Cecil, is very emphatic in advocating disarmament in the military and air forces as well as in the naval establishment of his country. His recent speech on this subject was broadcast over many lands and is representative of the present thought of the masses in Great Britain as well as other countries. No government is likely to increase its armed strength while this feeling is in the air. The use of bombing planes is being generally discredited. They are a sort of fizzle anyhow and fail to live up to their terrible reputation.

Although might not sell 'em,
But I do hate to rack my cer-Ebellum.

I weed the walk and hoe the lawn
With eager animation,
But with acute ennui I yawn,
And start with hesitation
On any task involving thought;
It's then that I go balmy
For thinking gets me overwrought
And qualmy.

Too bad the labor of his hands
In which a man engages,
So very willingly, commands
Extremely trifling wages,
And that a calling to pursue
Which brings rich food and clothing,
One must do something which I view
With loathing.

WHAT OTHERS THINK ABOUT IT

FAIR PLAY—NOT SECTIONALISM
(Riverside Enterprise)

In making an appeal to the voters of Southern California to arise in their might and claim for the south a fair consideration at the hands of the voters of the State as a whole, the Los Angeles Times points out that "an appeal for the election of a Southern Californian as Governor is not an appeal for sectionalism. It is rather an appeal for the abolition of sectionalism by the only means which experience has shown can accomplish it." It goes on to say, "Sectionalism in its ugliest and most dangerous form—the arbitrary and continuous over-riding of the rights of one section by another through the illegal exercise of illegal power—has long obtained in California. It must end, if California as California is to endure.

"It cannot be made too emphatic that Southern California seeks only her rightful dues in the matter of representation, offices and benefits. Though we have the votes to do so were we so disposed, there is no desire nor intent to visit on the north such injustices as we have so long suffered at its hands. Our rights we do demand—and if we do not use the power that is ours to get them, we shall be less than Americans."

In making a tour of a portion of Riverside county yesterday in company with friends the writer was astonished at the amount of attention that has been attracted to the Pitts cause by The Times of Wednesday morning. Everywhere in Elsinore and Corona one saw copies of the paper prominently displayed on counters and desks and serious expressions on the faces of people who seemed to sense for the first time the glaring inequalities that have existed in this State politically between the north and south ever since the State was organized.

In one city a young man said something like this:

"I would like to vote for a man from Southern California, but the secretary of the Chamber of Commerce says that there are some road bills in the Legislature and if Young is not elected, Southern California will lose all of those roads."

Any secretary of a chamber of commerce who would make such a statement should be fired. In the first place, a secretary of a chamber of commerce has no business mixing in politics and in the second place the information is entirely untrue.

The situation is that the Young administration blocked the effort to secure the Southern California secondary highway system two years ago and it now promises that the Legislature will give us the same roads we asked for before (but were denied) at the next session of the Legislature.

The safest way to secure for Southern California its just due is to elect a Southern California Governor. It is under the present administration that a 3-to-1 ratio in favor of the north has worked out. Just why one should expect a northern-controlled Legislature to give us a 3-to-1 ratio for a while in return is hard to understand. If it knows there is a Governor from the south who will insist on it, however, instead of blocking it, something along that line may be accomplished.

SORTIES IN POLITICS
BY EUGENE BROWN

In the olden days the barber shop was a sort of forum for the disposal of the affairs of city, State and nation. The average citizen would drop in to get his map lathered and would remain to consider the tariff and the pension bill. The head barber was the speaker of the house.

But it is different now.

When the women began to drop in to have their beaus docked the change came about. The man on the end chair was no longer the arbiter and referee. He learned to keep his mouth shut and became about as demonstrative as a pail of lard. He would signal the brush boy to hide the Police Gazette and thereafter kept his thoughts largely to himself. If the skirted customer asked any questions he answered them politely enough, but he advanced little information and the old ring of authority in his voice was missing.

Now it is the women who are doing the talking and they are vocalizing on politics at that.

In a downtown shop the other day a team of brunettes who were having their roots shingled were doing considerable missionary work for Buron Fitts. They had just come from a club meeting at which the candidate had made one of his ringing speeches and they were bubbling over with enthusiasm. They wanted to know how the barbers and the three male customers were going to vote. One of the latter diplomatically observed that he had been for Rolph largely on account of Sunny Jim's amiable disposition, but when he realised that for years and years Southern California had been completely neglected in the distribution of political honors he had decided to support Fitts. The other barbers felt the same way.

I have here a bulky communication from Frank C. Jordan, Secretary of State. It is captioned "Information Concerning Candidates to be Voted Upon at the Primary Election" and I am asked to preserve it until the time of the November round-up so that the facts will be still before me.

But what of it?

The pamphlet strongly resembles a slice of the telephone directory. But for the glory of Genevieve why should I as a citizen and taxpayer be asked to pay the expense of printing the roster of all the guys who have been weak enough to sign a political petition? There are over 5000 names and addresses and they constitute the noblest sucker list that is immediately available in this community. Furthermore, I am willing to bet $900 that not one citizen in fifty will save up the pamphlet for the November doings. It is just another object lesson in the high cost of primary elections.

By the terms of the communication and the accompanying ballot I am able to realize that there are two Youngs running for Governor—neither of whom is young. Also there are two Johnsons and two Smiths in the race for the nomination for State Treasurer. Incidentally, for the office of Assessor no less than four different birds by the name of Hopkins are chasing one another. What's in a name? The average careless citizen will have a lovely time sorting over this collection and determining his choice. There is at least an even chance of his going wrong.

I was visibly intrigued by the name of one candidate. This is none other than Tallant Tubbs. It seems that he is an aspirant for the office of Lieutenant-Governor. He is a resident of San Francisco and makes rope for a living. Some of the best ropes used at San Quentin have come from his shop. Incidentally, he has been a State Senator for six years, so that he can hardly be considered an experiment in politics. But his name lures me. Is he one of the Tubbs having Tallant enough to stand on its own bottom?

WHAT DO YOU OWN?
By The Foothill Philosopher

There are two kinds of wealth. One kind is assumed and, therefore, is an illusion. The other kind is inherent in the nature of man and, therefore, is genuine.

Apart from that which you are, apart from the richness of your being, what can you call your own?

That possession which is apart from its owner is, of necessity, limited in value and time. He who believes that his possession has been acquired must, logically, admit that his possession could be lost. In such a consciousness of wealth there is no sense of security.

True possession consists in the knowledge that possessor and the thing possessed are, essentially, one. In other words, a person possesses only that which he is. No one can "own" anything which is not a part of himself. Even the soul cannot acquire new possessions—it can only slough off the false ideas of poverty which have been allowed to cover it, like a veil, and, by so doing, behold again. In all things, the pure reflection of its own glory. Perhaps that is what was meant by the Teacher who advised His friends to lay up for themselves treasures in that kingdom (which He said is within man) "where moth and rust do not corrupt and where thieves do not break through and steal."

VISION
BY LANNIE HAYNES MARTIN

Five thousand years ago when Egypt was devastated twice a year from the floods of the Nile, and each petty politician had a different solution for the grave economic problems of the country, Mendes changed the course of the river, built Thebes, Karnac and Luxor, planted trees and founded a great empire.

When the vast hordes of overpopulated Rome were suffering from many deprivations complaining of the tribunes arose, formed the agrarian laws, built aqueducts to irrigate the land so that each man could have his own fire, air, land and water; could plant his own vine and fig tree and receive the inheritance which nature had entailed and intended for him.

"No fire when Tiber freezes;
No air in dog-star heat!"

And so it has been in every time and every country, some one seeing further than the immediate needs of his clamorous countrymen, has had a new and synthesizing vision of natural forces and has combined them in a phalanx to fight for man.

This man of the comprehending vision now in California is George H. Barnes, candidate for Congress from the Tenth District, and there is scarcely a measure from flood control to fish and game supply, from fire prevention to farmer's relief which is not directly influenced by the conservation platform on which he stands.

Holy Writ and all of the philosophers of the ages have reiterated that "no man liveth, or dieth, to himself," and Mr. Barnes and his co-workers in the Green Cross movement will prove to us, if we will let them, that man and all of the elements are so inter-related that in destroying the forests we are bringing destruction on ourselves, by failing to prevent forest fires we are entailing the sun's devastating heat, by neglecting to conserve the soil of the mountain, which the tree preserves, that we along with the tree will suffer from the torrent, the avalanche and the denuded fertility of the valley.

Besides these extremely practical results, which are evident, it is interesting from an abstract, philosophical point of view, to consider how closely related are all of the atoms, elements, forces and factors in nature. Some, in their study of this phenomenon, have made the greatest discoveries in science and some have realised what real religion means.

None But Americans?

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 16.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Is it not true that some time ago our City Council passed an ordinance stating that none but American citizens could be employed on city contracts? What has become of it? Why isn't it enforced?

Go down on Towne avenue near Fifth and see the idle men watching the labor boards, then go out on any sewer or pavement job and try and get in a conversation with one of the workmen and just see how much he understands. Even the contractor himself more than likely only knows a few words of English. Go to the City Hall on Wednesday when bids are being opened and see what a collection from Southern Europe you will find and not a word of English to be heard.

Why Not Be Consistent?

VENICE, Aug. 18.—[To the Editor of The Times:] During the past few months the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce has been making a lot of "whoopee," requesting folks to "Buy Los Angeles-made products" and patronize home industry, etc. But a few days ago Mr. Austin, president of Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, came out strongly for Young for Governor.

Why urge the election of a northern man when they have elected a northern man for Governor five out of six recent elections and increased our State debt four times faster than our increase in population, and we have a clean, aggressive, Southern California (home-product) man in the race?

THE CONTINENT OF DREAMS

Dream on, sweet child! Leave not your world of dreams!
Cling to your fairies! Hold your angel's hand!
In all the bright days that you are to know,
Your spirit shall not find so fair a land!

Keep dreaming, gentle maid and noble youth!
The world that you must meet is not so true
Nor lovely as the realm that fancy weaves
From golden threads within the heart of you.

Be still, fond mother! Close your eyes again
And dream once more of him you brought to birth.
The light and wonder of all life is he,
Bearing a message that shall bless our earth.

Though years fly past upon the wings of time,
Dream on, dear mortals, till your work is done—
With faith that twilight shall reveal the dawn
That dreamers find beyond the setting sun.

F. E. Chaffee Dies in Auto at La Cresta

PASADENA, Aug. 19. (Exclusive) Frank E. Chaffee, 38 years of age, son of Hugh G. Chaffee, former millionaire operator of a chain of stores and markets, was found dead here tonight in the seat of his automobile within closed doors of a garage at 1669 La Cresta. He had died of carbon monoxide poison, police said, and apparently had been dead since Sunday night.

The body was discovered by Chaffee's brother-in-law, Carlton Riggins, of 1230 Boston street, Altadena, who had gone to search for his relative after he had failed to appear to keep an engagement with a friend. Police are investigating the case on the theory of suicide.

No notes were found in the garage or in the car where the body had slumped over. The officers said that the motor of the automobile had run until its gas had given out.

Chaffee leaves a divorced wife, Mrs. Lorella Chaffee; a son, Frank, Jr., and a daughter, Carol.

Former Sheriff will be Tried

Charles M. Appiestill, former Sheriff of Imperial county, yesterday pleaded not guilty before Municipal Judge Curtis to a charge of liquor possession. He was released on $500 bail pending jury trial on September 18, next.

Appiestill, according to Deputy City Prosecutor Hall, was arrested by Federal Agent Smith last Monday after the latter made arrangements to purchase twenty-five gallons of alcohol from him. The alcohol was delivered, according to Hall, at Seventh street and Union avenue and Appiestill was arrested by Smith as he attempted to make the sale.

Dry Chief Goes to San Diego

William G. Walker, prohibition administrator for the district comprising California, Nevada and Hawaii, and his assistant, Col. George H. W. Woodcock, head of the new Prohibition Bureau of the Department of Justice.

BURKE AGAIN ASKS MAYOR TO QUIT JOB

Thinly Veiled Thrusts at Porter Campaign Expense Contained in Letter

Charles W. Burke, a private detective, once Mayor Porter's choice as "reorganizer" of the police department, has renewed his demand for Porter's resignation in a letter sent to the chief executive under date of the 15th inst., it was learned yesterday.

Burke, digging up various incidents of the Porter-for-Mayor campaign of fifteen months ago, suggests that Porter "deliver the office of Mayor to some citizen who is capable, and one upon whom we can look with pride."

Referring to the Mayor's official expense account of $1579 for the final campaign, Burke writes: "I trust nothing shall ever happen which would place me on the witness stand under cross-examination regarding what I know about the contribution to your campaign.

"The people have made an error," Burke continues, "but you should not hold hem to a bad bargain simply because the law is in your favor. There are almost 1,500,000 people affected by your inability to conduct the office of Mayor, and you could make admirers of them all, by acknowledging your weakness and voluntarily turning the reins over to one of them who could conduct the city's affairs, in the interest of all, and not solely for the financial benefit of one family and a few incompetent friends."

Mayor Porter, when advised of the letter, repeated his formula, "I have nothing to say."

Illness Delays Trial of Fewkes

Illness of his attorney, William J. Clark, yesterday caused the trial of J. B. Fewkes, charged with violating the Corporate Securities Act, to be continued until September 22, next, in Superior Judge Vickrin's court.

Fewkes is accused of selling $6500 worth of stock in the Accounting Service Company to Mrs. Thomas E. Merrill of 137 North Carson Road, Beverly Hills, without obtaining a permit from the State Corporation Commissioner.

Fewkes originally was also charged with eight counts of grand theft of funds from Mrs. Merrill but these charges were placed off calendar.

CHANGE IN ROAD TAX USE URGED

Supervisor Graves Seeks to Ease Assessment Evil

Traffic Survey Held Vital in Problem's Solution

Putting More of Burden on Auto Drivers Proposed

A plan for relieving property owners of the special-assessment burden in paying for paving and improving of major arterial highways by making a scientific application of the gasoline and automobile license tax, which is returned to each county by the State in proportion to its automobile registration, is being advocated by Sidney T. Graves, former member of the State Legislature, now chairman of the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors.

Graves declared yesterday that efforts soon will be made to acquaint the various civic bodies of Los Angeles county, good-road advocates and the State Highway Commission with the plan now being formulated.

The plan, according to Supervisor Graves, has been used successfully in Cook county, Ill.; in the region of Cleveland; in Connecticut, Vermont, Pennsylvania and New Hampshire.

SURVEY URGED

"A comprehensive and scientific survey should be made by the United States Bureau of Public Roads to ascertain the beginning and destination of all traffic and the proportion of interstate, State, county and local traffic on our streets," Graves said.

"On the basis of such a scientific traffic survey, this county could prepare a highway development program for Los Angeles county, including incorporated cities. Highway improvements on the basis of this program would be paid for entirely out of the license tax and the gasoline tax, which is turned over to the county by the State.

"The plan undoubtedly would speed up construction work," Graves continued, "and relieve traffic congestion."

GREAT PROBLEM

"We are dealing with a tremendous problem that affects every person in our metropolitan area and we are facing it with a pitiful lack of information regarding the vital facts.

"The most recent figures on automobile registration indicate that in this county there are 2.8 persons per automobile. This, coupled with the ratio of 3.5 persons per family, signifies that there is more than one automobile per family.

"Unfortunately, as conditions now are, the burden is on the wrong person. It is on the taxpayer and the property owner, where in reality it should be on the shoulders of the automobile owner who uses our public highways and who, in fact, is far more numerous than is the owner of property now assessed for the cost of highways.

"At present we just don't know enough about traffic to spend our money equitably where it will do the greatest good."

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

SANTA MONICA, Aug. 19. In an attempt to recover a ball thrown in the ocean by some children playing on the beach, T. R. Neuman, 33 years of age, 603 North Harper avenue, Hollywood, sank to his death at noon today in the surf off Seaside Terrace.

"If the weather is good I might hop off tomorrow," Schneider said last night. "I'll go as soon as the reports are promising."

The youngster winged his way here from Westfield Airport, N. J., in twenty-nine hours and forty-one minutes elapsed flying time, to break the record set by the late Frank Goldsborough.

SPIDER'S BITE SENDS WOMAN TO HOSPITAL

When Marie Brem, 27 years of age, stepped out of bed yesterday morning at her home, 311 South Grand avenue, her foot came in contact with a black spider which bit her on the right toe. An ugly looking swelling developed, and the woman was taken to General Hospital for treatment. She was allowed to return home, but was provided a serum she is to use and was also told to return for another treatment if the swelling does not subside.

Java Publisher Tells Strides of Education

Modern educational programs are decreasing the rate of illiteracy in the Dutch East Indies, according to Theodore Fr. J. A. Koemans, managing director of Nieuws ven der Tag, largest newspaper published in Java, who is returning through Los Angeles to his home in Holland following a six-year stay at Batavia.

The area covered by The News of the Day is approximately 800,000 square miles with a population of 60,000,000 people of whom less than 1 per cent can read or write. The present circulation of the newspaper is in the hands of 60,000 Europeans. The paper is printed in the Dutch language with two columns in English. While here Mr. Koemans is making a study of The Times and other newspapers.

Traffic Safety Tunnel Voted

A safeguard in the form of a pedestrian tunnel is to be built by Los Angeles county for veterans of the Civil and Spanish-American wars quartered at the National Soldiers' Home in Sawtelle.

Appropriation of $15,000 for the new tunnel, which is to be 125 feet in length, was voted yesterday by the Board of Supervisors on motion of Supervisor Quinn.

The tunnel is to be built at San Vicente Boulevard and Federal street, where there is a fork of a number of other streets, intersected by the tracks of the Pacific Electric Railway.

ACCUSATION OF BRIBERY DISMISSED

Mexico City Attorney in Tia Juana Court Proves Charge Misunderstanding

Lack of evidence against Antonio Cortina Gutierrez, attorney, accused of attempting to bribe Mexican officials in the interests of his American clients, caused Judge Corso to dismiss the case last Monday in the Tia Juana court, according to a statement made yesterday by Senor Gutierrez, who is a guest here.

"It is true that I was held in a Tia Juana jail incommunicado for several days, on charges preferred against me by Manuel Porto, Chief of Police of Tia Juana, who accused me of having tried to bribe Gov. Tapia to grant certain concessions to my clients. Neither Gov. Tapia nor my clients were called as witnesses.

"Neither of my clients understands Spanish, which was the language used by Gov. Tapia and myself. Our conversation was interpreted to the pair and it is not impossible that they misunderstood the interpretation and so, unintentionally, bore false witness against me."

Senor Gutierrez, who has practiced law in Mexico City since 1923 and whose three brothers also are well-known attorneys of Mexico City, said he has sent telegrams to President Ortiz Rubio and to newspapers of Mexico City in an effort to clear up the misunderstanding.

Many lovely affairs have been given in honor of Miss Hamilton since the announcement of her engagement several months ago, the last being the dinner-dance with which Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton entertained last evening at the Club Casa Del Mar, Santa Monica, following the church rehearsal.

Mrs. Richard Edward Hambrook (Mignon Hamilton,) will be matron of honor, Miss Virginia Glendenning, maid of honor, and Misses Harriet Segall, Miss Theda Dickinson of Santa Cruz and Miss Dorothy Wolff of Tempe, Ariz., bridesmaids. Smart Affair

One of the charming events of the past week was that with which Miss Grace Pinkerton entertained at the Maryland Hotel in Pasadena last Wednesday afternoon, twenty guests from Los Angeles and Pasadena being bidden.

Your Baby and Mine

by MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Mrs. Eldred will be glad to answer all questions pertaining to babies and children. A stamped and self-addressed envelope forwarded to this office will bring a personal reply.

This department offers leaflets on weaning and feeding the child from 6 weeks to 6 years, prenatal care and diet for the nursing mother, constipation, eczema, outfits for the new baby, sleeping, walking, teething, thumb sucking, ammoniacal urine, bed wetting, training in cleanly habits, periods of nursing, cod liver oil, orange juice, hives, worms, vomiting, refractory children, prune juice, lime water, rupture, styes and boils and cradle cap. Before asking a personal question about one of these subjects, it is better to send a self-addressed stamped envelope for the leaflet you need. If your particular problem is not covered in the above list, Mrs. Eldred will be glad to give you a personal reply.

WANDERLUST LIKE MEASLES—BREAKS OUT EARLY IN LIFE

In every family there is at least one child who has a desire for the greener pastures beyond his own limited yard. The wanderlust breaks out so early in his life that warnings of harm, threats of punishments, promises exacted from him that he will stay at home, are alike ineffective. The child of less than 2 years, even of 2½ years, sees something interesting and wanders off entirely forgetful of the dire penalties he will suffer if he does.

Mrs. D. writes: "I was interested in a recent discussion of the runaway. I believe in most cases the child runs to something for most homes are normally interesting to the child. But in this day of the automobile most small children only see the world from the automobile window or from a perambulator. Perhaps it would be best to satisfy their curiosity by letting them walk out.

"My little girl began running down the street (it is on an incline and so much easier to run down than up) and so I discontinued using her carriage when I took her for an airing and let her walk long distances, even though it made it harder for me. It worked in my case, though I realized that this was not a real runaway problem and might not apply in extreme cases."

RUNAWAYS NEED GREATER FREEDOM, WELL CHAPERONED

We think this a happy solution. Without this counter satisfaction it was easily possible for the child to have developed into a runaway. All children dislike restraints of every kind. They dislike beds, sometimes solely because of the high sides. They dislike pens and screened porches, no matter how attractively furnished with toys, only because both offer restraints to their liberty. Their one aim is to get outside of these visible barriers.

If, when the child goes out with the mother to walk, he is allowed to choose his own destination and walk freely without the mother's restraining hand, he satisfies this natural desire to enlarge his world and act like a free being.

If he learns to look carefully when crossing the streets to be sure that they are empty, if mother says, "Shall we go down this street?" and allows the child to signify his willingness, then there is no real need for running away.

A SUBSTITUTE ACTIVITY

The older child may run where there are companions instead of staying where there is much to do, but no one to do it with. He may need play apparatus upon which he can work off some of his boundless energy, instead of being told to "run and play" when there is nothing to play with. In that case he forgets the last injunction and just runs.

In correcting any bad habit it is wise to make use of the principle of furnishing the child a substitute activity that is harmless and satisfying. The daily walk would be just that to the child who runs away to enjoy worlds bigger than his own.

Health and Diet ADVICE

by DR. FRANK McCOY

Author of "The Fat Way to Health"

THE TREATMENT OF PERITONITIS

An attack of peritonitis begins with great pain over the abdomen with chills and rigor. The abdominal muscles are rigid. The patient avoids abdominal breathing and lies on the back with the knees drawn up. Vomiting occurs early and is violent. The pulse is fast, from 110 to 150. The temperature is high. The patient may show symptoms of collapse from general poisoning. As long as the cavity is able to encase the toxins the collapse may not develop, but when they begin to seep into the lymphatics and are distributed over the body, a toxic poisoning results. The face is sharp and bony, the expression anxious, the eyes sunken and the patient is mentally distressed. These conditions usually indicate a fatal case unless the disease is recognized and the right treatment used immediately.

Peritonitis is often fatal when it is caused by a perforating ulcer from the stomach, duodenum or appendix. The outlook is better when it is the result of an inflammation which spreads from the pelvic organs. The simple inflammation from other organs is not usually dangerous when ulcers do not develop. The body is often able to wall up the process and the patient improves, but if the infection spreads from the local area throughout the rest of the cavity, there is a relapse which may prove fatal. An increase in the pulse or hiccoughs, and the reappearance of vomiting, are dangerous signs.

There is no doubt that doctors often use the term peritonitis lessly to cover up ferent kinds of abdomen to which it is dary. IMPY MEETS A COUSIN

Such friends we have are as we may make;
Our relatives we have to take.
—Striped Chipmunk.

Despite the warning he had received from his father, Striped Chipmunk, Impy the black Chipmunk persisted in staying out later than any of the others of his family. He liked to be out after the coming of the Black Shadows. You see, owing to that black coat of his, he felt very safe then. He felt that he couldn't be seen and so had little to fear. Quite naturally, he knew very little about the night-seeing folk, the ones who like best to hunt at night. He knew nothing about eyes made for seeing in the dark. Sometimes he himself could see very little by the time he went to bed. He didn't know that there were others who could see very well at that hour. To be sure, Striped Chipmunk had told him about the Owl family, but never having seen a member of the Owl family, he couldn't understand about those wonderful night-seeing eyes.

As a rule, Impy did not venture far from the entrance to his home after the coming of the Black Shadows. He usually sat where he could dive right into the entrance at the first alarm. Once in a while, however, when he felt a little bolder than usual, he would venture farther away from home. It happened one afternoon that Impy was quite a little distance from home when the first of the Black Shadows came creeping across the Green Meadows. He really wasn't far away. At least, you wouldn't have thought it far. But it was far enough so that in case of danger he would have to scamper a little way before he could dive to safety between the stones of the old wall.

Now, of course, the wise and proper thing would have been for Impy to start for home as soon as that first Black Shadow reached the old stone wall. But he didn't. He waited for a second Black Shadow to come, and then a third and a fourth. Up overhead he saw the first little stars begin to twinkle. He doubted if his brothers and sisters had ever seen a twinkling star. He felt very bold and very brave.

"I'm not afraid," said he to himself. "I don't see why people should be afraid just because it is dark. Why, I have never had a single real scare after the coming of the Black Shadows. I suppose that those owls that my father told me about are dangerous; but I guess if I watch out I needn't worry about them."

Just then there was a little soft thump almost beside Impy. It was so unexpected that he almost lost his balance. He did start to run when a voice said, "What is your hurry, Cousin?"

Impy stopped. Anyone who called him Cousin could hardly be dangerous. He looked. There was a member of the Squirrel family not so very much bigger than himself. Cautiously, Impy took a step nearer. "Who are you?" he asked.

"One of your cousins," replied the little stranger. "I am Timmy the Flying Squirrel."

"The what?" cried Impy.

Timmy chuckled. "The Flying Squirrel," said he.

"Do you really fly?" cried Impy, opening his eyes very wide.

"No," said he, chuckling again: "A lot of people think I do, but I don't. You see, I haven't real wings, and how can one fly without wings? By the way, are you a Chipmunk?"

"Certainly. Of course I'm a Chipmunk. I'm just as much a Chipmunk as any other Chipmunk, only I have a black coat," replied Impy.

CITY BUREAU REPORT MADE

Audit Shows Power and Light Net Profit for Year to be $4,224,498; Assets Increase

The gross earnings of the city-owned Bureau of Power and Light for the year ending June 30, last, as certified to by Price, Waterhouse & Co., amounted to $15,295,009.41, as compared with $14,737,762.58, for the same period in 1929, or an increase in gross earnings for the current year of $557,246.83, according to a report submitted to the Board of Water and Power Commissioners by E. F. Scattergood, chief electrical engineer and general manager, at yesterday's board meeting.

The auditors further state that the bureau's net income before deducting interest and depreciation amounted to $7,761,377.64. After deducting interest and depreciation there remains a net income of $4,224,498.82.

The bureau's plant and equipment account shows an increase of $2,592,200.95 for the year. At the close of the current year this item totaled $68,248,650.63.

The bureau's gain in net assets for the year amounts to $3,880,965.78, the whole amount being $79,533,150.47.

In discussing the bureau's showing for the year ending June, 1930, Scattergood said:

"In spite of the fact that business conditions have been below par for the past year the domestic use of electrical energy has been broadened. Not through a large increase in consumers but through a wider use in the domestic field.

"On the first of the current year the bureau put into effect rate reductions amounting to approximately $1,200,000. This lowering of rates, instead of being reflected in the form of a loss to the bureau, had the opposite effect. The increased use of electricity in the home has been marked."

The bureau will ask the citizens' approval of a bond issue for $19,000,000 on November 4. This issue, together with $12,000,000 which the bureau will supply from its net revenues, will be utilized over the three-year period 1930-1933 to expand the present system to absorb the new power load from Boulder Dam and to increase the production of Power Plant No. 2 by adding a new unit.

Plants will be constructed in Owens Valley to care for the city's pumping on newly acquired water-bearing lands and a transmission line will be built from the valley to Power Plant No. 1 to utilize any surplus power that may be available after caring for these needs.

Part of the money will also be used in acquiring rights of way for the Boulder Dam transmission line that will bring Boulder Dam power to Los Angeles.

TRICK ADDRESS EASILY SOLVED

Santa Barbara Postoffice Sends "Saturday Night" Street Letter to Bath

SANTA BARBARA, Aug. 19. Postoffice clerks here must be nimble witted to handle some problem correspondence that comes here for delivery.

The latest problem address which stumped the local office force for a while was a letter addressed to a resident on "Saturday night street." There is no such street exactly so named.

After a series of conferences, the conundrum was solved, when a distributor placed the letter in the box for the postman for Bath street. The letter was promptly delivered to the proper person.

Young administration, charging Gov. Young with having failed to fulfill his promises and charging that the Governor's system of appointing a commission to take charge of every important question had resulted in talk, delay and no results.

Former Gov. Richardson and Judge White at Recreation Center tomorrow night are promised the record-breaking political meeting of the primary campaign in Santa Barbara county.

RIVERSIDE TO HEAR FRIEND W. RICHARDSON

RIVERSIDE, Aug. 19. (Exclusive) Former Gov. Friend W. Richardson today notified the Riverside Fitts-for-Governor Club that he will arrive here Friday morning, 9 a.m., and will devote the entire day to aiding the candidacy of Fitts for the Republican nomination for Governor. An itinerary for Richardson is being prepared today and will be announced tomorrow.

Richardson is highly popular in Riverside county and city, and with sentiment already overwhelmingly strong for Southern California's candidate here Richardson's visit is expected to insure a record majority for Fitts.

It is planned to have the former Governor visit several towns in the county for addresses.

LONG BEACH WELCOMES FORMER GOVERNOR

LONG BEACH, Aug. 19.—Friend Richardson, former Governor, will speak here in his old stronghold in support of the candidacy of Buron Fitts for the Republican nomination for Governor at a rally here, plans for which were started tonight at a meeting of Fitts supporters at Los Angeles.

Pepper Crop to be Satisfactory

SANTA ANA, Aug. 19. — Prospects for a satisfactory crop of peppers in Orange county continue bright, as the crop is reaching the stage of greatest growth just prior to maturity, Eric R. Eastman, assistant farm adviser, announced here today.

The weevil infestations are not large and, taking the area as a whole, will cause but little damage, according to the best estimate possible at this midseason period, Eastman said.

SURVEY TO BE MADE FOR BOAT ANCHORAGE

NEWPORT BEACH, Aug. 19.—Lloyd Claire and A. J. Garfield were appointed representatives from the City Council to co-operate with a committee from the Newport Harbor Chamber of Commerce in making a survey of the needs of the harbor for boat anchorage space. The overcrowded conditions existing in the harbor during the recent regattas, coupled with the fact that many new boats have made the harbor their home since the extensive harbor development, have taxed the anchorage space to the limit. City Engineer R. L. Patterson and Harbor Master M. S. Robinson will serve as members of the committee. Frank L. Smith and J. B. McNally were appointed by the Chamber of Commerce to work on the matter.

DRUM-BUGLE CORPS WINS

For Second Time in Three Years, South Pasadena's Legion Organization Made State Champion

SOUTH PASADENA, Aug. 19.—For the second time in three years, the local American Legion post's drum and bugle corps won the State championship yesterday after defeating sixty crack organizations from all parts of California.

The victory was not unexpected, according to Commander E. A. Stuart, in view of the fact that the corps has practiced four times a week for three months, led by Drum Majors Floyd Ricketts and William Osmond. Special music played at the Sacramento convention yesterday was composed by William T. Killigrove, musical director. Gordon Oury is corps president. The drummers were led by Frank Barr and William Welder headed the buglers.

In 1928, South Pasadena Post, No. 140, won the same contest at Stockton, and later won fourth place in the national competition.

The $750 prize money won yesterday at Sacramento, together with an appropriation of $1000 by the State Legion, will be used to send the drum corps to the national convention this year, and, according to the Legion officials, the local corps has an excellent chance to win the championship of the United States this year.

New Arrival in Ontario Says His Country About Size of County

ONTARIO, Aug. 19.—When A. J. Van Dort brought his family from Saintpoort, Holland, to this city to visit with his cousin, Mrs. E. S. Deutschman of 127 South Campus avenue, all members of the family became so "taken" with the community of oranges, lemons and peaches they have forsaken the old home and purchased another one here. The Van Dort family are living at 942 Nocita street.

Crowded conditions of Holland and in Europe generally caused the Van Dort family to look with longing eyes toward America. San Bernardino county, he said, is about the size of his entire nation of 7,000,000 people.

"Your orchards," he said, "are spread over an area which to us seems vast in comparison to Holland. In Holland the fields are very small, and all agriculture is of necessity developed on a much smaller scale. Below the level of the sea, our fields are criss-crossed by ditches, and, contrary to your system, we must pump the water out of the land.

"Agriculture in Holland is beginning to feel the arrival of the machine age, but not extensively as yet. Power harvesting machines are still to be adopted generally, but the people are beginning to realise their value. I have a nephew, Jack Jacks, whose experience proves that. Alfalfa is one of the chief crops of the land and one of his staple products. As the soil is very soft and 'fat,' he found it necessary to employ three horses to manipulate his mowing machine. So he took the engine out of a Ford car and attached it to his sickle. The power from the motor moved the knives and the implement itself could then be dragged easily by one horse, because of the lessened friction. It is in such ways that the Dutch are discovering the value of machinery."

Van Dort said that wooden shoes, despite all rumors to the contrary in the United States, are still worn by the majority in Holland, especially in the farming districts. Van Dort will follow his vocation here as an interior decorator and painter.

Burbank Masons to Get Enlarged Lodge Quarters

BURBANK, Aug. 19. — The Burbank Masonic Lodge is to have its new club quarters in the enlarged Kahl Building. This was indicated today when a building permit was issued to C. B. Kahl for extensive additions to his building, located at 248-250 North Olive avenue.

The addition is to consist of an extension of the first floor to the alley, and the construction of a second story above the entire first floor. This will make the structure fifty feet wide and 150 feet long. The entire second floor will be arranged for the housing of the local lodge, a ten-year lease having been signed by the trustees. Provisions have been made, however, by which the lease can be sold at any time the lodge wishes to construct a temple of its own. The new rooms will have a large lodge hall, banquet hall, clubrooms, kitchen and all the other requirements of up-to-date quarters for the activities of the Blue Lodge and the Eastern Star, which also will occupy the building.

It is planned by the officials of the lodge to furnish the rooms with modern furniture, fixtures and equipment. The contract calls for the completion of the building, ready for occupancy by November 1, next. The cost of the entire project is estimated at about $16,000.

Angler at Last Gets Swordfish

NEWPORT BEACH, Aug. 19.—After many attempts at fishing, covering a period of four years, Bob Meiklejohn, Los Angeles, has achieved his "heart's desire" in landing a swordfish.

Meiklejohn had visited every port along the coast in an attempt to have a rare battle with one of these monsters of the sea. Trying again off this coast he encountered the sport that he was seeking. He got a swordfish on his line, and following a desperate fight lasting two hours and twenty minutes, he won as his prize, a 178-pound a cordfish.

An eight-foot hammerhead swordfish weighing 304 pounds was the rare specimen captured off the coast here by Paul Cote, Los Angeles attorney. His name was enrolled on the Balboa Swordfish Club roster after he appeared with his prize.

Swordfish and dolphin, two varieties of fish that anglers sometimes spend years in trying to capture, are seen rather plentifully this season.

Road Planned from Imperial to Mountains

EL CENTRO, Aug. 19.—Under an agreement made public and approved today by the Imperial county Board of Supervisors, work is to be started during the coming winter on a road giving Imperial Valley residents direct access to the coast range of mountains at Julian, in San Diego county.

Imperial county has agreed to furnish $20,000 annually for the construction of the road on condition that San Diego county and the State each appropriate $60,000 a year. It is reported that the State authorities and San Diego county officials have agreed to this proposal.

The new highway is to connect with the present Salton Sea route at Kane Springs and will provide the northern part of Imperial Valley with a more direct route to the mountain resorts in San Diego county than the present road from El Centro to Jacumba.

The committee which drew up the agreement approved by the Supervisors today was composed of Supervisor Leroy Aul of San Diego county and George Kreuger and Supervisor Henry L. Jackson of Imperial county.

WATER COMMISSION NAMED

Redlands Chamber of Commerce President Appoints Body with J. J. Prendergast Chairman

REDLANDS, Aug. 19.—A permanent water commission of seven members was appointed by President Jay C. Sexton of the Chamber of Commerce today. The committee, to be known as the Metropolitan Water District Committee, will give special and continual consideration to the present and future water needs of the community and familiarize itself with details of the Los Angeles-Colorado River aqueduct plans.

The committee membership is J. J. Prendergast, chairman; George Hinckley, Allen Wheaton, Will Fowler, Dr. M. J. Sweeney, Fred Clock and Henry G. Clement. Formation of the committee grew out of discussion launched by Prendergast anent the Metropolitan Water District plan, in which eleven communities of Southern California are co-operating.

The invitation to join the district should not be lightly turned down, he stated, and yet Redlands is in a little more fortunate situation than any other community of the Southwest as regards present water supply, and that which may be developed. Within thirty to sixty days, he stated, the district will issue its definite report as to the aqueduct routing and the costs involved. At that time this community will be in best position to decide if the load of carrying the membership, from which there will be no benefit for a number of years, is justified.

COST ABOUT $1,000,000

George Hinckley, City Engineer, stated that the cost to Redlands would approximate $1,000,000, as near as estimates can be made at this time. The calculation is made on the basis of 5 per cent of the assessed valuation.

"It will be a long time before Redlands actually needs the water," said Hinckley. "We have at present and for possible future development sufficient water for a population of 50,000. If we look for a population of 100,000 it would be well to get in with the aqueduct plan. Otherwise the present generation would be carrying a load from which there would be no direct benefit.

"There is no question that the aqueduct will be a great benefit to all communities, whether members or not of the district. What the eleven communities receive from that source will be saved to other districts by not being taken from the local sources. It seems hardly fair that only eleven cities should bear all the expense, and yet the tax load for an indirect benefit is a serious responsibility."

DEFINITE ACTION URGED

Prendergast advised that action be deferred until the consulting board of the district files its report, when costs and loads can better be decided. It may be possible that cities can come in later, but he was of the opinion that the hump of accumulated costs might be difficult to hurdle at one time at some future date.

"It is such an important project for the Southwest that it should be given careful consideration. We should look ahead not only ten years, but fifty years," he concluded.

GOVERNORS INVITED TO DEDICATION

Western State Executives Bidden to Formal Opening of County Fair Building

POMONA, Aug. 19. — Invitations were on their way today from the Pomona Chamber of Commerce to governors of eleven western States to participate in the formal dedication ceremonies of the new agricultural and horticultural building of the Los Angeles county fair on the opening day, September 12, according to J. M. Paige, secretary of the local body.

The invitations include also the governors of the three border States of the republic of Mexico, the Governor of Hawaii, and to more than 300 members of boards of supervisors in California's fifty-eight counties.

Caves will give the welcoming address, to be followed by Gov. Young, who will deliver the dedicatory address and present building keys to Sidney J. Graves, chairman of the Los Angele County Board of Supervisors. The acceptance speech will be made by Charles P. Curran, president of the Los Angeles County Fair Association.

The committee in charge of arrangements includes Fred Smith, chairman; Merrill E. Fellows, vice-chairman; J. M. Paige, secretary; Sidney J. Graves, Fred T. Beaty, Mayor C. C. Caves, Cadet Taylor, A. Youth Must be Served, Even to Free Golf Links

RIVERSIDE, Aug. 19.—If Riverside High School and Junior College students do not have a well-rounded education it will not be the fault of the School Board. Today the board listened to a proposal from H. E. Wilson, supervisor of physical education in the city schools, that an abandoned athletic field at Fourteenth street and Brockton avenue be transformed into a nine-hole golf course for the use of high school and junior college students.

No action was taken but the board members are understood to have expressed themselves as highly favorable to the project. It was pointed out that in addition to giving young people an opportunity to learn and perfect themselves in the ancient and honorable game, the golf course would also result in a considerable saving to the youth who are at present generous patrons of courses on which they are required to pay fees.

Junior college faculty members impressed on the board the need of a course on which the school golf teams can practice and thus be better prepared to uphold the honor of the school. Definite action is to be taken at next week's meeting.

Miller yesterday where he was held to answer to Superior Court, his bail being placed at $2500.

A few weeks ago Solis was driving his automobile along Sixty-first street, when it is said the car ran into the Knezevich boy, son of Deputy Constable and Mrs. William Knezevich. Solis was returned to the scene of the accident and was placed under arrest by the child's father, brought to the office of Judge Miller and a charge placed against him.

PROPOSED CITY CHARTER READY

Ventura Voters to Pass on Document November 4

Board of Freeholders Files Draft it Approves

Council-Manager Plan of Administration Studied

VENTURA, Aug. 19. — November 4, the date of the general election, has been set as the time for submitting to the voters of this city a proposed charter. At last night's meeting of the Council the Board of Freeholders which has been working for two months and a half filed its draft, which has been unanimously approved and adopted.

The chart r calls for the Council-Manager plan. Under its provisions full legislative authority is vested in an elective Council of seven members, to serve without pay for six-year terms.

COUNCIL POWERS TOLD

This Council is given the widest of legislative authority and is relieved of all administrative detail. It is empowered to select a manager, who is subject to dismissal at will by a five-sevenths vote of the Council. To the hands of the Manager is placed general supervision of all departments of the city government except library, schools and police court. Library directors and police judge are selected by the Council, and school trustees elected as at present.

Strong provisions are made for an annual budget under which all municipal operations are to be carried on. The section relating to powers of the city vests the widest home rule control in the hands of the municipality which is permissible under the State constitution.

DOCUMENT MADE BRIEF

An effort was made by the freeholders to keep the document as brief as possible, and as it was filed with the Council it contains only forty-one double-space typewritten pages.

During the various stages of the charter drafting expert counsel was obtained from Dr. Edwin A. Cattrell of Stanford University, Prof. Mayo of the University of California and Prof. Pfiffner of the University of Southern California, all of them considered authorities on municipal government. The draft has been generally praised by governmental authorities as being one of the most concise and modern yet drafted in California.

Members of the freeholders' board were James Blackstock, Merle C. Rogers, J. E. Rains, D. J. Reed, Floyd J. Hickey, Robert M. Sheridan, Arthur E. Wilwert, W. H. Glover, E. E. Wiker, John A. Lagomarsino, J. E. Noyes, J. M. Argabrite, J. E. Barker, Mrs. G. C. Coffey and J. H. Hindale.

The city for a period of years has been operating under the statute governing cities of the fifth class.

Lemons Drop in Auction Centers

SAN FERNANDO, Aug. 19.—California lemons, after several weeks of pulling down top-notch prices have taken a decided drop in the average price on the eastern and middle-western auction centers during the last week, according to figures received here today.

California oranges, however, show a slight gain after weeks of lowered prices. A total of 417 cars of oranges were shipped last week as compared with 421 the week before. Lemon shipments were 264 cars this week, with 264 cars the total for the previous week. Oranges are now selling at an average of $7.13, a gain of 13 cents over the week before.

One year ago oranges sold $4.71 per box, and two years ago $7.03. Lemons dropped from $6.66 to $6.18 per box during the seven-day period. During the corresponding week in 1929, they were bringing $7.36 per box, and in 1928 sold at $5.36. All figures are confirmed by the Los Angeles Fruit Exchange.

BUILDING PLANS APPROVED

Ventura County Supervisors Call for Bids on Jail and Courthouse Addition to Cost $275,000

VENTURA, Aug. 19.—Building projects for Ventura county shot skyward today as the Board of Supervisors approved plans for the new Courthouse addition and jail building and called for bids on the $275,000 edifice, and also instructed Architect Harold Burket to proceed with plans on the $40,000 addition to the County Hospital.

Courthouse bids will be advertised and received up to September 20, when at a special board meeting the bids will be officially opened and the contracts awarded.

Burket, also architect for the courthouse annex and jail, said that beside the general contractor on the job, there will be separate contractors on elevators, plumbing, electric wiring and fixtures, heating and ventilation, painting and decorating, finish hardware, prison-cell work, linoleum, water softener, refrigerator and window shades.

The addition to the County Hospital will be for crippled children, plastic surgery and obstetrical cases, Burket said. The extra space will be sixty feet long by thirty-four feet wide.

Plans for the new Courthouse addition call for a building similar in appearance to the present Courthouse, to be erected just west of the structure, on the ground which has been leveled there for the purpose. This building will be three stories in height and will be connected to the Courthouse proper by a bridge between the two second stories.

EARLY VOTERS MARK BALLOTS

Score Take Advantage of Absentee Law

Election Paraphernalia Being Sent Out

Precincts Numbering 3433 to be Equipped

To cast their ballots a week or more before election is always the privilege of a select few, Registrar of Voters Kerr explained yesterday as he began tabulating between twenty and thirty such ballots.

The ballots are those of persons authorized by law because of their occupations which take them out of the county at the time of election to vote in advance. To date Kerr stated he has issued approximately fifty applications to persons who have signified their intentions of voting in this manner.

Voters included in the classification permitted to cast their ballots in advance are those in the service of the State, Army and Navy and salesmen and railroad men. Applications are receivable between last Saturday and tomorrow, the individual voting either at the office of the Registrar or by mail after the application has been filled out. The ballots will be opened and counted by the Board of Supervisors fifteen days after election.

Kerr now is superintending the moving and transportation of more than a million ballots to be used at the primary election next Tuesday as well as necessary forms, ballot boxes and voting machines. The equipment and supplies are sent by truck to election inspectors in the 3433 precincts in the county. There are a total of 439 different types of ballots and their accompanying forms, Kerr said.

A total of 146 voting machines will be used at the primary election, twenty-nine of which will be assigned to Pasadena, eleven to Beverly Hills and the balance to Los Angeles city, Kerr said. There were fifty machines in use at the last election.

PLUMMER LISTS SHERIFF PLANS

How He will Conduct Office if Elected Revealed

Co-operation of Aides will Be His Primary Aim

Past Record Mentioned as One Qualification

As was his practice when he was in various commands in the Los Angeles Police Department, Clyde Plummer will seek the active co-operation and advice of the men under him if he is elected Sheriff, he stated yesterday.

The veteran police captain who is making great gains in his race for Sheriff cited his experience when he took over command of the San Pedro division of the police department as what might be expected of him as Sheriff.

"When I was appointed captain of San Pedro division in 1921," he said, "the first thing I did was to call in the sergeants and lieutenants and have a heart-to-heart frank talk with them. I got directly from them what some of the greatest problems of the division were, together with their suggestions for solving them; where the weak spots were and how they might be strengthened. I got their ideas on how the division could be bettered in any and every way.

TREMENDOUS JOB

"With this valuable information in hand, we went to work, with the result that before long we had increased the efficiency of the division to the satisfaction of all concerned—business men, service clubs, ministers, the Chamber of Commerce, and many others.

"It was accomplished through the effective co-operation of the officers and men under me."

If he is elected Sheriff, much the same procedure may be expected of him, he said. The job of Sheriff is one of the most responsible positions in the county government. There are about 925 men and women in the Sheriff's organization. In addition to the large central office in the Hall of Justice, there are nine substations scattered over the unincorporated territory of the county, and each of the substations is commanded by a captain. There is the County Jail, the administration of which is a real job in itself. The civil branch of the Sheriff's office is another branch, not so spectacular as the criminal branch, but a very important one. The Sheriff also has charge of the constables.

CIVIL SERVICE LAUDED

"As I did in the case of San Pedro, if elected Sheriff I will, first call in all the heads of departments, captains and others in command, and talk things over with them," Plummer said. "There are a fine bunch of men over there in the Sheriff's organization—many of them very able men. There has been some talk that I plan to fire a lot of them. That is not true. If I am Sheriff we will let bygones be bygones, and we will all start out with a clean slate. Any man in the organization who will respect the law himself and enforce it has nothing to fear. Of course, if he refuses to play ball, gets drunk or in any other way proves to be unfit, he will be removed.

"Practically all of the men over there are under civil service, and I am a great believer in civil service.

"In the substation organization, the captain is virtually chief of police of his district, and I shall expect him to know what is going on in his district and to police it in proper fashion. He will be expected to clean up vice and crime in his district so that property owners and residents in the district will get some return on the tax money they are paying for Sheriff's office work."

REGRET EXPRESSED

He said there has been some talk about his receiving his pension from the city police department and being Sheriff. He pointed out that now the men of the police and fire departments are virtually carrying the cost of this service pension and it is their money.

"But the people can rest assured that Clyde Plummer will do the right thing about his pension," he said.

He regrets that in the campaign he has been charged with being an "American Cossack" and pointed to his long record on the police force, with not a single suit for damages from anyone as a result of his methods, and not a claim in court that he had ever administered the so-called "third degree." Finally, he said, having served on the police force and the District Attorney's liquor enforcement squad, he can, as Sheriff, enjoy the heartiest co-operation of all three departments.

ATTORNEY URGES SELECTION OF PLUMMER

Alfred L. Bartlett, attorney and member of the board of governors of the State Bar of California, yesterday made public his indorsement of Capt. Clyde Plummer's candidacy for Sheriff of Los Angeles county, and talked at length concerning Plummer's methods of handling criminals.

"I have known Capt. Plummer for sixteen years," said Mr. Bartlett. "During that time he has engaged in innumerable raids and arrests—and to my knowledge he has never mistreated or manhandled a criminal. His ability to control his temper, his undaunted courage and his tendency to cope with dangerous situations with strategy rather than force, are a few of the reasons why he has achieved his reputation as one of the most capable police officers in the State of California."

"I earnestly urge all citizens who desire a man for Sheriff who will conduct his office without fear or favor to cast their ballot for Clyde Plummer at the coming primaries."

BOARD UPHOLDS HOSPITAL HEAD

Welfare Commission Hits at Plan to Oust Dr. Wood

Shifting of Control to New Agency Also Opposed

Occupation for Prisoners at County Jail Urged

Exception to the recent recommendation of the grand jury that Dr N. N. Wood be removed as superintendent of the Los Angeles County General Hospital and that the management of the institution be transferred from the charity division to the health department is set forth in the annual report of the Public Welfare Commission filed yesterday with the Board of Supervisors.

The report, which is for the fiscal year ending June 30, last, is signed by Irma D. Graham, executive secretary.

WHAT REPORT SAYS

That portion of the report concerning the hospital and the grand jury's recommendations says:

"Your commission has followed with interest the newspaper reports of the investigation of this county institution by the grand jury including the final report with recommendations:

"(1.) That a speedy overhauling of the expenses of the hospital be given with the pruning knife actively employed in cutting away without loss of efficiency.

"(2.) That the needed reorganization begin with the removal of the superintendent.

"(3.) That the management of this hospital be taken from the charity division of the county government and placed under the County Health Department.

"Regarding the first recommendation your commission makes no comments, our chief responsibility being for the welfare of the patients rather than the economic division of maintenance.

DR. WOOD DEFENDED

"Regarding recommendation No. 2, your commission realizes that the superintendent of the General Hospital is a civil service employee and can be removed only by the Civil Service Commission for cause. To the extent of our investigation this commission finds no justification for the recommendations of the grand jury for the removal of Dr. Wood, superintendent, and the commission does not agree with such recommendation.

"Regarding recommendation three this commission is not aware of the study made by the grand jury as a basis for its recommendation that the management of the General Hospital be taken from the charity division of the county government and placed under the health department. Your commission is convinced that the best interests of the public would not be served by the placing of the management of the General Hospital under the County Health Department. Your commission does not agree with Recommendation No. 3 in the report of the grand jury."

COMPLAINTS STUDIED

The report further recites that throughout the year the commission received complaints of mistreatment and neglect of patients at the General Hospital, which were found to be either without basis of fact, or grossly exaggerated. The report also recommends that because of crowded conditions at the hospital the board adopt a policy of a larger use of privately owned hospitals.

Commenting on conditions at the County Jail the commission report advises that prisoners sentenced to serve terms of considerable length be given some occupation.

"This idleness is known to your honorable body to be one of the most demoralizing features of imprisonment and we believe that a continued effort should be made to develop a plan which will meet the obstacles presented and provide employment for sentenced prisoners in this institution," the report says.

CRIME SITUATION

Citing the juvenile crime situation wherein reports from the Los Angeles police department are quoted, the report declares that 3118 male juveniles were arrested during the year, of whom 1037, or 33 per cent, had previous records. Of the total 330 were turned over to probation officers, 22 sent to homes, 81 to charitable institutions, 980 released to parents and 31 sent to State schools.

One hundred and twenty-four applications for dance-hall licenses in unincorporated county territory were favorably recommended during the year. Fourteen of them were rejected by the Board of Supervisors.

Spaniard Wields Baton at Bowl

Enrique Arbos, fifth and last of the world-famous directors to appear in the Hollywood Bowl this season, is to arrive here tomorrow morning from Madrid and will start his engagement tomorrow night.

It will be the first appearance of the Spanish conductor in Los Angeles.

Selections by Spanish composers are to be featured during the remainder of the Bowl program, which will end the 30th inst. On his first program Arbos will direct two of his own arrangement of selections by Albeniz.

Kathleen Parlow, American violinist, is the featured soloist for the week and is included on the program for Friday night.

Council Orders Broadway Work

The final ordinance for the paving and improving of the Broadway and Moneta Avenue Improvement District was adopted yesterday by the City Council. This calls for the paving and improving with sidewalks, curbs, drains and ornamental lights of the newly opened Broadway between Pico and Forty-first streets. The Board of Supervisors has allocated $350,000 toward the project.

From Pico street to Washington street the roadway will be fifty-six feet wide and between Washington and Forty-first streets it will be sixty feet wide.

NEW TREND IN BUILDING CYCLE SEEN

Joshua H. Marks Joins Construction Company as Resident Partner Here

Belief in the future of Los Angeles, in the opinion of Joshua H. Marks, is reflected in the formation here of the Los Angeles division of Lindgren & Swinerton, Inc., one of the foremost builders on the Coast. Marks yesterday announced his affiliation with this corporation as resident partner and managing director for Southern California.

JOSHUA H. MARKS

Mr. Marks has been identified with Los Angeles building, manufacturing and real estate activities since 1902, when he came here and entered the brick manufacturing business. Subsequent affiliations included Meyer & Holler, architects and builders; real estate and investment business and J. V. McNeil Company, general contractors.

"Building activity has run in ten-year cycles," said Vice-President Marks. "In the last one starting with a volume of $21,684,000 in 1910, building totals mounted steadily until they reached $31,641,921 in 1913. Building rapidly declined during the war until in 1918 the volume was less than 27 per cent of the 1913 peak. Recovery started in 1919 and then began the great forward movement that culminated in the banner building year of 1923. It is significant that from peak to peak exactly ten years elapsed in each case. It is equally significant that in each instance the peak period was followed by four years of declining building activity.

"The end of that four-year period has again arrived. It is my opinion that this era of ascending building activity will last longer and go farther than any of the three previous ones we have experienced during the present century."

Lindgren & Swinerton, Inc. have been identified with outstanding building operations on the Coast for thirty years.

The corporation's Southern California operating offices will be in the Pacific Mutual Building, where Mr. Marks has now completed the organization of his staff.

DAM-SUIT AID TENDERED

State Offers Assistance to Federal Government in Opposing Threatened Arizona Action

The fact that the State of California has made official tender to the Department of Justice at Washington to aid with every legal resource in its power in fighting the suit said to be threatened by officials of Arizona to halt work on Boulder Dam was officially disclosed yesterday.

Letters have gone forward to Washington from the office of the State Attorney-General advising the department of its readiness to assist, as well as to declare that California, and particularly Southern California, is fully cognisant of the situation and has been gathering data to be placed at the disposal of the Federal authorities in case action by the Arizona officials actually is started.

According to announcements made some time ago, the purpose of the threatened litigation is to question the legality of the Colorado River project act, and to prevent, if possible the use of the $10,660,000 recently authorized by Congress for commencing the work on the dam.

It is anticipated, of course, that if the suit is brought the Department of Justice will take charge of the defense, but that inasmuch as California, and particularly Southern California, is so vitally interested, the State will assist in whatever manner the department may deem necessary in the circumstances.

Wife's Seizure of Two Children Told to Judge

John C. Davis, El Monte merchant, complained to Superior Judge Westover yesterday that his wife, Mrs. Myrtle Davis, appeared at his home Sunday and took away her two children, John, 10 years of age, and Virginia, 3.

Mrs. Davis filed a petition asking Davis to take the children into court, contending she was awarded their custody on a San Francisco court order.

"But she did not wait for me to bring the children in," said Davis. "While I was down at Long Beach swimming last week she took them away."

DE LARA VICTOR IN COURT PLAY

Advances to Third Round of Public Parks Tourney

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19. (AP)—Favorites moved nearer the finals in the public parks tournament today, although it took Jack De Lara of Los Angeles, runner-up last year, five hard sets to dispose of Robert Elliot, of Baltimore, 8-7, 7-5, 2-6, 6-2, 6-1.

George Jennings of Chicago, defending champion, entered the third round of play with De Lara by defeating Alan Stausley of Martinsburg, W. Va., in straight sets, 6-1, 6-2, 6-2.

Chicago placed two others in the third round as Leo and Charles Lejack advanced by straight-set vic-

Cubs Lose, Tie Phillies in Bargain Bill

Second Contest Halted in Sixteenth Frame

CHICAGO, Aug. 19. (AP)—Bert Shotten's pesky Phillies knocked a game from the Cubs' lead over the Giants in the National League pennant race today, winning the first game of a double-header, 9 to 8, then proceeded to battle the National League champions to a standstill in a sixteen-inning after-piece which was called because of darkness with the score 6-all.

Lester Bell, whose batting has been a big help during the last two days, saved the Cubs from defeat in the second game, when he got a home run with two on in the eighth to tie the score. From that point on neither team was able to score.

Fidgety Phil Collins pitched the whole of the second game for the Phillies and gave sixteen hits, while Bob Osborn and Guy Bush divided the assignment for the Cubs and gave fifteen hits between them.

Long George Kelly celebrated his first day as a Cub by getting five hits in the second game and a pair in the first.

The big thrill was Hack Wilson's forty-third home run of the season, which gave him a tie with Chuck Klein of the Phillies, as holder of the all-time National League mark.

TRIMS ELEANOR GOSS IN NATIONAL NET SENSATION

Seven Golden State Players Enter Third Round of Championship; Midge Gladman Defeated

BY TED VOSBURG
Associated Press Sports Writer

FOREST HILLS (N. Y.) Aug. 19. (AP)—Eighteen-year-old Helen Marlowe of Los Angeles led the California delegation to a series of brilliant victories in the second round of the national women's tennis championship today.

Scoring the first upset of the tournament this latest of the tennis-playing Helens from the Golden State eliminated the veteran New York player, Eleanor Goss, 7-5, 8-6, to gain a place in the third round.

Despite the absence of their two leading players, Mrs. Helen Wills Moody and Helen Jacobs, the Californians captured most of the honors, placing seven of their number among the sixteen survivors. Only two players from California met defeat in the afternoon.

The eastern representatives dwindled from fifteen to four and the Middle West's representation fell off from four to two and the South's from two to one.

HOCH! IT'S HACK!

Buxom Hack Wilson, the pride of the Cubs, on dark days, anyway, banged out his forty-third home run yesterday afternoon, thereby tying the National League record, set last year by Chuck Kline of the Phillies. The Cubs lost, but the blow assured the burly flyhawk of a new record, as he has almost two months in which to hit one more round-trip drive for a new mark. Hack, incidentally, is only one behind Babe Ruth now.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 19. (AP)—With Goose Goslin equalling the world's record of hitting three home runs in one game and on successive times at bat, the St. Louis Browns defeated the Athletics 7 to 0, today.

Tony Blaeholder blanked the world's champions with five hits.

Goslin hit his first home run off Rube Walberg in the fifth. In the seventh he hit his second off Eddie Rommel and in the ninth his third, the last with one man on base and accounting for his fifth run driven in a row. All of Goslin's smashes were hard blows over the right-field fence.

OAKLAND, Aug. 19. (AP)—Ernie Lombardi hammered the Oaks to a 3-to-2 victory over the Hollywood Stars here tonight by clouting a home run in the second inning and a single in the ninth to score two team-mates.

Jimmy Turner pitched a fine ball game until he cracked in the ninth inning. Johnny Basaler, Hollywood catcher, was jerked from the ball game for bouncing his fist off Umpire Henry Fanning's chest protector because he did not like a ball called on Johnny Baker in the ninth. The score:

Old-Timer Outpunches Foe Repeatedly at Olympic

BY BRAVEN DYER

Long the uncrowned king of the flyweights, Newsboy Brown last night scored a decisive victory over Midget Wolgast, recognized 112-pound champion, in the ten-round main event at the Olympic.

Belting his foe relentlessly with solid right-hand smacks to the midsection, Brown went out early and piled up a lead that put him so far ahead that only a knockout would have given Wolgast the fight.

The Newsboy won six rounds, two were even and two went to the champion. Wolgast scored the only knockdown of the scrap in the fifth stanza when he caught Brown with a stinging lefthook to the face. Partly off balance, the Newsboy went down, but bounded up again immediately without waiting for Ref. eree Jack Kennedy to start counting.

Brown captured the second, third, fourth, seventh, ninth and tenth rounds, with Wolgast getting the fifth and eighth.

It was an overweight fight and probably means a title match between the two later. Whether Los Angeles will get it remains to be seen but New York will undoubtedly bid high for the classic.

STUNNING UPSET

The result was a stunning upset in a way, for betting favored Wolgast at 2-to-1 odds. However, outside the Olympic prior to the fight you couldn't get a wager because

FRED MORRISON, OLIN DUTRA LOSE AILING TONSILS TODAY

Four hundred pounds of Southern California's best professional talent will lose its tonsils this morning, when Fred Morrison of Midwick and Olin Dutra of Brentwood take the ether together at the White Memorial Hospital this morning. Dr. Mark Steele, well-known San Gabriel and California Country Club golfer, will officiate. Morrison, who is Southern California open champion, and Dutra, holder of the Pacific Southwest P.G.A. title, have been dodging the issue for several months past, but finally mustered courage to date up Dr. Steele for the occasion. Both pros have been bothered for some time with their tonsils, and are anxious to be in the best possible shape for a busy season. They will be leading contenders in the California open next month at Montebello Park, and Morrison defends his Southland open crown at Agua Caliente in October. Dutra was a leading money winner in last winter's tournaments and hopes to repeat.

Braves Shut Out Cincinnati to Win 4-0

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 19. (AP)—The New York Giants moved into second place in the National League, a half game ahead of the Brooklyn Robins, by taking a hard-fought game from the Cardinals, 4 to 2, while Brooklyn was losing to Pittsburgh.

The Giants piled up an early lead by scoring three runs in the second inning, then held off the Cardinal assaults by good fielding and some steady pitching in the late innings by Carl Hubbell.

Hubbell drove in the first two Giant runs with a single after Ott and Hogan had singled and Roettger had been purposely passed. Critz's sacrifice sent in the third tally. The fourth Giant run was scored in the seventh on doubles by Leach and Lindstrom.

St. Louis tallied in the third and threatened to take the lead in the fourth but was held to a single run as fine throws to the plate by Ott and Roettger cut off runners. The Cards made three hits and received two walks in the frame. Lindstrom led the Giant hitters with two doubles and two singles in five times at bat.

YANKS WIN

NEW YORK, Aug. 19. (AP)—Charley Ruffing's two-hit pitching backed up by Babe Ruth's brilliant fielding enabled the Yankees to score a 2-to-0 victory over the Chicago White Sox today and make it three out of four for the final series between the two teams here. Ruth played a great game in the field and his two timely hits helped the Yankees score two of their runs. The third came on Kerr's error.

Bill Cissell made both White Sox hits, one a double. Score:

After the experienced Ferrell had pitched his mates to victory in the first game an inexperienced rookie, Lawson, performed the same feat for the Indians in the nightcap.

MERCURY TRACKMEN WORK

Los Angeles Athletic Club Team Limbers Up at North Platte; Heat Bothers Athletes

BY HECTOR DYER
Intercollegiate 220-Yard Champion

OMAHA (Neb.) Aug. 19.—The evening of the second day out from Los Angeles the Los Angeles limited carrying the thirteen members of the Los Angeles Athletic Club track-and-field team to the senior national A.A.U. championships passed through Omaha, Neb.

It was warm and sultry with lightning and showers late in the afternoon. Though the thermometer in the Pullman car occupied by the team registered only slightly above 90 deg., the cool night spent in going over the Rocky Mountain Divide made it seem all the warmer by contrast.

Dean Cromwell, who is heading the L.A.A.C. east, had the train held over in North Platte, Neb., several minutes overtime so that the athletes could enjoy a satisfactory workout on the grass surrounding the station. The men in their blue-and-white track suits with their supernormal physiques and tanned skins attracted considerable attention from the other train passengers and spectators around the station.

But the best part of all was the cold shower enjoyed afterward in the train employees' car forward.

Every time the train stops, all pile out to limber up their muscles and stir up their circulation. Although this exercise would not have been possible in airplane travel, had the arrangements to charter one of the transport planes of the several California oil companies been successful the team would have already reached Pittsburgh by the time the train passed through Omaha.

The long four days' transcontinental train ride has always been a great handicap to the condition of the Coast track athletes, particularly to those in the longer distances from the 440-yard dash on up. Due largely to this reason, Leo Lermond, the star miler on the L.A.A.C. team, has already been in Pittsburgh two weeks in preparation for the nationals.

Fred Sturdy, the great Yale pole vaulter, who traveled clear across the country in the T.A.T. plane last March to win the pole vault in the L.A.A.C. meet with Stanford, predicts that faster traveling, and more comfortable weather, by air will eventually cut the handicap of traveling long distances to a minimum.

However, the Coast distance stars will have their turn in 1932. The situation will be largely reversed when all the big meets, the intercollegiates, the nationals and Olympic tryouts, will be held in California.

SINGLES TITLE WON BY "JOSH" HAMMOND

Competing in the annual open tournament of the Cowichan Tennis Club of British Columbia, J. S. (Josh) Hammond of Los Angeles won the men's singles championship, and in so doing was tabbed by the local newspapers as one of the best all-around racket wielders ever to appear there. In addition to winning the singles title Hammond was a runner-up in the mixed doubles matches. The Cowichan Leader in commenting on his victory said: "He drives beautifully with either hand and his backhand is marvelous. Not one of his opponents could discover a weakness in his game."

Friends of "Josh" are expecting him home soon from his successful invasion of the north.

HELEN MARLOWE NET SENSATION

sisting of Betty Nuthall of England and the Baroness Georgie Glacome Levi of Italy came through with smashing straight-set victories. Miss Nuthall defeated Mrs. Mary J. Lumme of Rye, N. Y., 6-1, 6-1, and the Baroness, who is the former Mando Rosenhaum of Chicago, chop-stroked her way to a 6-0, 6-1 decision over Florence Le Boutillero of Westbury, N. Y.

MISS GOSS FAVORED

While most of the 700 spectators were intent upon less dramatic matches staged in the stadium, Miss Marlowe brought about the downfall of her famous opponent on one of the outside courts before a handful of onlookers.

Miss Goss, the seventh-ranking player in the country and the No. 3 seeded entrant in the tournament, had been expected to win from Miss Marlowe so easily the match was not deemed worthy of a place on the stadium's center courts.

But to the surprise of the few who watched, Miss Marlowe proceeded to give Miss Goss all the worst of it in a long drawn-out baseline driving match. She pulled up from 3-5 to win the first set with a burst of four straight games and also fought off a great rally by Miss Goss to take the second set and match after a bitter struggle.

Miss Marlowe will clash tomorrow with Penelope Anderson of Richmond, Va., the only surviving representative of the South. Miss Anderson overcame Edith Sigourney, Nahant, Mass., 7-5, 7-5.

In the only reverse that the California group suffered at the hands of another section, Marjorie Gladman of Santa Monica, was upset by Mrs. J. Dallas Corbiere of Boston, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4.

Another minor surprise was the victory of Dorothy Weisel, one of the younger Californian newcomers, over Virginia Hilleary of Philadelphia, 9-7, 6-4.

EDITH CROSS WINS

Although extended to three sets and dangerously near defeat in the process, Edith Cross of San Francisco, the No. 3 ranking player of the country, came through against Alice Francis of Orange, N. J., and will meet Miss Nuthall in the third round tomorrow. The scores were 6-3, 2-6, 6-3.

Other seeded players had little trouble, Sarah Palfrey, 18-year-old Brookline (Mass.) star, disposed of Mrs. R. F. Stem, New York, 6-1, 6-1; Mrs. Anna Harper of San Francisco, eliminated a fellow-Californian, Carolyn Babcock, Los Angeles, 6-4, 6-3; Marjorie Morrill, Dedham Mass., crushed Clare Zinke, Cincinnati, 6-0, 6-0; Ethel Burkhardt, San Francisco, brushed aside Carolyn Roberts, New Rochelle, N. Y., 6-2, 6-2; Josephine Cruickshank, Santa Ana, Cal., subdued Louise Packer, Rockport, Mass., 6-2, 6-1, and Mary Greef, Kansas City, trounced Elizabeth Warren of Richmond, Va., 6-2, 6-3.

All of the seeded teams won their matches in the national women's doubles championships.

Feature matches for tomorrow were announced as follows:

Mrs. Harper vs. Mrs. Corbiere; Miss Cruickshank vs. Miss Herring; Miss Sarah Palfrey vs. Miss Weisel; Miss Nuthall vs. Miss Greef.

Miss Cruickshank and Miss Gladman vs. Virginia Hill Horton and Miss Elizabeth Ryan; Miss Packer and Miss Weisel vs. Miss Greef and Miss Weisel.

Seattle Sunk by Seals, 8-0

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19. (AP)—San Francisco's Seals started this week's series impressively by defeating Seattle, 8-0. Curtis Davis pitched steady ball for the locals while his team-mates contributed good fielding support and timely hitting. Four-run rallies in the fourth and fifth innings sewed up the contest for the Seals, who nicked three Seattle hurlers for seventeen hits. Score:

Cricket

LONDON, Aug. 19. (AP)—The Australian cricket team, fighting today toward England's first-inning total in the fifth test match at the Kennington oval, had reached to within two of England with seven wickets in hand when rain halted play today.

England scored 405 and Australia had 403 for three wickets. The game was delayed several times owing to weather conditions.

During the morning when normal play was possible, Don Bradman, Australia's run-getter, added another century to his list of three-figure test-match innings.

This was the third day's play and the match upon which the international championship hinges must be played to a finish. A visitor to the match this afternoon was the Prince of Wales, who was introduced to the players.

YELLOWTAIL FLAUNT OLYMPIC FISHERMEN

HERMOSA BEACH, Aug. 19.—Yellowtail continue to flirt with the bait offered them by Olympic fishing barge anglers. Quite a number of the big game fish have been sighted, but none have been brought in lately. Capt. J. M. Anderson expects the yellowtail to start a run soon. Olympic anglers have been kept busy, however, with many big bonita being pulled in, many of them tipping the scales at ten pounds. Mackerel, sandabs, sculpin, halibut and perch are also being hooked, as well as some sea trout.

Capt. Cliff Garner of the Hermosa live-bait boats reports good hauls of bass, barracuda, halibut and sea trout being brought back daily.

SANTA ANA NINE WINS

Santa Ana defeated Whittier, 3 to 1, in a night baseball game played last night on the former's diamond.

PICK M'DONALD TO W

Canadian Lightweight Champion Li... Over Teddy Palacios

Hector McDonald, Canadian lightweight champion, favorite over Teddy Palacios when the two meet in the Hollywood American Legion Stadium Friday night, fight with Goldie Hess coming up, but if [illegible] McDonald must grab the duke over Palacios.

There isn't any great reason for making McDonald the favorite. His showing against Johnny Lamar wasn't any better than Palacios's. Hector is a bit smarter than Teddy, but Palacious is the better puncher.

Cecil Payne may drop in on Los Angeles fight fans next month. He has been fighting well back East and he is anxious to get back to this city.

The main event at the stadium should be one of the best lightweight fights of the year. Both fighters are young and strong. Goldie Hess now on his way to New York, will fly back here to meet the winner of the Palacious-McDonald fight. Hess is fighting Tony Canzoneri in New York next week.

Freddie Hawkins, a Pasadena lightweight, fights Leonard Bennett in the semi-wind-up. Hawkins should be favorite. Joe Bitto has offered to fight Joe Goeders in the six-round special.

The four-rounders will be Ralph Leonard and Jack Kay, welterweights, in the second spot and Leo Lonelli and Richie Parr in the curtain raiser.

coming to the fore, and Dick declares that if he trims the Utica Panther he will take down a few of the youngsters.

Lee Wycoff gets his final test in the opener. Wycoff started off like a whirlwind here, but couldn't stand the pace. He meets Pietro Bacini in the opener, Pietro having defeated him once before. The winning grappler will be moved up to classier competition, Promoter Lou Daro declares.

Canoe-Tilters are Recognized

Canoe-tilting entered with a splash last night as a recognized local amateur sport, when first contests in the elimination tournament for the Los Angeles championship were held at Bimini plunge under the auspices of the city playground and recreation department and the S.P.A.A.U.

In the first encounter of the evening, the Davidge Film Laboratory team upset canoe paddlers of the E. F. Hutton Company in two out of three clashes. In the second match, the Los Angeles Police Department duo were given two straight duckings by the Bimini No. 4 team.

More than fifty teams representing industrial and athletic organizations of Los Angeles are entered in the city-wide tournament, with contests scheduled for every day this week at Griffith and Bimini pools. Finals will be held Saturday evening at Bimini.

WHAT CONSTITUTES A SET-UP?

Where Do Pittsburgh and Carnegie Tech Classify as the Result of Overwhelming Defeats at the Hands of Southern California Eleven?

BY BRAVEN DYER

GWYNN WILSON

WITH football approaching, fans in need of something to talk about and sports scribes rather badly off for subjects worthy of comment, some ado has been made about Southern California's schedule for 1930. This was to be expected. There are certain types, of people who take great delight in knocking.

They are never happier than when swinging lusty blows with the old hammer.

One writer said that Stanford plays eleven games to Troy's ten and that the Cards have on their schedule U.C.L.A. and one set-up in addition to the other ten contests. There is some doubt in mind as to which of the West Coast Army, Olympic Club, Santa Clara and Caltech constitutes a set-up.

Perhaps Caltech was meant. If so, that's about right. At any rate, there are no Southern California Conference teams on Troy's schedule. The West Coast Army rates about zero as competition and anybody with any sense knows it. Stanford won last year, 45 to 0, in the first week of the season after the soldiers had been training a month or more.

California beat the Olympic Club last year and Nibs Price used his second string to do so. Santa Clara was crossed off Troy's calling list several years ago, when the public tired of watching the Trojans thump this team, 52 to 0.

Stanford plays her share of tough games, all right, and so do the Trojans. The statement that the players themselves prefer all tough games is a lot of applesauce. As a matter of fact, the average player, if he does his work as he should, does not fully recover from a tough battle in one short week.

After all, what constitutes a set-up or an easy game? Who is to decide? Carnegie Tech and Pittsburgh certainly rated serious consideration. In fact, the 1929 Panthers were supposed to be one of the two greatest teams in the country, Notre Dame being the other. But the Smoky City boys were all but slaughtered in the Rose Bowl, 47 to 14, and it might just as well have been sixty or more.

It is no easy task to arrange a complete schedule of what appears to be tough games, even if S.C. officials should wish to do so. In the first place there are only eight outstanding dates for the season and every team has half of these filled right off the bat with time-honored foes, which doesn't leave a great deal of leeway for juggling.

The writer happens to know that Gwynn Wilson offered two Big Ten and two Southern teams the November 15 date, which eventually fell to Hawaii. There were no strings attached to these invitations, but because of games within their own circuits the offers would not be accepted.

After all, football is first of all a game for the boys. That it has grown to include nearly all of us in the capacity of spectators is no fault of our colleges and universities. True, they have kept pace with the growth of the game, but in the final analysis it's still their sport.

Collyer's Eye, which releases form charts and other data on boxing and kindred sports, comes to bat with a new rating for the heavyweights of these United States. And there among the first ten is a little stranger, Al Morro, who has had only two professional fights as far as the public knows.

Morro is the new white hope discovered by Jim Jeffries. It was Al who gave local wiseacres a bad headache some weeks ago when he stepped out and defeated Armand Emanuel at the Hollywood Legion. Emanuel has been clamoring for a rematch ever since.

The rating ranges from 200 to 300 points and Max Schmeling, with 300 digits, tops the list. Young Stribling is next with 299 plus, indicating that he has gone ahead since the last rating was made. Personally, I wouldn't go to see Stribling fight if he paid me money to do so. He's the greatest clamper and clincher in the business and ought to be working for Lou Daro, he knows that many holds.

Jack Sharkey is third with 293, followed by none other than George Godfrey, 290. Evidently, Collyer's threw out the Godfrey-Carnera episode as nothing more than a strange interlude in Gawge's career, for Primo is ranked well down the list at 275 plus.

The others, in order, are Ernie Schaaf, Victor Campolo, Tuffy Griffiths, Johnny Risko, Otto Von Porat and Morro, who winds up in tenth position, largely, it is assumed, on the strength of his win over Emanuel. Morro gets a rating of 276 plus.

Max Baer is down at 242 plus, Frankie Campbell at 275 plus. Emanuel comes in at 260 plus and Ernie Owens at 225. One of the lowest on the list is Ray Spiker, 202 minus, indicating that he has skidded since the last rating. And he can't go much lower without falling out altogether.

Well, the Giants have passed Brooklyn in the mad scramble for National League honors. Jawn McGraw's club is now only three games behind the Cubs as the result of yesterday's games. Tomorrow at Chicago the Cubs and Giants lock horns in a four-game series which should tell plenty. And then on September 16, 17 and 18 the rivals clash again in New York. What a race!

Bulow Files Suit on Max

NEW YORK, Aug. 19. (AP)—Suit to recover $69,360, one-third of the purse of $208,181 received by Max Schmeling, German heavyweight boxer, in his recent fight with Jack Sharkey, was filed today by Arthur Bulow, claiming to be the champion's legal manager. Schmeling now is under the management of Joe Jacobs.

Cooper's Dad to Take Post at Caliente

Caliente Golf Park announced yesterday that Harry Cooper, celebrated golf pro, had made arrangements whereby his dad, S. J. Cooper, who is now pro at the Biltmore Hotel, Tucson, Ariz., will come to the beautiful course at Vermont avenue and Fourth street under a contract calling for the services as pros of both Harry Cooper's father and sister.

Harry Cooper won the $10,000 St. Paul open in that city Saturday and wired his dad that he would assist in the opening ceremonies of Caliente, September 1, next, if he could complete plans to be in Los Angeles on that date.

S. J. Cooper, the father and Dorothy, the daughter, celebrated Harry's St. Louis triumph by going over every hole of the forty-five at Caliente Saturday night. Both declared it is the finest golf course of its kind they have ever seen.

The Next Tennis Champions

THE battle for the women's championship now under way at Forest Hills finds three or four survivors who have a good chance, but in stopping young Vines in straight sets at Newport, Bill Tilden gave the world notice that he will have a lot to say about the defense of his national title over the same turf early in September.

Tilden is still traveling on a bad leg, but he should be in shape by the September date to move at top speed again and he will undoubtedly be favored to win. He will have to be in shape, however, with so many good young stars ready to snipe him at a day's notice. Vines was among the youngsters set given a chance to win, but the Californian isn't quite ready for the lanky Philadelphian yet.

A Hard-Pressed King

Babe Ruth is having a tough time of it pulling away from Hack Wilson, the slugging Cub. A few years ago Lou Gehrig hung on through early September and then fell away at the finish when Ruth put on a heavy final bombardment. But Wilson is keeping up a steady long-distance fire and he shows no signs of surrendering without a struggle.

He is almost sure to lift the National League record into the fifties and he may force the Babe to crack his old mark of sixty in order to keep his crown hanging on. This has been one of the best duels of the year, because it has been going on since April and still has six weeks to run. And Hack isn't the type that starts slipping in the stretch, not even when a Ruth is setting the pace.

Whether he wins or loses, Sir Thomas Lipton will have about as many rooters as Bobby Jones. Which is practically enough.

May Be the Toughest

Bobby Jones blew into New York on Tuesday for a two-day business visit which left him only a short time to talk about golf.

He is willing to admit in advance that his final 1930 stand at Merion next month may be the toughest of them all. "And they are all tough enough," he said, "and getting tougher every year."

"Golf is still gif," remarked the Atlanta attorney, "and always will be. No one can ever tell in advance just what will happen an hour ahead—much less a month. Naturally I'd like a lot to win, but so would a lot of other entries. In the first place the problem of the two eighteen-hole matches in one day is always something to face. I've found that out at least a dozen times before, where it was often a matter of one putt as to whether I would win or lose. And there are enough good amateurs around now to bother anyone over the longer route at thirty-six holes."

"How will it feel to get back to Merion for the last big shot of the year?" I asked him.

"You know how I feel about Merion," he said. "I played in my first national championship over this course in 1916. I won my first amateur championship there in 1924 after it had begun to look as if I could never win one. I'm glad I will have my chance again at Merion—but that doesn't mean much in golf. There is so much that depends on one's mental attitude for any one round, and no one can tell in advance what that will be.

"I think the field there will be one of the strongest in many years with so many young stars coming on and such fine golfers as George Voigt, Von Elm, Johnston, Willing, Moe. Tolley, Goodman and others around. Most of these are good for a 71 or a 72 any time they are right, and a 71 or a 72 is hard golf to beat. Especially so in an eighteen-hole match, when you suddenly get the feeling that you are down and are running out of holes.

"It's that feeling of running out of holes down the home stretch that makes you desperate. I'm glad to have gotten a lot of rest from golf lately, for I needed it. But whether I can pick up again where I left off is another guess."

New Drivers to Race Here

W. K. Provan, former racing official connected with several eastern speedways and a new member of the Legion Ascot Speedway contest board, was yesterday appointed booking agent of the Alhambra Boulevard plant. The job is a new one at Ascot and Provan expects to make good as an "advance man" by immediately importing several speed kings from the East for the fall season.

Among others, he has high hopes of bringing Wilbur Shaw, "Dutch" Bauman, and Louie Schneider west with their cars. While these three have not driven at the Legion oval since the Glendale post took over the track they are rated as racing "royalty" in the major circuit of the East.

According to word received, Mel Kenealy, Herman Schurch and Earl Hovenden will arrive here soon for the fall and winter and there is a chance of them being on the ground for the meeting the 30th inst.

HAGEN BACK IN OLD-TIME FORM

Veteran Star Shoots 66 in Detroit Practice Round

DETROIT, Aug. 19. (AP)—Walter Hagen, shorn of all his titles, served warning with a scintillating 66 in his practice round today, that he is definitely in the running for the western open championship, the qualifying round of which will be played tomorrow on the Indianwood golf course.

His score, 6 under par, was lowest of the day's practice rounds, in which fifty-one entrants participated. He thereby won the first prize of the tournament, $100 offered by the host club for the lowest eighteen-hole practice score.

A close second came Eddie Kirk, assistant pro at Dearborn (Mich.) Country Club, who shot a 67. Stanley Hancock of Detroit turned in a 32 for the first nine holes, taking a first lien on the $25 offered for the low on the half round.

Santa Monica Play on Tap

Entries for the second annual Santa Monica open tennis championship, which is being sponsored by the Santa Monica Tennis Club, close tomorrow night with play scheduled to get under way the 23rd inst. The tournament will continue over the 24th, 30th, 31st insts. and September 1.

Among the events which the Santa Monica club is offering are men's singles and doubles, women's singles, mixed doubles, junior boys' and girls singles, and singles for boys and girls under 15 years. Entries may be made with A. G. Spalding and Brothers, in Los Angeles, or with Thomas & Englebrecht in Santa Monica.

OUTBOARD RACES TO COMPETE AT SHERWOOD

The Lake Sherwood Country Club, located in the heart of the Malibu Mountains, will celebrate the opening of their new clubhouse next Sunday with a series of outboard motor boat races, it was announced yesterday. Members of the Southern California Outboard Association have been invited to attend as guests of honor. Some of the world's fastest drivers are expected to vie against each other, over a course which is being laid out by a committee under the supervision of J. R. Cantiberry. It is said to be one of the most exacting courses in these parts. The public is invited to attend the festivities free of charge.

Foul Tips

Tom Turner, the bombastic president of the Portland club, did not accompany the Ducks on their trip south. Turner plans a trip east in the near future, and will try to sell Southpaw Fred Oriman to some major league club. The Portland owner is still trying to dispose of his franchise and has announced that he would like to buy some major league club.

The Angels received quite a cheer from the fans as they trotted out on the field to start last night's game, for their first appearance at Wrigley Field in over two weeks. There were a few boos mingled with the cheers, but that's an old Mollywood custom.

Umpire Cady had a hard time making the Beavers agree with his ball and strike decisions. In the fifth inning when Fred Haney walked for the third straight time on what appeared to be three wide ones and three right over the plate, Keating took off his cap, and registered bitter disgust as he wiped his brow, while talking to the arbiter.

Umpire Sweeney made Gene Robertson mad in the fourth when he got in the way of Statz's hit that went for a single because the Duck third baseman couldn't get around the base umpire in time to field the ball and make a play at first.

Carl Dittmar, who became a proud poppa of a bouncing baby boy Saturday night, made his first appearance at the plate since the event, in the second inning, and pieced a line drive down the first base line that Orwell knocked down, but would not prevent from going for a hit.

Brown Victor Over Wolgast in Olympic Go

everybody wanted to take the short end. Which may mean something, if you are in the habit of being suspicious about pugilistic entertainment. At any rate it was a great fight and the customers got their money's worth.

The two little fellows set a terrific pace from the start and maintained it right down to the final gong. Brown's body punching and his jolting shots to Wolgast's chin were by far the most effective punches of the bout.

Wolgast uncoiled his lightning-like left on many occasions and showed himself to be a speedster of the first rank, but his punches lacked the power of Brown's. In addition, the Newsboy made Wolgast miss plenty of shots and repeatedly piled up points in the clinches.

The fifth round was a classic. Brown started swiftly and punched Wolgast savagely with hard rights to the body and stiff uppercuts to the chin. Near the end of the session Wolgast uncorked his snakelike left to the head and Brown sat down with a thud. Only this punch enabled the champion to take the round by a shade for Brown had piled up a tremendous lead.

'As a matter of fact, Brown's vicious punching to Wolgast's body really contributed more damage than the knockdown blow, which the champion unleashed.

After Brown took the seventh with a powerful display of body wallloping, Wolgast came back and revealed true championship qualities by stinging the Newsboy repeatedly with left hooks to the head in the eighth. This was by far his best round of the fight.

Charley Sullivan, as game a little rooster as ever climbed through the ropes, won on a foul from hard-hitting Claude Varner in the special event. The bout ended in the fourth round after Sullivan had taken a systematic beating.

Charley, however, was sticking by his guns and doing his best to give Varner a battle, when the finish came. Varner had been guilty of low punching on other occasions and the result had been more or less forecast by these miscues.

VARNER GOOD PROSPECT

Varner is one of the best-looking lightweight prospects in this section. He hits like the crack of dawn, but Sullivan, game to the core, refused to go down at any time under the heavy cannonading, and this despite the fact that he took punch after punch flush on the chin.

The special event ended at the start of the third round when Referee Frank Holborow awarded Steve Hamas a technical-knockout decision over Wally Fraser. A bad cut through the left eyelid made further fighting out of the question for Fraser, whose eyesight would undoubtedly have been endangered had the bout continued.

Hamas, reputed a terrific puncher, fought in a shell most of the time and will have to step out and do something if he hopes to gain local acclaim.

Warren Farrell and Henry Rollins put on a slam-bang scrap for six rounds, the latter getting a shade, although a draw would not have been out of order. The boys threw punches with hardly a let-up and the fans liked it. Johnny Nichols beat Hector Aguilar in the opener.

DOEG LOSES TO FRANK SHIELDS

to perform up to the expectation of his admirers, but today he climbed to the peak of his career and enacted the iron-man role.

Shields arrived here this morning, a day late, due to his victorious participation in the Maine singles championship, and was forced to play three matches to catch up with the field, which was reduced to the last sixteen. He first overcame Rainert Whitbeck of New York, 6-1, 11-9, and then eliminated Donald Strachan, Philadelphia, 6-1, 2-6, 6-3, before meeting Doeg, who was seeded third.

Shields played an all-round game to give the seeded list its first denting. Doeg, who can blame his erratic overhead strokings for his surprising defeat, was effective only in the second set when he overcame a lead of three games to one and then steadied down to square matters by taking the twenty-two-game second set. However, left-handed Johnny had a relapse in the finale, when Shields aced him eight times to four, and bowed out of the singles play.

Another match that caused surprise was the 6-2, 7-5 victory of J. Gilbert Hall, South Orange (N. J.) player, over Berkeley Bell of Austin, Tex., Davis Cup sub, whose name was last on the ten-man seeded list. All of the other third-round matches, however, ran true to form and most of the favorites advanced into the fourth round.

Bill Tilden, the top-seeded defending champion, led the parade into the fourth bracket. This seven times national champion had an easy singles assignment. He tenderly nursed his injured hip during his play with John H. Mullen of New York, forcing that husky youngster to make enough mistakes to take the short end of the 6-4, 7-5 match.

Among first-round doubles:

J. Gilbert Hall, East Orange, N. J., and Fritz Mercur, Bethlehem, Pa., defeated Lucien Jacobs, San Antonio, Tex., and Henry M. Holden, Jr., Houston, Tex., 7-5, 6-1.

Included in second-round doubles:

Van Ryn and Allison won by default from Jake Hess, Jr., Fort Worth, Tex., and Harold McGuffin, Philadelphia.

Tilden and Hunter defeated Keith Werner and Dick Lusch, Los Angeles, 7-5, 4-6, 6-2.

Wilbur Coen, Kansas City, and Harrison Copeshall, Des Moines, defeated Emmett and Emmett, Newport, 6-3, 6-2.

Phil Neer, Portland, Or., and E. W. Pebleman, New York, defeated Edward Jenkins and Henry Moore, New York, 6-2, 6-4.

Bell and Mangin defeated Bertram Hammell and James Manmes, Ocean City, N. J., 6-3, 6-2.

Sutter and Jacobs defeated Jack Cosgrove, San Francisco, and Armand Brunseau, New York, 6-3, 6-3.

Keith Gledhill, Santa Barbara, Cal., and Ellsworth Vines, Pasadena, Cal., defeated Harold Blauer, New York, and O. H. Boehmer, Jr., St. Louis, 7-5, 6-4.

M. T. Hill and R. L. Johnson, Boston, defeated H. M. S. Lee and L. A. Godfree, England, 6-4, 7-5.

last night at Oakland. Keating lasted seven innings against the Cherubs, who pounded him for twelve of their thirteen hits, and all of their eight runs. A five-run rally in the seventh inning sent the Portland spitball pitcher on his way, and sewed up the contest for Jack Lelivelt's crew.

Ray Jacobs led the Angel attack by punching out a double and two singles in four times at bat. "Truck" Hanna and "Jigger" Statz also collected a pair of hits. After the opening inning, when the Ducks scored two runs on Cramer's lucky homer that bounced into the box seats, Baecht held the visitors to one hit, a single by Robertson, until the ninth. In the final round Robertson, Cramer, Rhiel and Orwoll cracked out singles, Johnson drew a walk, and the net result was three more Portland tallies, and a lot of worry for Skipper Lelivelt and his Seraphs.

The Ducks got off to a two-run lead off Baecht in the opening inning, a fluke home run by Cramer, with one man on, accounting for the pair of tallies. French drew a base on balls to start the contest, but Robertson fouled to Jacobs. Cramer then drove one into the left-field corner, the ball taking a funny bound into the box seats for a freak home run. Ken Williams followed with a single, but was out stealing, and the rally ended.

Keating found himself in a tight spot in the home half of the first but managed to get out of the hole by catching Moore between second and third for the third out. Moore had singled infield, and Haney had walked, and the count was three and two on Ray Jacobs when Johnny started before the pitch, and was retired at third base.

The Angels picked up a run in the second with the aid of a wild pitch by Keating. After Jacobs had been tossed out, Statz walked, and stole second. Dittmar sliced a line drive down the first-base line that Orwoll knocked down, but was unable to beat the Angel shortstop in a race to the bag, and the knock went for a base hit. Statz stopped at third. Keating then let one of his spitballs get away from him and it bounced off the end of Woodall's glove for a wild pitch, Statz scoring, and Dittmar taking second. Williams raced over to the left-field line to snare Hannah's line drive, and then Orwoll scooped Robertson's low throw out of the dirt to retire Baecht for the third out.

Los Angeles tied it up in the fourth when they bunched three hits with some Lelivelitan strategy to shove over a hard-earned run. Schulmerich opened the inning with an infield smash that Rhiel was unable to handle, and was bunted to second by Jacobs. Statz was credited with an infield hit when Umpire Sweeney got in Robertson's way, as the Beaver third-sacker attempted to field the ball. Robertson finally captured the pellet and got off a swift throw to Orwoll, but Statz had arrived a couple of steps before.

Dittmar popped out to Cronin, and then Hannah let one of Keating's fast balls hit him on the shin to secure a free passage to first, and fill the bases. After having one strike called on him Baecht got orders from Lelivelt to cross up the Ducks with a bunt. The big Angel hurler laid one down purposely along the third-base line, and Robertson was so surprised that he never moved out of his tracks. Woodall finally pounced on the pellet, and threw to first, but Baecht easily beat the throw, Schulmerich scoring. Sigafoos was thrown out by Rhiel to leave the bases still loaded as the inning ended.

Baecht gave the fans another thrill in the fifth when he fanned Orwoll, Cronin and Woodall in fast fashion, to bring his total of strike-outs to six.

A single by Ray Jacobs put the Cherubs out in front in the home half of the fifth round. "Jake's" one-base poke came after two were out, and scored Haney, who had walked, and taken second on Schulmerich's infield out.

The Seraphs sewed up the contest in the seventh, scoring five runs with an extra-base barrage off Keating, five hits, including three doubles and a triple, producing the quintet of tallies.

Haney led off with a single to center, stole second, and continued on to third, when Woodall's throw went to center field. Haney remained on third while Schulmerich was thrown out, but scored when Jacobs doubled off the left-field wall. Statz doubled down the third-base line to score Jacobs, and Dittmar followed by working Keating for a walk. A double by Hannah, that landed just inside the foul line, scored both Statz and Dittmar. Hannah went to third on Baecht's out, and came home when Sigafoos's drive to center went over French's head for a triple. Moore, the ninth man up in the inning, was tossed out by Rhiel.

During the Angels' rally, Jimmy Cronin, the Portland shortstop, was spiked on the hand as he tried to pick Jacobs off second, and was forced to leave the contest, Bob Johnson replacing him. Score:

RADIO STATIONS IN TEST TODAY

Show-down Due on Order to Disclose Finances

Federal Board's Authority May be Challenged

Data Sought Might Affect License Renewals

The Times Forum, KHJ, at 1:30 p.m.
Junior Chamber of Commerce program by Patrick and Marsh.
World-wide News, 12:30, 4:45 and 10 p.m.

BY JOHN S. DAGGETT

Radio broadcast stations of the nation face a crucial test today by an order of the legal department of the Federal Radio Commission demanding a financial statement from all radio stations.

This report has a deadline today and may lead to court action, which will decide the authority of the commission to make the demand.

OBJECT OF REQUEST

Ostensibly, the request is to enable the commission to judge the efficiency of the respective stations in the interest of the public good. But, on the other hand, a 100 per cent report will present a cross-section of radio activities, which may prove invaluable to license renewal. It is cited that these reports will be held confidential.

Undoubtedly major stations will feel no reluctance in responding to this request, particularly where the report will show that many hours on the air are being devoted to public and quasi-public good in the form of weather reports, government agricultural activities and educational matters.

On the other hand, if the report is responded to many stations will be put under the spotlight as devoting their entire time to purely commercial interests. Extended advertising and merchandising on the air, supported by phonograph records as a background, may be held by the commission as not a contribution to the public good.

The outcome and final analysis of this tabulation will be awaited with interest by the public.

KHJ at 7:30 tonight sends another stellar program over the Columbia System when California Melodies goes on the air. Laura Lee, Jack Whiting, Mack Sennett, Daphne Pollard and Joe E. Brown are highlights on this period. Joe E. Brown with Laura Lee will sing two double comedy numbers while Jack Whiting will sing "Looking for the Lovelight in Your Eyes." at 8 tonight early California history again will be unfolded, bringing back to life Juan Flores with a recounting of his violent and romantic adventures. At 8:30 M.J.B.'s Demi-Tasse Revue presents Reginald Denny and Doris MacMahon as guest artists with George Olsen and his music. At 9:30 p.m. Ted White's Night Club opens up in Rome, untangling both spaghetti and entertainment.

KFI at 1:20 this afternoon will attempt to rebroadcast an N.B.C. orchestral concert from London, Eng. This program is to last twenty-five minutes. At 7 tonight Zhay Clark, harpist, and Luis Alvarez, singer, will be guest artists on a Los Caballeros half-hour—replete with Spanish music and song. A new N.B.C. program, titled "Miniature Biography," is to be heard at 9:15.
